DYOTT FINDS NEW CLEW

Fawcett's Tracks Traced

Rescuer Expects to Learn About Lost Explorer from Indian Tribal Chief

Lack of Canoes Slows Party, But More Will Be Built; Insects Bothersome

Lieutenant Colonel M. Dyott and his party, en route to meet Major P. H. Fawcett, British explorer, who disappeared into the Brazilian wilderness more than three years ago in search of a lost city. The following story was relayed to The Times by Radio and American amateur radio stations.

BY COMMANDER GEORGE M. DYOTT

(Copyright, 1928, by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

IN CAMP ON THE KULISEVU RIVER (Brazil) July 8. (Exclusive) We have traveled nine days down the Kuliseva River on the trail of Col. Fawcett. So far, so good. We are traveling in canvas boats or bark canoes, but making only fair progress because we are so poorly loaded.

We had hoped to make sufficient canoes at our first camping place on the Kuliseva, which we reached June 28, last. A scarcity of trees prevented this. So we are using dugout canoes, eighteen men to a dugout, in four canvas boats and five bark canoes.

TRAIL FOUND

In our last dispatch from Balkari we told of the "jumping-off place." Col. Fawcett left May, 9, 1925, and started his trail.

From Balkari we took a short cut to the Kuliseva, a tributary of the Xingu River, and again picked up Fawcett's tracks.

We traveled in two groups, going slowly. The country was broken and traversed by many streams. We had much trouble crossing these streams, although without the loss of a boat.

We killed a few deer and caught some fish.

We picked up the first definite trace of the missing explorer at Leonardo Camp, which we identified by marks on the trees and other signs.

TRIBESMEN ENTERED

Here on we entered the territory of the Amazon forest. In reaching the Kuliseva, we found that Col. Fawcett obtained a few canoes. He traveled downstream several days, and commenced to trade with Indian camps, stopped several days.

The chief of the tribe Fawcett visited proved to one of our Indians. We are on our way to question him. From him we hope to learn the exact location of Col. Fawcett's camp.

We have five Balkari Indians with us. They brought the number of our party to eighteen when we had to stop for more canoes.

CANOES EASILY BUILT

Canoe building here is a simple matter. Every one has the right kind of trees and enough of them. We select big slabs of bark from trees, build fires on them, causing them to curl. Then we bent up

Will Rogers Remarks:

BEVERLY HILLS, July 8. [To the Editor of The Times:] I see where Mr. Work, Mr. Hoover's head man, says that prohibition will not be brought out during the campaign. That "the campaign we propose to follow will be informative and constructive." Now, Mr. Work, I don't want to tell you your business, for you just left a good job to take up this one, but when you start in "informing" or educating the country on anything you got you some job. There is millions more people in this country interested in a drink than are interested in political knowledge. You start out with a drink and a lecture on statistics and see which one you can dispose of first.

Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

Fall Saves Corn in Iowa; Chicago Expects to Get Precipitation Soon

CHICAGO, July 8. (Exclusive)—Heavy rains fell over large areas of the Midwest today and broke the long-continued hot spell that had driven thermometers to register marks ranging from the low 90's to more than 100.

At Quincy, Ill., where for ten days maxima near 90 deg. had been recorded daily, a late afternoon downpour was followed by a drop of 20 deg. in a single hour.

From Cedar Rapids, Iowa, came reports that "a million-dollar rain" had fallen and beyond all doubt had saved the corn crop. Farmers said after the heavy rains that even if there is no more precipitation for a month, the crop will mature before the frosts. Shortly before the storm the mercury stood at 95 in Cedar Rapids. Comfortable temperatures followed.

STORMS MOVE EAST

Davenport, Iowa, also enjoyed rains and a cooling off from the intense heat. Over portions of the great plains area, particularly in

GOOD GOADS TAMMANY

"Shall It Rule?" He Demands

Western Manager for Hoover Gives Personal View of Coming Struggle

Fight on New York Machine Believed to Be Basis of Republican Drive

CHICAGO, July 9. (Exclusive)—"Shall Tammany rule?"

While emphasizing his recognition of the exclusive right of Secretary Hoover to determine on what issues he will base his fight, James W. Good, western manager of the Republican campaign, said today that in his opinion that will be the question most actively battled over in this section of the country.

He had just returned from Washington where, after extended conferences with the Presidential nominee and Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the national committee, he consented to take command of the western headquarters soon to be opened in Chicago.

GETS BUSY TODAY

He spent a quiet day at his residence in Evanston, but said that beginning tomorrow his time will be devoted to preliminaries of organization that he hopes will progress with sufficient rapidity to permit active functioning of his office considerably before the end of the month.

The former Iowa Representative, for the last several years a Chicago lawyer, said that in his part of the campaign he will rely materially on the work of volunteer assistants.

"I haven't formulated definite plans," he said, "but hope to have them started in the next day or so. During that time a location for the headquarters will be selected and the physical arrangements there planned. But one of the first things I shall do will be to get as many high-grade enthusiastic men and women to volunteer their services so that the campaign can be carried on with a minimum of expense and a maximum of efficiency."

He was asked if he had anything to add to a statement in a Washington interview that the protective tariff and farm-relief plans will be large factors in the campaign.

REAL QUESTION

"Please say for me," he replied, "that, of course, the paramount issues of the campaign will be outlined by the candidate himself and that it would be presumptuous for me or any other man to say which are the important ones until we have heard his speech of acceptance.

"Some of us have our own personal views about the situation as we know it and I have been much interested in reading that recent book on Tammany and New York politics.

"I think the real question is 'Shall Tammany rule?'

"In my opinion that is going to be the practical question out here. It will be the chief topic of many hard-fought discussions."

Mr. Good, in reply to a question, said he does not care to comment on the part that prohibition will play in the campaign.

"A full realization of Secretary Hoover's ability is bound to have a tremendous effect," he said, speaking of the general aspects of the campaign. "He is going to grow stronger and stronger as that realization spreads, as his record as a man of accomplishment is brought home to the voters and they come to recognize that he is a wonder at solving great problems and solving them honestly and squarely in such a way that they don't have to be reopened.

"His greatest asset is his ability to think clearly. He is the greatest salesman the country ever saw. As one of the great problems of agriculture is the disposal of surpluses, he is just the man for that job."

Airplane Stunt Veteran Killed

PROVIDENCE (R. I.) July 8.(AP)—Ted Boudrau, 23 years of age, of Auburn, R. I., veteran of three years of parachute jumping and airplane stunting, was killed at the Rocky Point Amusement Park here this afternoon when his parachute failed to open and he plunged 1000 feet into Narragansett Bay. The plane was piloted by Raymond Menard of Fall River, Mass.

Boudrau formerly was associated with the San Diego (Cal.) "Daredevils." His body has not been recovered.

WOMEN OUT FOR SCALP

Democrats Unite to Beat Smith

First of Clubs Organized at Washington to Aid Hoover and Curtis in Fight

California Bolt Continues as More Feminine Leaders Repudiate Tammany

WASHINGTON, July 8. (AP)—Democratic women opposed to Gov. Smith as the Presidential nominee met here today at the home of Mrs. William Atherton Du Puy, wife of the author, and organized the first of what will be known as the Democratic Women's Clubs for Hoover and Curtis.

Mrs. Du Puy was selected national organizer and Miss Virginia Price of Washington and Alabama was made chairman. An announcement said that women representing a dozen States attended.

A resolution adopted declared that rather than desert the cause of prohibition the women in attendance will support the Republican nominees.

This action, the resolution said "in no way affects our allegiance to the Democratic party in which we maintain our membership and from which we deny the right or power of any agency of Tammany to banish us."

RANKS OF PARTY SPLIT IN CALIFORNIA

SAN FRANCISCO, July 8. (Exclusive)—State-wide defections from the ranks of the Democrats in California, particularly among the women voters, swinging into line behind the Hoover candidacy instead of the Democratic nominee for the Presidency, are reaching the stage of a menace to the Smith campaign in this State.

Mrs. Katherine M. Braddock of Stockton, member of the Democratic State Central Committee and one of the leading women Democrats of the San Joaquin Valley, is one of the latest of the party workers to announce that she will not support the ticket.

So keenly does Mrs. Braddock feel over the selections of the Houston national convention that she has written a letter to Josephus Daniels, former Secretary of the Navy, urging him to place a dry Democratic ticket in the field.

TAMMANY TOO MUCH

"It is not that I am repudiating the Democratic party," Mrs. Braddock, who was a candidate for delegate to the Houston convention on the Walsh ticket, declares. "I believe in the principles of the Democratic party as much as I ever did, but Al Smith, wet Tammany leader, does not represent my brand of Democracy."

"I have never yet voted the Republican ticket, but rather than vote for Al Smith I shall cast my vote for Herbert Hoover," Mrs. Braddock said.

"Although Gov. Smith is a man of considerable ability, I cannot see my way clear to support him and as a consequence I shall vote for Herbert Hoover," Mrs. Mabel Hawkins of the Fifth District, San Francisco, declared today in outlining her reasons for declining to back the Democratic ticket. Mrs. Hawkins was a candidate for delegate to the Houston convention at the May primary election.

"Gov. Smith's attitude on the prohibition question in view of the Democratic plaiform statement on the same question makes it impossible for me to vote for him," Mrs. Hawkins said. "Whether we like prohibition or not, we have the Eighteenth Amendment and the economic safety of the nation demands that the law be enforced and maintained.

HE'S LOGICAL MAN

"Secretary Hoover's experience, not only nationally, but internationally, makes him the logical man for the Presidency. I feel that we

LOEWENSTEIN GOLD TIED UP

Belgian Law Bars Family from Inheritance Until Forty-nine Years Have Elapsed

[Copyright, 1928, by Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, July 8. (Exclusive)—The family of Capt. Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian financier who is believed to have drowned after falling out of his plane over the English Channel, may have to wait forty-nine years before it can touch the fortune he left. It was learned today that unless the body is found, the Belgian law does not recognize death until 100 years after the date of birth of the victim. Meantime, so far as official classification goes, the person is merely "absent."

This means the widow also will be unable to remarry until the day when the disappeared banker, theoretically, would be 100 years of age.

An attempt will be made, however, to make a legal exception, although it is doubtful if he will be recognized as dead before the lapse of at least five years.

The family today tried to put an end to the various speculations regarding the curious disappearance of Capt. Loewenstein, issuing an official announcement declaring that his death "unfortunately is certain." The announcement continues that the plane landed only once—near Dunkirk—and Capt. Loewenstein was not present when it came down.

Donald Drew, pilot of the mysterious voyage, arrived in Brussels this afternoon and had a conference with Capt. Loewenstein's associates. He will give testimony before a judge tomorrow.

The memorial service will be conducted Wednesday if the family succeeds in convincing churchmen that Capt. Loewenstein really is dead.

FURTHER SEARCH FAILS TO REVEAL BODY

CALAIS (France) July 25. (AP)—Search in the English Channel by tugboats and other craft has failed to locate the body of Capt. Alfred Loewenstein, believed to have been drowned when he was lost from a plane in mid-air while flying from London to Brussels.

The matter now is considered closed as far as France is concerned, as no magistrate has been appointed to conduct an inquiry and the only official action has been the casual questioning of other passengers of the plane Thursday by a police commission.

TEXAS TO FIGHT SMITH

Dry Democratic Citizens Organize and Call Mass Meeting to Defeat Tammany

DALLAS (Tex.) July 8. (AP)—With the first State-wide primary less than three weeks away and the Presidential election four months hence, local and State campaigns today shared the center of the stage with national politics.

The latest evidence of the intention of the "dry" Texas Democrats to wage a determined fight against Gov. Smith was shown yesterday when V. A. Collins of Dallas and many other citizens of Texas, called a Statewide mass meeting to be held here July 17.

The meeting was called to perfect plans and organizations to carry Texas against Smith at the election next November.

Among the signers were Rev. Aticus Webb, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League in Texas; Thomas B. Love of Dallas, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor; J. B. Grantfill of Dallas, Baptist churchman and one-time candidate for Vice-President on the Prohibition party ticket, and O. B. Colquitt, former Governor.

National and State politics have been closely interwoven in Texas as Love and Judge William E. Hawkins and Mrs. Edith Wilmans, candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor, publicly announced their intention not to vote for Smith.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES TOLD THEY MUST NOT BOLT

LITTLE ROCK (Ark.) July 8. (AP) Democratic candidates in Arkansas who have threatened to bolt the party at the Presidential election this fall have been notified by J. S. Utley, chairman of the State Central Committee, that they would endanger their standing in the party by such action.

He cited authority to bar such candidates from the ticket and to read them out of the party in the 1930 Democratic primary as bolters.

The Arkansas Supreme Court has held, Mr. Utley stated, that a political party is the final judge as to regulations necessary and proper in the matter of party government and discipline, and that no one should be permitted to vote at the primary election of a party unless he is a member of that party.

Mr. Utley issued his statement as an answer to D. A. McCray, chairman of the Hot Springs county central committee, who has ruled that candidates who will not abide by their pledge to support party nominees cannot get their names on the ticket in that county.

PHYSICIANS FLY TO AID MR. HENRY

Father of Mrs. Hoover Takes Turn for Worse Following Stroke

PLACERVILLE, July 8. (AP)—Two medical specialists were speeding by plane and auto from San Francisco to Placerville tonight to attend C. D. Henry, father-in-law of Herbert Hoover, Republican Presidential nominee. Henry, who has been ill several days, was reported to have suffered an adverse change in condition late today.

Local physicians attending Henry declared tonight that he had completely lost the power of speech and use of his right side. He suffered a light stroke of apoplexy following a heart attack while camping near Placerville.

The specialists were to fly from San Francisco to Sacramento by plane and travel thence by automobile to Placerville. They were expected to arrive in Placerville by midnight.

Mrs. Hoover, in Washington, was advised of her father's condition tonight by Mrs. A. V. Laige, Mrs. Hoover's sister of Palo Alto. Henry's home is in Monterey.

BIBLICAL DISCOVERY REPORTED

Excavations in Palestine Reveal Date of Exodus as 1275 B.C.

BOSTON, July 8. (AP)—Archeological discoveries in Palestine have revealed the date of the Exodus of biblical history as 1275 B.C., according to Dr. Melvin Grove Kyle of St. Louis, who returned on the Celtic today from an expedition in Kirjath Sepher, Palestine. Dr. Kyle, president of Xenia Theological Seminary, St. Louis, said that excavations in the ancient city reveal a continuous history of the civilization of Palestine from 2000 B.C. to 60 B.C.

Among the discoveries made by the Kyle expedition is an idol which indicated that Canaanites were serpent worshipers. There had long been a feeling that this was so, he said, but little was known about it. He added that he could not take the serpent idol from Palestine because of governmental objections.

Fossil Styled Flying Reptile

WASHINGTON, July 8. (AP)—The fossil remains of a great flying reptile recently found in Oregon are described in a statement issued today by the Smithsonian Institution.

The fossil, discovered embedded in Oregon rocks by Prof. E. L. Packard of the University of Oregon, and studied here by C. W. Gilmore of the National Museum, is considered to have belonged to the great group of featherless reptile flyers represented by the Pterodactyls, some of which had a wing spread of twenty feet.

SHAKE-UP IN ITALIAN MINISTRY

Resignations Cause Shift in Personnel Suggested by Premier Mussolini

ROME, July 8. (AP)—The Minister of Finance, Count Giuseppe Volpi, and the Minister of Public Instruction, Pietro Fedelle, have resigned. Premier Mussolini proposed to the King the name of Senator Mosconi for Minister of Finance and of Giuseppe Belluzo, at present Minister of National Economy, for Minister of Public Instruction.

Belluzo will be replaced in the post of Minister of Economy by Alessandro Martelli, now Undersecretary of Communications.

Premier Mussolini sent the retiring ministers letters of warm thanks for the work they had accomplished during three years "in the most important realization of the regime."

Senator Mosconi is a Councilor of State and Signor Martelli is professor of mineralogy and geology at the Superior School of Agriculture and Forestry at Florence.

Deputy Vincenzo Casalini and Dr. Ettore Rosboch were named undersecretaries in the Ministry of Finance. Dr. Pier Silverio Leicht, a professor of law at Bologna University, will be Undersecretary of Education and Guglielmo Iosa and Alessandro Lussona were named to similar posts in the Ministry of National Economy.

"Young Matty" Yearns to Fly

WASHINGTON, July 8. (AP)—Christy Mathewson, Jr., son of the famous baseball pitcher, has decided to take up aviation. "Young Matty," it was announced today by the War Department, has applied for appointment as flying cadet in the Army Air Corps.

Should he pass his examinations, he will go to Brooks Field, San Antonio, Tex., for four months' training at the primary flying school and then to Kelly Field, Tex., for eight months at the advanced school. After completion of both courses, he would be commissioned an Air Corps Reserve officer and be at liberty to enter commercial aviation or take examination for entry into the Regular Army as an officer of the Air Corps.

SEA HORROR DESCRIBED

Survivors Tell of 300 Deaths

Transport Pounded on Rocks by Storm Before Going to Pieces off Chile

Captain Blows out Brains as He Finds Self Unable to Prevent Disaster

SANTIAGO (Chile) July 8. (AP)—More than 300 lives were lost when the army transport Angamos crashed on the rocks at Punta Chimpel, near the south Chilean coast town of Lebu, Friday night. The exact number may never be known as the vessel had made several stops en route and its passenger list had been changed. A number of government officials and their families are reported to have been aboard. Only four survivors have been found. They tell a terrible tale of a three-hour struggle for life preservers, places in the boats, or even hand holds on bits of floating wreckage which followed the crash.

The ship lost her rudder in a storm and when the commander, Ismael Suarez, found himself unable to prevent the catastrophe, he committed suicide on the bridge.

Chilean naval vessels and tugs, summoned by wireless, rushed to the scene, but by the time they arrived there was nothing for them to save. Eight bodies were found on the beach near Coronel.

WOMEN AND CHILDREN

The transport left Punta Arenas, southernmost city in the world in the Straits of Magellan, with 201 persons on board. Of these 115 were crew and seventy-six passengers. The latter included a number of women and children.

The ship was loaded with coal at Punta Arenas, the fuel being intended for use of Chilean naval vessels in northern waters. The passengers were mostly laborers and their families en route to the nitrate fields in Northern Chile. They were traveling at government expense.

Several stops were made en route, and while a few of the original passenger list may have debarked, it is thought here that additions to the passenger quota brought the total number aboard to more than 300.

The storm was encountered late in the day. For several hours the Angamos struggled to make headway against wind and wave, but she was badly battered. Then her rudder was smashed and she started to drift toward the breakers. At 10 p.m. she struck.

BOATS PUT OUT

With no rescue in sight, attempts were made to launch lifeboats, but they capsized in the tremendous seas almost as rapidly as they struck the water and their human freight was tossed on the rocks.

The vessel filled rapidly and three hours after she struck was virtually buried under the waves. Then she broke in two and the few who remained aboard were thrown into the sea. What they experienced is revealed in the story of Jose Aguila, an army conscript, who was cast ashore on a piece of wreckage. He told it in the hospital at Belen.

"A terrific storm raged," he said; "in the midst of it the ship lost her rudder and she was dashed between two great rocks about 10 o'clock Friday night. She was about 200 yards from the shore.

FIGHT FOR LIFE

"You must imagine the scene aboard. Until 1 o'clock in the morning we were fighting between life and death while the boat settled down in the water rapidly. The continuous blasts of the ship's whistle failed to bring help.

"When it became plain that there was not the most remote chance of rescue there was nothing left to do but launch the lifeboats. This was done, but they were tossed

CONEY GETS JOHN D.'S HOME

Birthplace of Oil Baron Will Be Moved to Resort and Used There for Museum

[Copyright, 1928, by North American Newspaper Alliance.]

OWEGO (N. Y.) July 8. (Exclusive)—The home in which John D. Rockefeller was born has been sold and will be moved to Coney Island, playground of New York's millions, there to take its place as a museum in a resort city clamorous with the din of scenic railways and the cries of sideshow barkers. The old house is on Michigan Hill, two and a half miles northeast of Richford, N. Y. Richford is thirty-two miles from Owego and 275 miles from New York. The homestead probably will be moved to Coney Island by truck.

The purchaser of this historic dwelling is Mrs. Sarah S. Dennen, Brooklyn. She is secretary of the Coney Island Chamber of Commerce. Mrs. Dennen bought the property from Mrs. Carrie Rockefeller, Harford Mills, N. Y., whose husband Simeon, now dead, was a first cousin of John D. Rockefeller.

PRICE KEPT SECRET

The sale was completed Saturday. The transfer papers were signed just outside of the room in which John D. Rockefeller was born. Tomorrow, eighty-nine years and one day after Mr. Rockefeller's birth, the deed will be filed in the office of the Tioga county Register, at Owego. The price Mrs. Dennen paid is not disclosed.

Mrs. Dennen, who says she is not a woman of wealth, regards the old house as a gift to America.

During the last few years the old dwelling had been used only as a vacation camp for Mrs. Rockefeller and her daughter's family of boys.

Before it is established as a museum, the house will be furnished to represent as nearly as possible the farm home of a century ago. Mrs. Dennen says she already has had offers of co-operation from one large museum, and also from neighbors of the Rockefellers around Richford and Harford Mills.

"My plan is experimental only in that the laboratory of economic history will actually be brought to the people," said Mrs. Dennen.

"The educational lesson involved

SMITH TO TALK WITH ROBINSON

Democratic Nominees to Be in Conference Today

Arkansan Now En Route to Committee Meeting

Senator Pittman Raps Work Over Liquor Issue

ALBANY (N. Y.) July 8. (AP)—Preliminary to the meeting in New York City Wednesday of the Democratic National Committee, Gov. Smith and his running mate, Senator Robinson of Arkansas, will exchange views here tomorrow on campaign organization and strategy. The two nominees have not met since the Houston convention.

Senator Robinson on his way to the committee session, sent word today to Smith from St. Louis that he would stop off here for an hour and a half tomorrow if convenient. Gov. Smith replied that he would like to see him.

The Vice-Presidential nominee is traveling eastward with Jesse H. Jones, Houston banker and publisher, who had the backing of the Texas delegation for the Presidential nomination in the Democratic convention. Mr. Jones also will detrain here.

WILL SEE PITTMAN

By stopping off in Albany late in the day, the two not only will have an opportunity to discuss the outlook with the Presidential nominee, but will find here, as his guest, Senator Pittman of Nevada, who served as chairman of the platform committee at Houston, will be head of the official committee that will notify Gov. Smith of his nomination, and is mentioned as the probable new chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Senator Pittman joined the Governor last night while the nominee was on his way home from Centerville, Md., where he attended the funeral of a son of John J. Raskob, a close friend. Senator Pittman is a guest at the executive mansion, and will accompany Mr. Smith Tuesday, when he leaves for the New York committee meeting.

Gov. Smith and Senator Robinson both will take part in the deliberations of the national committee Wednesday. At that time it is expected that a chairman, who will direct the Presidential campaign of the Democrats will be chosen. Dates for the notification of both nominees probably will be fixed and campaign plans generally will be shaped up.

PITTMAN SCORES WORK

In addition to Senator Pittman, a number of Democratic leaders have been discussed for the post of national committee chairman, much of the speculation revolving around Senator Gerry of Rhode Island. Gov. Smith himself has declined to be drawn out on that subject, or on any phase of campaign plans.

Senator Pittman today ridiculed what he terms the efforts of Dr. Hubert Work, leader of the Hoover forces, to eliminate prohibition as a Presidential campaign issue.

"Dr. Work's attitude betrays an ignorance astounding in a politician," he said on his arrival yesterday to confer with Gov. Smith. "His presumptiveness in telling men what they shall or shall not say in a campaign is laughable. There is no such thing as a dominant issue in this campaign.

"The 1928 tariff plank is the logical result of the evolution Democratic thought has undergone since 1913 when Senator Underwood put in his 'competitive' tariff bill."

REED GOING FOR CONFERENCE WITH SMITH

ST. LOUIS, July 8. (AP)—Senator Reed will leave here tomorrow morning to discuss the Democratic Presidential campaign with Gov. Smith at Albany, he announced this afternoon.

Senator Reed made his announcement following a long-distance telephone conversation with the Democratic Presidential nominee.

WOMAN SEEKS TRAFFIC JOB

Competes With Seventeen for Appointment to State Force

SACRAMENTO, July 8. (Exclusive) — Mrs. Edih Moller of Auburn has applied to Frank G. Snook, chief of the State Division of Motor Vehicles, for appointment as a traffic officer for Placer county. If appointed she will be the first woman ever to serve in the State traffic police force. Seventeen are also after the job.

YOUTH SHOT AS INTRUDER IN HOME LIFE

Denver Man Kills Wife's Visitor, Declared Trapped by Fake Departure

DENVER, July 8. (AP)—Herbert H. Powell, 19 years of age, was shot and killed early today by A. E. (Dick) Dickson, western theatrical man, when he came upon Powell with Mrs. Dickson at the Dickson home here.

Dickson today told police he had faked an out-of-town trip but returned home after a couple of hours and found Powell in his home. Powell argued with him, he said, and in a fight which followed he and the youth grappled for possession of the revolver which Dickson carried.

During the scuffle, he declared, he pulled the trigger of his pistol twice. One bullet struck Powell in the shoulder and the other went through his head. He died almost instantly, Dickson told the police.

The slain youth is the son of Mrs. Lynn B. Powell of Carruthersville, Mo. The family maintains a summer home in Denver and came here three weeks ago for their regular summer stay. Three months ago the youth's father died at Carruthersville.

Young Powell, who was known as Peter, did not go to Missouri last winter but remained here. Members of his family said that Mrs. Dickson had telephoned him repeatedly in the past few weeks asking him to come and visit her.

Dickson is prominent in the motion-picture industry in the West and is vice-president of the recently organized Consolidated Theaters, Inc., a million-dollar concern which controls houses in Utah, South Dakota and Colorado. Police said murder charges probably would be filed against him tomorrow. His wife is being held as a material witness.

REVOLUTION CHIEF SLAIN IN BULGARIA

Former Cabinet Member Shot on Street in Sofia by Trio Who Escape

SOFIA (Bulgaria) July 8. (AP)—Gen. Protogroherov, chief of the Macedonian revolutionary organization, was killed on a busy street here last night. He was shot down by three men, who escaped in the confusion. Officials are maintaining the greatest secrecy over the affair.

The general has been out of the public eye for some time, but had been active behind the scenes on the Balkan stage. He was Minister of Provisions in the Bulgarian Cabinet in war time, but took up the Macedonian revolution cause later and in February, 1927, presided over an assembly of the revolutionists.

It is thought that his death may have been an indirect result of a recent fiasco. Assembled revolutionists could not agree on plans and a bloody fight resulted.

In some circles it is believed that the general's assassins were Communists or foreign agents.

Gen. Protogroherov figured among the list of persons claimed for trial by the Jugo-Slav government after the war and promptly disappeared. In the last year or so his name has become almost legendary in the Macedonian revolutionary movement. He was 75 years of age.

Group to Seek Direct Election

COLUMBUS (O.) July 8. (AP)—With the avowed purpose of bringing about an amendment to the Federal Constitution providing for nomination and election of Presidential and Vice-Presidential candidates by direct popular vote, a group of Ohio men has organized the National Voters' League, a nonpartisan body.

Former Lieut.-Gov. Arnold, president of the organization, said that members will be sought in every State to further the prospects for such an amendment.

HOOVER TO VISIT WITH PRESIDENT

Accepts Invitation to Stop at Brule En Route

Trip West Will Be Delayed for Week or So

Democrats Confronted With Harmony Problem

WASHINGTON, July 8. (Exclusive)—Herbert Hoover spent a quiet day today preparatory to renewing work tomorrow upon his speech accepting the Republican Presidential nomination and winding up his affairs as head of the Commerce Department.

Mr. Hoover will not leave for the West Coast, where he will be informed formally of his nomination, for another week or ten days. He has accepted President Coolidge's invitation to stop over for a day or two at Brule, Wis., the summer White House, and his continuance or severance with the President's Cabinet will be determined at that time.

It is not improbable, it was said today, that Mr. Coolidge may ask his commerce head to stay on until late in August or in September, but Mr. Hoover will have his portfolio ready for turning over to the Chief Executive at a moment's notice.

CAMPAIGN MAPPED

The Republican nominee plans no speeches on his way to Palo Alto. With his campaign plans almost as fully mapped out now as is possible and with his campaign machinery ready to function smoothly and efficiently, Mr. Hoover is anxious to devote the coming week to cleaning up his work in the Commerce Department so that there will be no loose ends for his successor to worry over. He and his aides also are busy with details of their trip west.

With these things facing him, Mr. Hoover is content to sit quietly back this week and let the political spotlight turn to the Democrats. Mr. Hoover's organization has been perfected and is "all set to go." Gov. Smith's organization is still in process of formation.

The Democratic nominee and his managers have a hard task ahead of them, a task they will attempt to accomplish, at least in part, in New York on Wednesday when the Democratic national committee meets, with Smith probably in attendance.

CHAIRMANSHIP ISSUE

First and foremost of the difficulties confronting the Democrats and their herculean efforts to preserve harmony among factions which crave fights, is the choosing of a national chairman. Senator Peter Goelet Gerry of Rhode Island, wealthy scion of a wealthy family, who married into the Vanderbilts, is most prominently mentioned for the post. The mere mention of his name, however, has aroused dissatisfaction in some Democratic circles and a few Smith followers eager to avoid dissension are now speaking of Franklin D. Roosevelt for the place, though he hails from New York, a not altogether happy location for the next committee head.

It is probable, too, according to word reaching here, that the Smith forces may reach out into the Middle West for a national head, centering their attentions upon Illinois and Indiana. Owen D. Young, who has been heard of in connection with the chairmanship, is understood not to be in the running because of his connection with the so-called "power trust."

Smith people are anxiously seeking a man who will most closely typify Smith himself. Gerry does not, but it may turn out that they will have to take him.

CURTIS LEAVES TO CONFER WITH HOOVER

PROVIDENCE (R. I.) July 8. (AP)—Senator Curtis of Kansas, Republican nominee for the Vice-Presidency, left here this morning for Washington, where he will confer with Secretary of Commerce Hoover, Presidential choice of the party.

His vacation at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Webster Knight II of West Warwick, was cut short by a telephoned request from Mr. Hoover for the conference before the Secretary starts for California, and Senator Curtis for Kansas, to receive the official notifications of their nominations.

CHINA PLANS TO REPLACE MANY PACTS

"Unequal" Treaties to Be Terminated If Possible; Aliens Will Be Protected

NANKING (China) July 8.—All "unequal" treaties between China and other countries which have expired are ispo facto to be abrogated, said an official declaration issued today by the Foreign Office of the Nationalist government here. New treaties will be sought with those nations and China will make an effort to terminate any other "unequal" treaties which still have leases on life.

The declaration said it will be the aim of the Foreign Office to afford protection to all foreign lives and property and that with the unification of China an accomplished fact, it is the proper task of the government to make every effort to realize the Nationalist aims.

Disappearance of Girl Laid to Film Ambitions

POMONA, July 8. (Exclusive)—Her determination to become a film star, often expressed to her parents and friends, is believed to explain the absence of Martha Aria, 16 years of age, who disappeared from her home here yesterday.

She took with her four $50 bills, obtained from her parents' savings account, and left a note indicating that she was bound for Hollywood. She was last seen about 2 p.m. Saturday and police have been asked to search for her.

TAMMANY'S FORT INVOLVED

Moses, Republican General, in New York to Direct Fight in "Flanders of Campaign"

NEW YORK, July 8. (AP)—The territory from Maine to Maryland is the "Flanders of the Presidential campaign" in the opinion of Senator Moses of New Hampshire, who came here today to take charge of the Hoover campaign in the East. The Republican party has a chance to capture fifteen places in the Senate this year, eight of which are on the eastern coast.

Despite statements to the contrary in Washington, Senator Moses said he expects to make his headquarters in New York City. He wants the mechanics of the campaign largely directed from Washington, but New York is to be the political headquarters.

Senator Moses came here today after an all-day conference in Washington. Late Saturday night he agreed to take the leadership of the fight in the East, considered by many to be the important post of the campaign. Just what considerations led Senator Moses to decline the honor at first he did not disclose, but it is understood he insisted upon absolute independence in the direction of the eastern fight.

CONFIDENT OF SUCCESS

The Senator feels the importance of the campaign in the East keenly, although he expressed himself as confident of the ultimate success of the Republican nominee. Generally speaking, he believes the "Solid South" is safe for Smith, and that the West will stay Republican. The battleground as he sees it is the territory over which he will have supervision.

Senator Moses believes the Republicans will carry the so-called "border States." By these he means Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri and Oklahoma. There has been some discussion about the desirability of having a campaign office at Chattanooga, Tenn., from which to direct the campaign in these States, but no decision has been made.

SENATE PLACES IMPORTANT

The Hoover campaign director in the East also believes the Republicans can carry at least eight Congressional districts in the South. So far as can be learned, however, he does not place any of the electoral votes in the Hoover column. There are at least three Republican Congressional districts in North Carolina and others in Alabama, Texas and Florida, in the opinion of Senator Moses.

The Republican party has a chance to capture fifteen places in the Senate this year, eight of which are on the eastern coast, Senator Moses said. These places, he considers fully as important as the Presidency, for Hoover must have strong support in Congress to put through the legislation which will be necessary, particularly a revision of the tariff, he contends.

Senator Moses will confer with eastern Republican leaders tomorrow and Tuesday and return to Washington for the rest of the week. He expects to spend the next week-end in New Hampshire and will take up the real work of the campaign after that.

COOLIDGES AGAIN LURE FOR CROWDS

President and Family at Brule Church Hear Tale of Jonah Defended

SUPERIOR (Wis.) July 8. (AP)—Surrounded by greater crowds of visitors and tourists than on any previous Sunday, President and Mrs. Coolidge, accompanied by their son John, attended religious service in Brule today.

John Taylor, the blind lay preacher of the Brule church, preached a sermon for whose text he chose the life of Jonah, and in which he warned against doubting of the veracity of Jonah's adventure as related in the Bible. Although this has been "buffeted and scoffed at as impossible," Taylor said he has seen "in a book that some one has said that fish have been opened containing fish twelve times the size of men."

W. B. Holmes, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Hopkinsville, Ky., and John McTee Carson, assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Duluth, Minn., assisted in today's service. The former offered a prayer for "those in authority."

WOMEN UNITE TO BEAT SMITH

should be grateful to Mr. Hoover for seeking the Presidency and not only California loyalty to him but also because he is the best fitted of the two candidates, makes it necessary for me to vote for him," she declared.

The break in Democratic ranks first came from Southern California last week, when Nathan Newby, McAdoo faction leader, issued a statement announcing that he will not support Smith because of his wet Tammany Hall affiliations. Judge Bledsoe of Los Angeles, another life-long Democrat, also declared that he will support Hoover instead of the Democratic nominee.

In this section, the bolt first was announced by Mrs. F. G. Harrison, president of the Woman's Democratic Club of Alameda county. Mrs. Carrie L. Hoyt of Berkeley, counsellor, and Mrs. P. H. Rogers, former president of the organization, also joined in statements that they will not support Smith.

Political Exile Fears Murder

VIENNA, July 8. (AP)—Hassan Pristina, an Albanian political leader living in exile here, appealed to the police today for protection from an emissary of the government of his land.

Pristina was one of four men sentenced to death six days ago for asserted connection with an attempt to assassinate Ahmed Zogu, dictator of Albania. The others were executed and Pristina told the local authorities that the Albanian government had sent an emissary to Vienna to carry out the death sentence on him.

PROHIBITION DECLARED REAL ISSUE

Democrat Says Prospects of Fall Fight on Question Disturbing Republicans

WASHINGTON, July 8. (AP)—Prohibition is one of the outstanding issues of the Presidential campaign, in the opinion of Senator Edwards, Democrat, New Jersey, and in a statement issued today he said that a "panic fear" of that issue "already is disturbing the inner councils of Republicanism."

"The Washington conference of best eastern minds in the G.O.P., held Saturday," Senator Edwards said, "fairly bubbled with perturbation lest the Smith antiprohibition telegram to the Houston convention turns out to be a master political stroke in this day of Volstead corruption and crime."

The Republicans are making the same mistake with regard to the liquor issue as have "fanatics and antisaloon leaguers," Senator Edwards believes, "namely, viewing prohibition as sacred and a thing apart from our workaday world."

"If prohibition is sacred," he declared, "then bootlegging, bribery and official enforcement corruption are virtues. If prohibition is not an issue there will be little if any political honesty in the campaign. . . . By ignoring prohibition, the Hoover party is placing their stamp of approval on a de facto condition in this nation which has encouraged crime waves of unprecedented proportions within the past years and has generated a cycle of moral hypocrisy and political cowardice equalled only by the fall of the Cassars."

Capper Addresses Letter to Chairman Work

Suggests Many Supporters With 50 Cents to $1000

Declares Kansas Will Not Spend Lot of Money

TOPEKA (Kan.) July 8. (AP)—A strict rule limiting individual contributions to the 1928 campaign of the Republican party to $1000 was urged by Senator Capper of Kansas in a letter to Chairman Work of the Republican National Committee, made public here tonight.

Senator Capper expressed the hope that the total national campaign fund would be kept well below $3,000,000 and that the money will be collected from small contributors who are willing to give from 50 cents upward to $1000 in the interest of party success without expecting anything in return.

As for Kansas, he said, "there is no need of spending a lot of money and we are not going to." He predicted Hoover and Curtis will carry the State "by an old-time Republican majority."

SMALL GIVER WANTED

"Laws regulating campaign contributions and expenditures are desirable, but the assured and certain method of emancipating the party from dependence on large givers, with a string attached or believed to be attached to their subscriptions, is to put up to the party membership directly the duty of financing campaigns by a greater number of small popular subscriptions for which there can be no pretext for thinking they are made in return for services rendered, or to be rendered, to the contributors," the Senator said in his letter.

"In my opinion, the national committee could do the party no greater service at this moment than to adopt this plan and strictly carry it out to the day of the election.

LAST BUDGET EXCESSIVE

"The campaign budget of more than $5,000,000 eight years ago was in itself scandalous and was entirely excessive, as the vote in November proved."

Senator Capper said the suggestion that campaign funds be solicited "from the party membership in small individual contributions, rather than from great wealth or corporate interests," is not a new one. That was the announced intention of the national committee in 1920, and "if before the close of that campaign the rule was departed from," he said, "it was not because too little money was raised, but because too much money was spent, and spent in ways that brought little return."

With contributions limited to $1000 in Kansas in 1920, more money was raised than in any previous campaign when subscriptions without limit were solicited, Senator Capper added.

DON'T FOOL YOURSELF

Since halitosis never announces itself to the victim, you simply cannot know when you have it

Halitosis ruins romance—end it

The one you're fond of, has halitosis (unpleasant breath), is your duty to call attention and suggest the effective remedy—Listerine.

Certainly this course is a trifle more than putting up with things and saying nothing about it.

A great many people fool themselves in thinking they never have halitosis. What a deception! Because nobody knows when he or she is a victim. It doesn't announce itself to you. But it does to others. And that offends.

Listerine ends halitosis because it is a powerful deodorant. If you doubt this, rub a bit of onion on your hand. Then apply Listerine clear. Immediately the odor disappears.

Use Listerine morning and night and between times, before meeting others. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

Reports Indicate High Fever Among Castaways

Engineer of Italia Said to Have Died of Hurts

Fogs Still Prevent Aviators from Making Trips

PARIS, July 8. — A dispatch to Le Matin from Virgo Bay, Spitzbergen, says that Natalie Ceccione, motor chief of the Italia, has died from injuries received when the dirigible crashed on the ice north of Spitzbergen May 25. The four other survivors of the airship disaster who are afloat on an ice floe near Foyn Island are reported to be seriously ill.

[Copyright, 1928, by the New York Times]

COPENHAGEN, July 8. (Exclusive)—The plight of Gen. Umberto Nobile's men, still marooned on the ice, is growing more desperate hour by hour. Unless the Russian ice breaker Grassin is able to plow through to them soon all the rescue efforts will have been fruitless, according to those who are waiting helplessly at Kings Bay.

Two of the castaways under command of Lieut. Viglieri are said to be in a high fever as the result of their privations and exposure. The entire group is utterly worn out and losing hope.

CECCIONI THOUGHT DEAD

A report, which has not been confirmed is that Capt. Ceccioni, chief engineer of the Italia, has died as the result of his injuries and weakness following the breaking of both his legs when the Italia crashed.

Today the ice is so precarious that it is not thought possible he can be saved. It is recalled that he started in spite of the warnings of the Norwegian aviator, Lieut. Holm. Another grim thought is that the whole region abounds with polar bears and that Capt. Sora started without weapons of any kind.

AMUNDSEN SEARCH STOPPED

Not the slightest trace has been found of Roald Amundsen or of the Swedish scientist, Dr. Malgren. The Russian aviator Baboushkin has been ordered by his government to cease his search for Amundsen, all his attempts having been fruitless.

Commander Tornberg, in charge of the Swedish expedition, reports that fog made any new flights impossible today. One engine of the Moth plane which rescued Lieut. Lundborg needs a complete overhauling before it can fly again, according to Commander Tornberg's latest statement.

New York Preacher Views Life as Taxi Driver; Good Samaritan His First Experience

(This is the secnd of six articles by Rev. Thomas H. Whelpley, pastor of Chelsa Presbyterian Church, "The Skyscraper Church," 214 West Twenty-third street, New York City. In them he tells of his study of the flaming life of Manhattan from the driver's seat of a nighthawk taxicab.)

BY REV. THOMAS H. WHELPLEY

[Copyright, 1928, in all Countries by North American Newspaper Alliance.]

NEW YORK, July 8. (Exclusive)—I started out gaily my first night as a taxi driver in New York. I didn't have much of a bus, but the company thought it good enough for a minister-cabby. It was what cabbies call a "cluck," an old rattlebox that wheesed and groaned and squeaked and clanked. About the world's worst taxicab.

But I was mighty happy. After long weeks of waiting for hack license and police permit and after weary days of trudging from garage to garage trying to get a job, here I was at last behind the wheel, ready to go, with my photograph in the cab.

REV. THOMAS WHELPLEY

Best of all, it was raining. Not a drizzle but a good hard shower. All the cabbies on the night shift were getting under way as quickly as possible, shouting that it was a great night for ducks and taxis. I cranked up. The engine sputtered and I was off with a final warning from the owner of the business, "Don't take any wooden money, parson, and don't bust my Leaping Lena."

ADVENTURE STARTS

We made a brave start, my taxi and I. We clattered out of the garage, nosed into the traffic and headed for Times Square.

"Hey, taxi!"

A fare! I pulled over to the curb with a flourish and stopped so short my engine stalled. My passenger climbed aboard.

"Where to, mister?" I asked, hoping I sounded professional.

"Brooklyn."

"Right-o!" I pulled down my cap, got out into the rain and cranked. Nothing happened. I cranked again. Nothing happened still. I lifted the hood, fiddled and twisted gadgets. I closed the hood and cranked again. Nothing doing. Not a rumble, not a squeak. No sign of life.

"Hey, let's go! I'm in a hurry," from the passenger.

DEAD AT POST

"O.K. mister. I'll have her going in just one minute."

But she wasn't going in a minute or in five minutes. And my first passenger climbed out, leaving me with my head buried under the hood, trying to resurrect the engine of Leaping Lena. I was soaking wet and worried. I had no idea what to do next.

Then came the Good Samaritan.

"What's wrong, buddy? Need any help?"

A fellow taxi-driver pulled up beside me. He was a big fellow with a cauliflower ear and a wide grin.

"Green at the game, ain't ya? I seen ya start in that sea-goin' hack. Let's see can we doctor her up."

HELP ARRIVES

He had hardly begun to monkey with the engine when another cab drew up.

"What's up, fellas?"

"This baby's sprung a leak in the gas line. Gotta little S-wrench?"

"Maybe. I'll give a look."

In a jiffy a loose connection was "doctored up," and when Cauliflower whirled the crank a welcome clatter announced a new lease on life for Lena.

"Some can, buddy, You'll have to get 'em comin' and goin' if ya make any jack outa that buncha tin. Doncha let 'em skunk ya."

"Skunk?"

TERMS OF TRADE

"Sure—skunk. You know—leave ya go without no tip."

"Thanks for the advice, buddy. And say—where's business good?"

"It don't make much difference. But stay outa Harlem—nothin' but short trips there. So long—and don't let the gorillers get ya."

"Gorillas?"

"Gorillers—sure. Flatfeet. You know—bulls, cops. You're wrong with them even if you're right. They'll ride you pretty every chance they get. Well—so long."

Cauliflower started his engine and let in his clutch.

INFORMATION BUREAU

"Hey, listen!" He called through the rain. "If ya wanta know anything more, go to the nearest cigar store."

"Cigar store? Why cigar stores?"

"They know the ropes, buddy—they know the ropes."

Rough men, rough-mannered, but a good-natured, good-hearted, kindly lot. In short—"reg'lar fellers," except with the cops. Later I found that the police, too, are "reg'lar fellers," except with the cabbies. Somehow cops and cabbies don't speak the same language.

Accident Delays Flight to Rome

CURTISS FIELD (N. Y.) July 8. (AP)—Caesare Sabelli's projected nonstop flight to Rome was delayed for perhaps two days today when the Sesqui plane Roma in which the trip is to be made was damaged in collision with another machine.

Lieut. Marvin Balfour, a field flying instructor, was landing with a girl student, Miss Julia Clement, when a crowd of spectators at the field approached his landing space and he swerved the machine suddenly to avoid striking them. The wing of his plane scraped the wing of the Roma, ripping off a section of the covering. Sabelli said repairs can be completed within two days.

RADIO CONFLICT GROWING ACUTE

Commission Striving to Clear Ether by Fall

Hundred Stations Expected to Lose Licenses

Whole Broadcast System May Be Shaken Up

BY MARTIN CODEL

[Copyright, 1928, by North American Newspaper Alliance.]

WASHINGTON, July 8. (Exclusive)—Radio's normal summer doldrums promise to be shaken into gusts of fury by happenings in Washington during these summer months. Within and without the Federal Radio Commission, a conflict is raging that will determine the future of good radio reception—a hope that has been dangled before radio fandom during practically all of the sixteen months since the commission was set up by Congress to bring about order in the ether.

Within the commission, there is difference of opinion on how to proceed. That body, it is true, has ordered 164 stations off the air as of August 1, as a first step. To survive, these stations must prove more public service merit than has been apparent in their programs heretofore in the public hearings scheduled for them before the commission all this week.

AGREE ON TWO POINTS

But regarding the next most important step toward clearing up man-made interference, the commission is at odds within itself. Some of the five members still favor an engineering plan of allocating equitably but on a scientific basis, stations, powers, and wave lengths as to the respective zones in compliance with the new radio law. Others are loath to alter the status quo. They want the necessary equalization to begin with certain existing stations retaining the wave lengths and powers they are now using.

The best engineering minds in the radio industry, repeatedly called in by the commission for consultation, have agreed on two points. First, there must be a substantial curtailment in the number of stations. Secondly, the equalization provision of the new radio law can be carried out with the elimination of interference only through a scheme based on sound engineering principles.

The first step the commission has taken. The upshot of the curtailment order will probably be that about 100 of the stations will be ordered off permanently; the others will save themselves by proving merit, by voluntary consolidations and possibly by successful litigation against the commission.

SHAKE-UP MANDATORY

The second phase of the problem makes mandatory a shake-up of the whole broadcast system, if interference-free broadcast and reception is to be attained. The engineers proposed fifty cleared channels of the available ninety for fifty leading stations, ten in each of the five zones into which the country has been divided for radio purposes. The other stations will be crowded with lower and noninterfering powers on the remaining wave lengths.

Out of the closed sessions of the commission, reliable word emanates that a majority of the commission opposes the engineering plan and the fifty cleared-channels' idea, and is insisting upon a scheme that will involve few changes and little hardship upon the broadcasters. The insistence is that present conditions are quite satisfactory and should be changed only to comply with the equalization amendment.

Outside the commission—in fact, in most localities of the country—the contrary view prevails as to the quality of reception. Even aside from static and fading, there are few places in the country where heterodyne whistles, caused by crowding of the wave lengths with too many stations using too much power, are not disturbing program reception.

IMPROVEMENT DEMANDED

The public demand has been for improvement in this condition, even if it means the morality of many stations. The commission, faced with political influences favoring this or that station to retain its license or its favorable wave and power assignments, and some of its members eager to be continued in permanent Federal office where their posts are now only temporary, is at a critical juncture in its career. By August 1, changes must necessarily be ordered for September 1.

The latter date signals the season of autumn and winter reception, when more radio fans stay at home and when they become more and more critical of the avoidable noises that distort the programs they have stayed at home to hear.

INDEPENDENTS WILL PROTEST STATION CLOSING

WASHINGTON, July 8. (AP) — A protest against the Federal Radio Commission undertaking "to destroy independent broadcasters merely to give a larger audience to the high-powered chain stations," was made publi here today by representatives of the Independent Broadcasters' Association who will appear Tuesday at the commission's public hearings on what stations shall be eliminated to improve reception.

"Congress did not intend to destroy independent broadcasting stations when it passed the reallocation amendment," the Independents maintained. They opposed giving a "broadcasting chain the right to use twenty-five different wave lengths, all served by high-powered stations, to transmit the same program."

"There is room in the air for all the stations on the commission's lists," the statement said, "if there is a proper restriction of power and division of time. This is not a question of individual stations. It is a question of the rights of communities to have local broadcasting facilities, just as they have local newspapers.

"We contend that the commission should make a careful study of these community rights and of the part of which broadcasting now plays in the life of every community before it destroys a single independent station."

PAINTER 'DEVIL AMONG TAILORS'

Trade Organ Charges Artists Raise Hob With Styles in Portraiture

LONDON, July 8. (AP)—Tailor and Cutter, official journal of London tailors, hurls the charge at painters of not knowing how to paint a suit of clothing.

The butt of criticism is the exhibition hanging in the Royal Academy. Lloyd George's portrait, says the journal, is dressed in a suit that is "wild and woolly, suggesting the Far West more than the West End."

"The sight of a modern suit," it continues, "raises the artist's ire and makes him a vandal. He lays waste and dismantles coat, waistcoat and trousers. He disdains buttons, ignores collars, and plays the devil generally."

TIME TO BUY PARKS NOW, SAYS GOVERNOR

SACRAMENTO, July 8. (AP)—Passage of the $5,000,000 bond issue for State parks, which will be voted upon at the November election, was today urged by Gov. Young. "Now is the time to buy land for public parks," the Chief Executive said. "Land may be purchased cheaply now but if we delay costs in future years will be prohibitive. The bond issue for State parks would provide that all expenditures from the sum voted would be matched by similar sums provided from county, municipal or private means."

WOOD LEADS IN NATIONAL TOUR

Waco Biplane Pilot Has 1000 Points Advantage

Hawks, Flying Ford Craft, Holds Second Place

Caravan Leaves San Antonio at 8 a.m. Today

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) July 8. (AP) John H. Wood, flying a Waco biplane, will take off for El Paso here tomorrow morning with a comfortable lead of more than 1000 points over his nearest competitor in the national air tour.

Since the party of flyers left Detroit Wood has amassed a total of 6603.8 points. His nearest competitor, the score announced by officials today disclosed, is Frank M. Hawks, who is piloting a Ford trimotored monoplane and who has acquired 5231.6 points.

The other leaders are: Edward A. Stinson, Stinson-Detroiter monoplane, 5088.6; Randolph G. Page, Stinson-Detroiter monoplane, 5064.6; Robert Canwell, Lockheed monoplane, 4744.1, and William Brock, Bellanca monoplone, 4531.7.

The tour is scheduled to leave here at 8 a.m., pause for half an hour at Marfa, Tex., at noon, and arrive in El Paso shortly before 4 p.m.

Stinson announced here today that he and George W. Haldeman will make an attempt to bring the world's record for an endurance flight back to this country. The record was broken Saturday by two Germans who remained in the air sixty-five hours and twenty-six minutes.

Do You Really Know What $1045 Will Buy?

Your money's worth in an automobile. The most you can get for every dollar you pay. That's what you want, naturally. That's what everyone wants. But do you really know what your money will buy?

At $1045, for example, you can get a big, handsome General Motors Six . . . embodying all the modern, proved design that General Motors manufacturing implies. One with a wheelbase 117 inches long. With a whispering brute of an engine. 212 cubic inches piston displacement. 81-lb. crankshaft equipped with the harmonic balancer. The famous G-M-R cylinder head.

Bodies by Fisher, also. Smart . . . colorful . . . luxuriously appointed and equipped. Deep-cushioned. Ruggedly constructed. Roomy and comfortable without sacrificing style.

Then there's the new cross-flow radiator . . . thermostatically controlled. Air cleaner. Gasoline and oil filters. Full-pressure lubrication. The AC fuel pump.

All for $1045 . . . in the All-American Six. That's what your money will buy in one car . . . but in no other car of equal price!

HETCH-HETCHY ROW ADVANCES

Controversy to Reach Board of Supervisors

Officials Make Inspection and Consult Mather

Federal Executive Insists Water Needs Filtration

SAN FRANCISCO, July 8. (Exclusive)—San Francisco's controversy with the National Park Service over the improvement of the Hetch-Hetchy watershed trerritory is scheduled to reach the floor of the Board of Supervisors tomorrow.

According to a line-up tonight, Supervisor Suhr will present a resolution urging revision or amendment of the Raker Act under the terms of which the area is to be developed; Supervisor Havenner will ask for an investigation of the physical aspect of the problem by a Representative of the United States Senate; Supervisor Todd will move for a special committee to confer with government officials at a hearing scheduled for next month, and Supervisor Powers will ask authority of the board to enlist the services of the City Health Department in a movement to prevent what the Supervisors construe as the impending pollution of the water supply by the Federal contention that the watershed must be opened to visitors, campers and fishers.

Several of the Supervisors returned late Friday from a tour of the district, an annual junket, but with mixed emotions as the result of a conference with Stephen T. Mather, Superintendent of National Parks, and other Federal officials, at Yosemite. Having gone for the ostensible purpose of discussing the road improving and building program laid down by the Raker Act, they came away in high indignation because Supt. Mather insisted the district must be opened.

This brought from the Supervisors the assertion that such action will mean pollution of San Francisco's water supply. It was met by Mather with the answer that it will be necessary for San Francisco to filter and chlorinate the water under any conditions, so the National Park Service feels nothing will be gained by excluding campers and fishers from the territory.

SUPERVISOR AND SHERIFF FACE COURT

San Joaquin Officials to Be Arraigned Today on Charge of Taking Bribes

STOCKTON, July 8. (Exclusive) James Y. Coates, chairman of the San Joaquin County Board of Supervisors, will be arranged tomorrow morning before Superior Judge Buck to answer to an indictment charging him with acceptance of three separate bribes of $200 each. He and Sheriff Riecks were indicted jointly on charges of accepting bribes to protect a liquor ring, and after pleading not guilty a week ago their trial was set for August 2. Both are at liberty on $5000 bond each and both remain in office, having refused to resign.

The joint indictment against Riecks and Coates and the separate indictment against Coates were returned by the county grand jury on June 27. The day before the Sheriff was allegedly caught in the acceptance of $2100 in marked $100 bills proffered by a supposed bootlegger, who turned out to be a private detective. Coates was arrested on charges growing out of the same situation.

Both men have asserted their innocence and claimed the arrests and indictments were the climax of a political feud, Reicks alleging that he had been engaged in an effort to obtain the evidence against the man who paid the bribe money.

Coates is accused of having accepted $600 in bribes to induce him to cut down the budget for the District Attorney's office and hamper the latter in his investigation of liquor-law violators.

Debuchi to be Japan Envoy to United States

TOKIO, July 8. (AP)—Appointment of Katsuji Debuchi, Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs, as Ambassador at Washington has been decided upon, it was learned from reliable sources today. Tsuneo Matsudaira, present Ambassador who is in Japan for the wedding of his daughter to the heir-apparent, Prince Chichibu, probably will be named Ambassador to Great Britain, but this appointment still is pending.

The exact time for the changes to take effect has not been determined but neither will leave Japan until next autumn.

Sandino's Kin in Mexico City

MEXICO CITY, July 8. (AP)—Socrates Sandino, brother of the Nicaraguan rebel leader, and Gustave Machado, who recently visited Sandino's headquarters, arrived here today. Machado said he had considerable trouble in leaving Nicaragua via Honduras because of the strict vigilance maintained on the border.

Sandino said that if the marines supervise the Presidential elections in Nicaragua, his brother would not be bound by the outcome.

BULLSNAKE PLAYS PIED PIPER ROLE

DIMOCK (S. D.) July 8. (Exclusive)—George Haven, a farmer of this vicinity, was troubled by a pest of rats about his granary. He captured a bullsnake, fed it for several days until it became tame, then put it under the floor of the granary. The snake dispatched a large number of rats and the rest left in panic. Haven declares he will hereafter be sure that there are several bullsnakes about the place.

COOLIDGE IN HAUNTED DISTRICT

Mudji Manitou, Great Evil Spirit of Chippewas, Has His Domain Under Superior Bay Where He Thirsts and Hungers and Forever Troubles Waters

SUPERIOR (Wis.) July 8. (AP)—Close to the domain of Mudji Manitou, great evil spirit of the Chippewas, lies the route of President Coolidge from Cedar Island Lodge on the Brule to the executive offices here.

Mudji Manitou has his habitation under the water at the entrance of Superior Bay, where he is forever hungering and thirsting and troubling the waters. To the white man this disturbance is understandable because the outward current there meets the wind from the lake, but to the Indian it is the old black god, Mudji Manitou.

It was the habit of the Chippewas (water people) in former days to pacify the evil spirit, before passing out into the lake or going to battle, by dropping into the water kettles of choice meat, tobacco, pipes and rice. Mudji Manitou was forever hungry and his thrashing about on the bottom of the lake troubled the water and brought disaster to those who passed without seeking favor.

The food was weighted with rocks to insure its reaching the evil spirit and while he was busy eating the Chippewas believed they could slip safely into the lake. In times when food and tobacco were too scarce to share with Mudji Manitou, the Indians dared not use the entrance to the lake and instead they made a portage with their canoes at a narrow place across the Minnesota Point, a finger-like projection of land extending seven miles into the lake and forming the harbor.

As President Coolidge rides over this old Chippewa territory, he crosses the scene of many a fierce battle. The excursions of the prairie Sioux nations and the Chippewas into each other's territory were frequent and the encounters terrific, for both were powerful nations and brave and skilled fighters.

The Chippewas were at an advantage in the forests and usually were successful in enticing the Sioux into their region. It is related the Chippewas once captured 3000 Sioux on the site of the present city of Superior, between the St. Louis and the Nemadji rivers. An orgy of killing followed and from the occasion arose the name of the Chippewa for the Sioux, Bwanak, which means "those we roast on a spit."

As an illustration of how an Indian dies, the Chippewas still tell of the bravery of the old chief, Black Eagle.

Black Eagle was the center of attention after the battle, for his fame as a warrior was widespread. As the Chippewas danced about him, Black Eagle sat with his back to a tree, smeared his face with colored clay and began to chant the death song. Through the night, showing no sign of fear or suffering, the old warrior, a slow fire at his feet, continued to chant in spite of the torture until finally dispatched.

ENTOMOLOGY HAS D...AWBACKS

JEWEL CITY (Kan.) July 8. (Exclusive)—An attempt to imitate Fabree and study the ant proved disastrous for Jackie, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Barrett, near Jewell City. The ants got in most intimate study and swarmed all over him.

DATE OF GRANGE ASSEMBLY SET

Meeting to Open at Capital, November 14, Next

Session Expected to Be One of Most Important

Plans Announced by Taber, Organization Chief

WASHINGTON, July 8. (AP)—An announcement that the sixty-second annual meeting of the National Grange will convene in Washington November 14 to November 23, next, was made today by L. J. Taber, master of the Grange.

"The urgency of pending agricultural problems makes it certain," said Taber, "that this will be one of the most important national meetings the grange ever has held. Probably no period ever has presented a greater need for its services nor a greater challenge to effective service. With 1,000,000 members in thirty States, the National Grange is in a position of leadership, which carries with it heavy responsibilities at this time when agricultural policies are being formulated."

In addition to the discussions of legislative policies and the usual business sessions of the Grange, he added, an elaborate program of prominent speakers, entertainments, visits to historic points of interest and pageantry depicting outstanding events in the early life of the grange, is being arranged by Potomac Grange No. 1, assisted by the Maryland State Grange and the granges of Virginia.

JOHN D.'S HOME GOING TO CONEY

is identical with that of the new colonial wing of the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art, already the most popular wing of the whole museum. Or again, identical with the object of Henry Ford to educate the American people to their own heritage through preservation for posterity of homes of famous Americans.

"This particular birthplace of a distinguished American has an appeal all its own. Mr. Rockefeller entered life with so few creature comforts that the humblest of the visitors are bound to wonder how he could have achieved so greatly.

"Henry Ford says education by visualization is more effective than a whole library of books. My attempt to show to young America Rockefeller's birthplace as it was eighty-nine years ago also will present, I feel, a symbol of the opportunity offered by America's country life a century ago."

Mrs. Dennen hopes it will be unnecessary to charge a fee of admission to the house.

Hiram Odell, a boyhood friend of Rockefeller, writes that: "John was only a little lad when the family moved from Michigan Hill; but he was old enough to know something of the locality."

When John was 4 years of age, his father moved to Moravia, N. Y., where the family lived six years, then to Owego.

Since 1921 Mr. Rockefeller has made annual pilgrimages to each of these scenes of his boyhood. At the time of his last visit, a year ago, motion pictures were taken of him at his birthplace.

The house at Michigan Hill retains the dignity and spirit of a home. There is personality in the hand-carved lath, the hand-made wooden beams and the wooden pegs for holding the beams together. There is beauty born of the simplicity and economic limitations of the life into which John D. Rockefeller was born on July 8, 1839.

The building has been altered little. The attic lays bare to the human eye its beams, laths and floor boards, held together by square hand-made iron nails. The room below the attic in recent years has been used for a kitchen. When John D. Rockefeller was a baby that room was divided by a partition. The room comprising the eastern half of the present kitchen is labeled, "Rockefeller was born here."

The house is well preserved and readily can be moved intact, architects say.

JOHN D. GIVEN CAR BY FORD

Sedan Birthday Surprise Gift From Motor-Car Manufacturer

TARRYTOWN (N. Y.) July 8. (Exclusive) — Among the gifts received today by John D. Rockefeller on his eighty-ninth birthday was a Ford sedan from Henry Ford. The car arrived on Friday, last, and only John D., Jr., and head men of the estate knew of the gift.

When Mr. Rockefeller left his mansion this morning he inquired who owned the car, and when informed he went over and inspected it and on the wheel of the car was a personal greeting from Mr. Ford, the nature of which was not learned.

The day was another quiet one for Mr. Rockefeller. Due to the heat he made but nine holes of golf and then retired to the shade of his mansion.

SURVIVORS TELL OF SEA TRAGEDY

Only Four Believed to Have Escaped Death

Officials Reported Lost When Transport Sinks

about with such violence that they sank almost immediately.

"My companions and I were saved only because God is great. The only thing I remember is that after being thrown into the water I clutched a floating timber. A huge wave raised me thirty feet into the air and dashed me against a rock. I do not recall anything more because I lost consciousness. Then I found myself, stark naked, sprawled on the beach. I recall that I could but barely see the light of the ship.

CAPTAIN KILLS SELF

"In that moment I heard a sound as of a revolver shot which I think was caused by my commander, Capt. Squarez, shooting himself at his post on the bridge of the Angamos."

Another survivor is Andres Carrillo, a sailor. He cannot explain how he was saved.

"After being cast on the beach I looked for the ship but could see nothing," he said. "I think it had gone down already. I made my way to the nearest house, but when I knocked at the door the occupants did not wish to admit me, thinking me a tramp. It took me an hour to convince the housewife that I really needed assistance. After I had rested a bit we set out in search of other survivors and found three, all naked as was I."

The other survivors picked up by Carrillo are Aguila, Humberto Sepulveda and Humberto Diaz, all army conscripts.

WIRELESS APPEAL

At 10:40 o'clock Friday night the steamer Tarapaca intercepted weak wireless signals from the Angamos saying the transport was in difficulties. The message did not give the position of the Angamos and it is believed it was sent over a small set, the main sending apparatus probably having been put out of service by the storm.

The Tarapaca relayed the message immediately to the Chilean naval station at Talcahuano and the cruiser Zenteno, the destroyer Williams and the tender Elicura set out to the rescue. The tug Sibbald put to sea from Corral and the tug Yelcho from Puerto Mont.

Reports to the Ministry of Marine say that when the Zenteno and the Williams arrived at the scene of the disaster they found no trace of the Angamos or of survivors.

Official reports merely say it has been ascertained that the vessel, after losing its rudder in the storm, was cast on the rocks and pounded to pieces. The storm, which still continues, is of such intensity that it is impossible for ships to approach close to the coast.

The ship's purser, named Arancibia, his assistant, named Campos, Lieut. Perez, Avila and Romo and Midshipmen Plaza and Rodriguis, are some of those known to have been on the ship.

The Angamos was built in Scotland in 1890 for the Italian navy and originally was named Citta di Venuciia. During the Chilean revolution of 1891 she was acquired by the revolutionists.

It is reported that a large number of bodies have been picked up along the coast by Carabineros (national police.)

The naval authorities have ordered the steamers Lebu and Tome to proceed to the scene of the disaster with doctors, nurses and equipment to resuscitate or otherwise aid survivors if any are found. Naval and judicial authorities will go aboard these vessels.

DANGEROUS SPOT

At noon today no more survivors had been heard from and it is believed the four who reached shore on the night of the disaster are the only persons saved. In view of the violence of the storm it seems most improbable that any of the lifeboats could have remained afloat.

The Angamos, it is learned, had been loading material for the Navy in the Gulf of Arauco, and when the storm broke left the bay to ride out the tempest on the open sea.

Lieut. Alberto Perez Canto, first officer of the Angamos, who remained ashore when the ship set forth on its ill-omened trip, said the place where the ship was wrecked is the most dangerous spot on the Chilean coast.

PUBLIC FUNERAL WILL BE CONDUCTED

CONCEPCION (Chile) July 8. (AP) Public funeral services will be conducted here Tuesday for the victims of the Angamos disaster. The flags at the Provincial government building and the Consulates are at half mast.

A collection has been started for the families of the victims.

It is reported that several government officials with their families were aboard the Angamos en route from Punta Arena to northern points.

MANCHURIAN BANDIT BAND RAIDS TRAIN

Four Foreigners Killed, Forty Held for Ransom; Victims Mostly Russians

HARBIN (Manchuria) July 8. (AP) Four passengers were killed, seven wounded and forty, including twenty-five women, were dragged to the mountains for ransom when bandits attacked a fast train at Pogranitchinaya on the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Most of those killed and captured were Russians. It is not known whether any other foreigners were involved.

Authorities declare White Russians made up the attacking band. The soviet press fears that the incident will complicate Russo-Japanese relations.

DIVORCE MILL UNDER FIRE

Paris to Halt Band Giving Americans Quick Service; Lawyers and Court Attaches Face Punishment

PARIS, July 8. (AP)—Easy American divorces in Paris have been the subject of a quiet investigation by the Ministry of Justice with the result that a least four officials and a number of lawyers are facing disciplinary action.

Just what form this action will take will be decided at a conference tomorrow between the Minister of Justice, Louis Barthou, and the public prosecutor, but it is taken for granted that the reins of the law, already drawn pretty tight where American divorces are concerned, will be tightened further.

According to reports given wide circulation in the press eight lawyers, three process servers and one court clerk were implicated in what the newspapers call the "American quick-divorce mill." It is charged that the "mill," for high financial considerations, arranged falsification of record, provided fictitious domiciles and eliminated certain tedious and delaying legal formalities.

Three of the lawyers involved are said already to have resigned from the bar, and the Bar Association has asked that the others submit their resignations before tomorrow's conference. The irregularities came to light when it was noticed that many divorce cases involving Americans were filed in one particular court and through a certain clerk. The proceedings were investigated and serious irregularities were discovered.

Neither the attorneys nor process servers are punishable in the criminal courts, the first being responsible only to the Bar Association and the process servers being liable only to disciplinary action. The clerk is subject to prosecution for malfeasance.

RAINSTORMS END HOT SPELL

Eastern Montana and Northwestern North Dakota, the rainfall was described as heavy to excessive.

The storms are moving slowly eastward to Chicago and the other sweltering cities along the Great Lakes. The prediction is for thunder showers here tomorrow.

The highest mark reached at the weather-bureau station here was 91 deg., one notch less than the official maximum of Saturday. Three deaths were attributed in part to the heat. These, with the Saturday death toll, made a total of eleven. Two drownings also were reported.

Dixon, Jacksonville and Springfield and Peoria, Ill., received rains and there were sharp drops in temperature. The thermometer showed a fall of 14 deg. in an hour at Jacksonville.

It is estimated that a total of thirty deaths was caused in the Midwest by the heat wave. Besides those in the Chicago area there were three in Detroit, five in Milwaukee, five in Kansas City and three down-State in Illinois.

It was estimated that something like 200,000 residents of Chicago changed to their bathing suits and waded into Lake Michigan to cool off.

Possibly 500,000 more men, women and children took to the highways in automobiles.

Lifeguards at the Rainbow Beach here, saved twelve persons who called on them for aid.

SCORES FAINT IN CRUSH

Nearly 70,000 men, women and children gathered at the Jackson Park Beach this afternoon and formed a crowd so dense that temperature and pressure combined to cause the fainting of 256 persons.

In the crush Gerald Eastham, 14, was hurled to the sand and trampled on. His skull was fractured. At the emergency hospital set up by the water's edge 300 persons were treated for cuts, bruises and other minor injuries.

One of the unfortunate effects of the weather was a series of dog bites, eleven persons reporting as having been bitten by the animals. In each instance the victim was given treatment to prevent rabies.

EAST ALSO SWELTERS WITH MANY AFFECTED

NEW YORK, July 8. (Exclusive) New York and its environs sweltered under the hottest day of the year today, the temperature reaching a season's high record of 91 deg. at 3 p.m. The exodus of city dwellers to beach resorts on Long Island and North Jersey was greater even than on the 4th inst.

Three deaths from the heat were reported in the city and police and ambulance surgeons revived many persons who were affected. Drownings in this region numbered seventeen, bringing the heat wave's total toll to twenty.

Traffic by train, subway and elevated systems and automobile from the city during the morning hours and homeward bound after sunset was the heaviest of the year.

Thousands of persons elected to stay at the beaches and sleep on the sands during the night and extra police were detailed at Coney Island and other resorts to guard the sleepers.

It was estimated that more than 1,000,000 persons were in bathing suits at different resorts the great majority at some time or another taking dips in the ocean or in the quieter waters of the various salt-water pools along the beach fronts.

A conservative estimate of the crowd that left the city for the day, compiled by captains of police precincts, resort and subway traffic inspectors, was between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000.

and fastened the ends, and there was a canoe. These craft are lighter than dugouts and more quickly made.

During the building of the canoes the insects almost ate us alive. We all worked strenuously but are well and in good spirits.

From the first camp on the Kulisevu to this place there were numerous rapids. Fallen trees obstructed our passage and low water made the going additionally slower.

I plan to build more canoes when we make further progress downstream.

We expect to reach the camp of our Indian friends within six or seven days. My next dispatch will be radioed from that point. If our expectations are fulfilled it should contain important news of Col. Fawcett.

where the plane landed after it was discovered that Capt. Loewenstein was missing, said they reached the aircraft before its propeller stopped turning and that it would have been impossible for the financier to alight and escape without their notice. They declared that if a hoax were committed, it was not on French soil.

It is learned here that memorial services for Capt. Loewenstein, arrangements for which were canceled yesterday, finally will be conducted Wednesday morning at the Church of St. Michel and S. Gudule at Brussels.

Individuals to Decide on Work

NEW BEDFORD (Mass.) July 8. (AP)—Employees of twenty-seven textile corporations in this city, numbering about 29,000 will determine individually tomorrow morning whether a strike they have maintained for twelve weeks will continue or a 10 per cent wage reduction be accepted and work resumed. About 10,000 of the striking employees are members of labor unions.

The mills, which were closed a few days after the strike began on April 6, crippling the chief industry of the city, will be opened at 6:45 a.m. and all operators have been invited by mill officials to return to work under the revised wage scale.

To cope with possible disturbances arising out of picket activities, which the striking employees intend to carry on intensively, 400 city police and 158 National Guardsmen were mobilized today.

Trans-Pacific Hops Called Off

TOKIO, July 8. (AP)—All projected trans-Pacific flights for 1928 have been called off by the executive committee of the Imperial Aviation Society.

Present inability to build planes that would reasonably be expected to stand up under the hazardous venture is given as the reason.

They represent less than 4 per cent of the canning crop, it is said, and would make little difference in the total pack, provided other co-operatives and independent growers join with the association in accepting the canners' agreement of a 25 per cent reduction.

A grave danger exists, it was admitted, that the other co-operatives and independents may side with the insurgent Sutter group, which might throw the entire industry into a hopeless deadlock, as such a combine would represent 50 per cent of the crop. Canners would hardly dare refuse to deal with such a large group, it is intimated, for fear of forcing additional co-operative canneries into the field. A meeting of the Canners' League probably will be called tomorrow to consider the Sutter Co-operative's stand, although Preston McKinney, vice-president and secretary of the league, could not be reached tonight to verify the reported meeting.

CREAM AS EXPLOSIVE

JENNINGS (La.) July 8. (Exclusive)—Edward Simon claims the distinction of being the victim of the most unique accident in the annals of Jeff Davis parish. While opening a five-gallon can of sour cream at a local dairy the gas which had formed in the airtight container forced the lid off with considerable force.

STOWAWAY PUP NEARLY STARVED AFTER TWO WEEKS OF TRAVEL

SPOKANE, July 8. (AP)—Fifteen days ago a freight car loaded with automobiles was sealed in Detroit. Yesterday the car was opened here. Sitting in the front seat of one of the cars, lean and gaunt, apparently having lived without food or water during the entire trip, a little dog was found by workmen.

The pup, said to be a descendant of a fox terrier and other breeds of dogs, offered no resistance when he was picked up by one of the workmen. He couldn't even growl an appreciation of their kindness, for he was too weak, they said.

A look of appeal, about all that was left of him, touched the heart of the boss, and the dog was taken to the show rooms of Riegel Brothers, distributors of the cars being unloaded. There he was fed and admired by kindly employees.

When he regains his strength officers of the company say he will be kept as an omen of good luck and a mascot of the firm.

Girls Identify Assailants Who Stripped Them

BATTLE CREEK (Mich.) July 8. (Exclusive)—Henry Radabaugh, 36 years of age, an exconvict, and Lee Marsh, 23, have been identified as the bandits who robbed and then stripped of their clothing two pretty Battle Creek girls after robbing and driving away their escorts.

The girls, May Bennett, 21, and Verna Wood, 18 picked them out of a bunch of men without hesitation. Later Roger Nicely, 24, driver of the car the bandits stole, identified both men, as did Floyd Elliott, the other member of the party. The prisoners admit being on the river road, but say they were drunk. The automobile owned by Radabaugh has been identified as the one used in the robbery.

The girls after being stripped of their clothing ran into the woods to hide and remained there until daylight before walking home in what they could find of their attire. Radabaugh owns an antique shop and gasoline station at Springfield Place and Marsh is employed by the Clark Truc-Tractor Company. The men are held under bonds of $10,000, which they have been unable to furnish.

Series to Be Given Both In North and Here

Vital Education Problems to Be Discussed

BERKELEY, July 8. (AP)—With a view of aiding educators and employers in the solution of vital problems in vocational education, a series of conferences and forums will be opened tomorrow morning at the University of California.

The conferences will be conducted by the University of California division of vocational education, in co-operation with the State Department of Education, and will be concluded the 20th inst. Immediately following, beginning the 23rd inst., and extending to August 3, the conferences will be conducted at Los Angeles.

The conferences, the schedule announces, are for educators and employers who desire to attend either the entire two-week period, or only a few days in the study of a particular phase of vocational education.

CASUALTIES REPORTED IN RUSSIAN JAIL BLAST

BERLIN, July 8. (Exclusive)—Berlin hears from the most reliable source at Moscow that many were killed or wounded when a bomb was thrown at Lubianka jail, where the victims of the Donetz Basin sabotage trial are imprisoned. After doctors were rushed to Lubianka, a heavy cordon of police was thrown around it. The town was entirely cut off from communication to prevent news of the disaster from spreading.

The features that make this performance a fact will interest anyone considering light duty equipment.

Have you written your letter?

SOON 20 substantial cash prizes will be awarded in this simple and interesting contest. What better way to spend this evening than in trying for one of the big awards? Time's getting short.

Just tell us, in not over 200 words, why you like or dislike the delivery service of any local firm you know. Tell about the care they take, promptness, vehicles, drivers—any or all of these things. Give firm names, actual instances, real details. Letters will not be published. Grammar and fine writing will not count. Keen observation, and logical conclusions, will count.

First prize will be $2,000; 2nd, $1,000; 3rd, $500; 4th and 5th, $250 each; 6th to 10th inclusive, $100 each; 11th to 20th inclusive, $50 each.

In case of ties, full amounts of prizes tied for will be awarded each tying contestant.

Everybody, everywhere is eligible—except employes of The General Motors Truck Company and its dealers. Judges will be three men prominent in the automotive industry not connected with this Company.

These are the only rules. You have, literally, as good a chance of winning as anyone has. And these prizes are worth going after. The contest closes at midnight, July 31, 1928. Letters must be mailed by that hour. Address them only to General Motors Truck Co., 527 South Blvd., Pontiac, Mich.

The New-Voes Have Discovered Their Ancestors

The New-Voes have discovered their ancestors.

At least, they've hired some one who says that he has.

And they insist upon telling you the whole history of the family.

Of course, the whole history goes back several generations.

But it's all so interesting.

And so full of romance.

It sounds just like a fairy story.

Although it's very much more beautiful.

And many times more wonderful.

All their ancestors were such nice people.

And so delightfully simple.

In fact, much simpler than the New-Voes.

And they lived simply, too.

And did simple things.

So now the New-Voes have a crest.

And a very magnificent crest it is.

Diamond rampant on a field of sapphires, set off by rubies and emeralds!

They designed it themselves.

It's a pity their ancestors can't see it.

Anyway, they've discovered them.

At least, they've hired some one who says that he has.

ONLY TEAM OF SUPERMEN CAN WIN OVER UNITED STATES IN OLYMPIC GAMES, SAYS EXPERT

[Copyright, 1928, by North American Newspaper Alliance.]

BOSTON, July 8. — One thing which the result of the final Olympic tryouts assrues us is that we are send i n g a team of champions to Amsterdam and that, in practically every event, it will take supermen to beat us. T h e United States will be represented by t h e greatest athletes it ever has assembled in a single group.

When y o u consider t h e world's records, the Olympic records, the college records which were tied or broken, it becomes clear that the meet in the Harvard Stadium closely followed Mr. Darwin's theory and that the fittest survived. Luck, nerves, a slight cold or a pulled tendon may here and there have worked a hardship, but in the main the boys ran, jumped, heaved and hurdled pretty true to form.

The winners couldn't get by on one good heat. They had to go through a fire of competition which burned away all except the true metal. Every man and boy who will take that boat on Wednesday is a great performer. If they are beaten, none of us will have any excuses to make.

DREAM TO BEAT US

It is the dream of every foreign team to beat the Americans. Ours are the men they will watch. Their skill, power, speed and strategy will be directed at our defeat. Not that they have anything against us, but merely that we have happened to have such teams at other Olympics that to win from these teams would mean the greatest glory. And, fine as we know our squad to be, we also know that other countries have advanced to the stage where these Olympics are likely to be a struggle all the way.

In a sense, it will be every man's hand against us. Up to and including the 800-meter run, our chief opponents should be Germany and England. Wykoff and Borah are two of the smoothest, most beautiful running machines I ever have seen. McAllister, Russell, Bracey, Cummings, Quinn and Scholz give me a mixture of youth and manhood, speed and experience hard to equal. Paddock has great legs under him and a great heart in him—we hope nothing prevents his competing; but other countries, lacking our quantity, have quality almost as great.

Legg is the greatest sprinter to come out of South Africa since Reggie Walker left his rivals behind in the games of 1908. Kornig, Houben and Wichman are among the first fruits of Germany's scheme of intensive and universal athletic training, and they are peaches.

In the 400-meter we can bank on Barbuti, Snider, Phillips, Tierney and Spencer, but Lowe and Rinkel of England and Buchner of Germany are good. Lowe should be better at 800 meters, a race in which Peltzer and Englehart of Germany also should play a part. To throw against them we have a champion from Nebraska, famous on either side of the ocean, Lloyd Hahn. Fuller, Watson and Sittig are in there, too, and good men they are, but Hahn is the best we have and America hopes and believes that he will prove himself greater than the greatest.

MAY RUN 1500 METERS

Hahn may also run 1500 meters. Here is where the Finns enter the picture; also a flying Swede. Nurmi, Berg, Larva, Wide—those are names to conjure. We have Conger and Robinson, Carter and Martin and they are swift and courageous; but again Hahn appears to be our hope.

As an ordinary thing it would appear that trying to finish in front of those Finns and that Swede would be about as hopeful as the letter "x" trying to come before "a" in the alphabet; but that is just the point. We know how fast those foreign flyers have gone, but we don't know just how fast Hahn can go when he is pushed to his limit. It will be plenty fast.

Nurmi, Wide and Ekiof are all fast enough to take the 5000-meter unless Leo Lermond, Smith and Abbott show speed they never before displayed; but if Joie Ray runs the 10,000 meter, as well as the marathon, Ritola and the rest of them are going to find themselves in a race. Nobody has Joie laid away in lavender until the finish line is crossed. So it will be in the marathon. Ray firmly believes that he can win it and, if courage and confidence count for enough, he can.

SUPREME IN HURDLES

America should take the hurdles. Anyone who in the past few days has seen Taylor, Cuhel, Gibson, Anderson, Collier, Dye, Nichols and the others clear the sticks is not even worried by such promised opposition as that sure to be furnished by Atkinson of South Africa, Petterson of Sweden, Paccelli of Italy or Burghley of England—and a grand fellow is Lord Davey, win or lose.

Vahlstedt of Finland has tossed the shot almost forty-nine feet. Bless your heart, we have four men who can heave it over fifty. Vahlstedt also can high jump about 6ft. 1in. With King, McGinnis, Osborn, Hedges, Menard of France and some other in there, that should get the Finnish hopper about eighth place. Twenty

SPRINT STAR'S AMATEUR STANDING UNDER FIRE

Angeleno's Status Challenged by A.A.U. Because of His Work Done in Moving Pictures

BY BILL HENRY
(Times Staff Representative)

NEW YORK, July 8.—With the announcement tonight of a list of eighty-two entries and one alternate for the United States 1928 Olympic track and field team it became very apparent that Mr. Charles William Paddock of Los Angeles, to use the expressive language of the gunmen, has been "taken for a ride."

Charley's name was included on the list of American entries in the 200-meter event, but a supplementary written statement and an additional verbal statement by Secretary Rubien of the Olympic committee, made it perfectly clear that Paddock is not to represent the United States on his third Olympic team.

Mr. Rubien's official statement, the exact text of which is appended, says that Paddock's name is included on the list, but that his status as an amateur is challenged by the A.A.U. track and field committee and by the American Olympic selection committee, and Roland Locke is being taken along as an alternate.

The big point, however, is contained in Mr. Rubien's verbal statement in which he said that Paddock's amateur standing, having been challenged, he is under a cloud, and unless he can prove himself innocent and that unless he is cleared by the A.A.U. previous to the final date for filing entries, his name will be scratched and Locke's substituted.

Here are the facts:

There are no new charges against

SERAPHS DROP TWO MORE

Sacramento Annexes Opener, 11 to 8, in Eleventh and Then Wins Nightcap, 3 to 1, in Eighth Frame

BY BOB RAY

Marty Krug's rapidly sinking Seraphs were given a couple more shoves downward yesterday at Wrigley Field where Buddy Ryan's socking Solons carried off both games of the Sabbath doubleheader by scores of 11 to 8 and 3 to 1. The Angels forced the Sacs to go extra rounds to win both clashes, but if you can get any consolation out of that you're welcome to it.

The double victory of the Senators moved them up into a tie for first place with Hollywood, while the Cherubs fell back into a tie for last place with what the Stars left of the Portland Beavers. Sacramento carried off the series by winning six of the eight games.

For the Angels to lose that first game was nothing less than something which should be talked about in low whispers, like f'instance, sister Mary's elopment with the traveling salesman. At one time the Krugmen held a 6-to-0 lead, but then Wilbert Peters blew up and when Barfoot came to his rescue in the sixth the Sacs had scored five runs. To make matters worse, Staley made an error in the ninth that allowed the Solons to tie the score and then win out.

Barfoot was bumped for two runs in the tenth, but the Angels put an a rally that once more knotted the count and gave Barfoot another chance. However, Clyde immediately got in another jam and, with the

SWEDES AND FINNS ARE CHIEF OLYMPIC THREATS

STOCKHOLM (Sweden) July 8. (AP)—Olympic tryouts at Stockholm and Helsingfors, Finland, over the week-end revealed that the Swedes and the Finns are going to make it tough for the rest of the world in the Olympic track and field championships at Amsterdam this summer. Sten Petterson, the hurdler, was the star of the Swedish trials at Stockholm. Petterson skimmed over the 400-meter barriers in 53.9s.; a tenth of a second slower than his own listed world's record. Petterson then ran the 110-meter hurdles in 14.8s., tying the listed world's record.

Edwin Wide, slowly rounding into form, ran the 5000 meters in 14m. 55s., far behind Paavo Nurmi's world record of 14m. 28.2s.

New Swedish records were established in the javelin by Lundquist and in the pole vault by Lindblad. Lundquist hurled the javelin 66.98 meters (219ft. 9in.) and Lindblad cleared 3.92 meters (12ft. 10 1-4in.)

At Helsingfors in the Finnish tryouts, the defeat of Nurmi in the 1500-meter run was the chief sensation. Nurmi finished third behind Lagerstroem and Boro. Lagerstroem won easily and equalled the listed world's record for the distance of 3m. 52.6s. Willie Ritola, great long-distance runner, romped away with the 10,000-meters run in 30m. 59.9s. In the running hop, step and jump Tuulos broke the world's record when he covered 51ft. 1 1-4in. The listed mark of 50ft. 11 5-16in. was set in 1924 by A. W. Winter of Australia.

Stedt set a new Finnish record for the 110-meter hurdles, which he covered in 15.5s. Mattila ran the 100 meters in 10.9s and Liewendasl the 800 in 1m. 58.6s. Salminen ran the 5000 meters in the slow time of 15m. 11.6s., and Matianinen the 400 meters in 50.7s. Yrjola tossed the discus 137ft. 8 33-64in.

EICHELBERGER DEFEATS SANGSTER FOR GOLF TITLE

BY FRANK ROCHE

Harry (Bud) Eichelberger, a fair-haired golfing giant from the Los Angeles Country Club locker rooms, is the proud possessor this morning of the Southern California Golf Association's junior championship. Eichelberger cinched his claim to the champions h i p yesterday at the Bel-Air Country Club w h e n he defeated young Danny Sangster, Potrero's boy links star, with a brilliant brand of golf in the final round of the junior tournament. Eichelberger, an 18-year-old youngster, who stands over six feet in his stockings and weighs in the neighborhood of 190 pounds, simply snowed Sangster under with his golf yesterday, winning the title on the thirty-third green of a scheduled thirty-six-hole match by a 4-and-3 margin.

Eichelberger's golf yesterday sparkled with brilliance during the afternoon round. Sangster, who was the runner-up in the tournament last year, wa sthe favorite at the start of the match, but after the first nine holes had been played Eichelberger took command and Danny never had a chance to get his hands on the championship. Danny played his best golf on the opening nine holes of the match and then blew up while Eichelberger toured the course with his powerful golf in par figures. When they reached

Bobby Seller and Neil Brown Beat Ruscher and Woodall to Win Coast Doubles

NORTHERN RULE STILL INTACT

San Franciscans Take Crown in Straight Sets

Ellsworth Vines Captures Singles Championship

Mrs. Bundy Victorious Over Gladys Patz

The northern dynasty is still in power. Southern California made its perennial revolt against the reigning tennis house of the State yesterday and, as usual, the insurrection was promptly and firmly stamped out. Bobby Seller and Neil Brown of San Francisco won the Pacific Coast doubles championship at the Los Angeles Tennis Club, turning back the challenge of Ed Woodall and Jimmy Ruscher, local players, in straight sets. The scores were 6-1, 9-7, 6-4.

Seller and Brown keep the large silver trophy, emblematic of the Coast doubles championship, in San Francisco, which makes the folks in the vicinity of the Golden Gate happy. In their victory, the boys likewise wrote themselves a pair of railroad tickets to Boston, where the national doubles championships will be held. They will be sent East by the California Lawn Tennis Association, to represent the Far West in the national tournament.

Along with the awarding of the doubles diadem, champions were crowned in two other events, which in scope and importance, are far less noteworthy. Mrs. May Sutton Bundy won the women's singles and Elsworth Vines, stellar Pasadena junior, took unto himself the men's singles championship, both divisions being held in conjunction with the Pacific Coast doubles. Mrs. Bundy overwhelmed Gladys Patz, 6-3, 6-0, while Vines conquered Ed Woodall, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4.

ONE BIG CHANCE

For a single moment it seemed that Woodall and Ruscher might repeat their stubborn defense of Saturday and force the match into five sets yesterday. Seller and Brown had swept through the first set with the loss of but one game. If Woodall and Ruscher had been able to take the second, they would undoubtedly have had better than an even break for the match. The greatest handicap faced by the southerners was the psychological fact that they were up against a pair of seasoned veterans. A victory in one set would have given them confidence.

It was that realization of their own power, coming when they won the second and third sets, that had made them so formidable against Phil Neer and Wally Bates in the semi-finals on Saturday. Had they been victorious in one skirmish yesterday, it would have turned into a major engagement instead of a rout.

Ruscher and Woodall had a 5-1 lead at one time during the second set and it looked as though they would square the match. They they underwent the agonizing experience of seeing that long margin slowly eaten away, themselves seemingly powerless to check the desperate rush of the northerners. With the match at 5-all, Woodall won his service and started things again. But Brown took his service game at love. After a hard deuce-game, the boys from the north broke through and took Ruscher's service game and the match was over right then. Seller took the sixteenth game and the second set at 9-7.

In the last set, the resistance of the southerners seemed broken. Six games went to service. Woodall lost his service on the seventh, and Brown took his on the eighth, making it 5-3. Ruscher rallied the losing cause with a love game, but Seller came back in the tenth to end it all.

NOT AS GOOD

Woodall and Ruscher didn't look as efficient as they did in their victory over Neer and Bates on Saturday. Their team-play was sloppy and they seemed to have lost the brilliance of their net play. Seller and Brown played their usual steady, powerful game. Seller's service cracked in the second set, and was one of the contributing factors in the near victory that the southerners scored in that set. Brown drove, volleyed and served like a champion. He was the best of the four on the court.

Woodall was badly tired when he went into the courts against young Ellsworth Vines of Pasadena, in the finals of the men's singles. Vines won, and probably would have won in any case, although the difference between his game and Woodall's isn't much larger than a gnat's eyebrow. The scores, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4, demonstrate what a battle the Alhambran put up. But he lost many a point simply because he was too tired to make the effort to get it.

The match was a great one for the gallery. Both players shunned the net almost entirely and made it a battle from the backcourt. There were long rallies of splendid fore and backhand drives that often lasted nearly a minute, and beautiful volley shots. Both were very steady. Vines drove harder and was uncannily accurate in the corners and side lines. It was like hitting 'em against a brick wall to play to Woodall, however. They almost always came back. Woodall won the first set, but the effort sapped his last reserve of energy and the remaining two sets were Vines's easily.

Mrs. May Sutton Bundy proved that she is still one of the best women tennis players in the West and that she can still lick most of the younger generation, in her victory over Gladys Patz. The scores were 6-2, 6-0, and the match, although tougher than it sounds, was, nevertheless, entirely dominated by Mrs. Bundy. The extreme steadiness of Miss Patz was practically unavailing against the smashing shots and air-tight defense of Mrs. Bundy. The scores:

TAYLOR AND VACCA DOWN TO WEIGHT FOR OLYMPIC SCRAP

Bud Taylor and Johnny Vacca were down to weight when they finished training yesterday. The articles call for 123 pounds but both may be lighter due to the intensive heat of the past week.

Taylor rules at least a 10-to-8 favorite—more in some spots. The blond Terre Haute boy has been a consistent winner in his California bouts, losing but one decision.

Joey Sangor outstepped him here several months ago, but the picking was close even then. The greatest thing that can be said of Taylor is that he always gives the fans a run for their money. No matter how much his opposition spurts the more Taylor spurts.

Taylor is being kept busy. After the Vacca bout he goes to San Francisco to meet Santiago Zorilla in a rematch either the 20th or the 27th inst.

He then comes back to Los Angeles for the "natural" with Fidel La Barba. The weight for the La Barba bout is 122 pounds.

In the meantime, La Barba is to box Huerta Evans on the 17th inst. Evans is a youngster of 18. He has not yet been featured on top of the bill, but he has done so well as a semifinalist his handlers believe he has a great chance with Fidel.

Billy DeFoe and Sailor Kosky meet in the Olympic semi-wind-up Tuesday night.

Baby Sal Sorio, the star Mexican youngster, has signed to box Joey Sangor in the Doyle arena the 24th inst. Sangor will arrive here this week from Milwaukee.

Sal, like Evans, is meeting a top-notcher. There is much interest in both these duels.

trip drives by Blaeholder and Lazzeri found the bases empty.

Alvin Crowder turned in his ninth successive victory against no defeats in the opener, as young Henry Johnson succumbed to a six-run St. Louis rally in the second inning. The defeat was charged to Johnson.

Kress and Blue batted in six of the St. Louis runs in this game, while Heinie Manush jumped into the spotlight with some smart fielding, particularly his catch of Al Shealy's possible homer.

The drive put the Babe nineteen games, eighteen days and five home runs ahead of his pace in 1927 when he hit sixty to top his own world record by one. On this date last year he had twenty-seven homers, and he got his thirty-second and thirty-third in the same game off Milton Gaston of the Browns at the Yankee Stadium on the July 26. The was game No. 95 of 1927, won by the Yanks, 15 to 1. The second clash today was No. 76. The score:

GAMES SKETCH BY FEG MURRAY

and Mercurys to a foreign land in a great cause, but you also stimulate clean living, physical efficiency and preparedness for the defense and progress of your country.

Athletic supremacy in this, the greatest of all contests, is not only object of this crusade to Amsterdam. It gives to each and every team member the wonderful opportunity of representing his country abroad at a great "international gathering, through which differences of thought and action may be more readily understood and adjusted than upon the field of battle or behind the closed doors of diplomatic conferences."

For those of you who want to know what is done with all the money contributed, let me say that the Olympic committee feels that it is in duty bound to pay the expenses of the athletes to their homes upon the return of the President Roosevelt from Amsterdam. This will cost approximately $25,000. The hire of the boat is $210,000; uniforms and equipment for the team, $25,000; maintenance and expenses in Europe, $15,000, and publication of the final report and administrative expenses, $25,000. This totals $300,000.

Money is still needed. It is not too late to do your bit. Come across and help send the team across.

JUNIOR CHAMPS SET FOR TILTS

Southland Youngsters Arrive at Atlantic City

Olympic Finals Will Be Held Wednesday Afternoon

Coaches Keep Boys in Shape for Crucial Tests

BY BILL HENRY
"Times" Staff Representative

ATLANTIC CITY (N. J.) July 8. Among the first of the country's boy athletes to arrive here for the National Junior Olympic finals which will be held Wednesday were the boys from Southern California, Jerry Deal of Los Angeles, Johnny Falcon of Azusa and Rex Heap and Mike Pina of San Bernardino. They were accompanied by their coaches, A. A. Dietz of Los Angeles J. C. Friar of Azusa and Joe Colley of San Bernardino in whose charge they have been on the trip.

The Southern California youngsters look well and acted on their arrival as though they felt the same way. They have had a great sightseeing trip since winning their titles, having traveled clear across the continent to Boston with the great track-and-field team of the Los Angeles A. C. which won the national team championship on Saturday.

Strict training has been followed by the youngsters on their trip, however. They have carefully watched and they have had hard workouts indoors and outdoors every day under the supervision of their coaches. As a result the boys are in shape to put up the performances of their lives on Wednesday.

It was expected that two more Southern California boys from San Diego would arrive here late tonight which would complete the half-dozen Southern Californians who will compete in the finals against scores of champions from other parts of the United States. The Southern California boys have made records that compare favorably with those made in other parts of the country and if the trip has not taken the edge off their skill they will make a strong showing.

In the javelin it looks as if such men as Pentellier of Finland, Lay of New Zealand and Lindstrom of Sweden, if he is still around, might be too good for us. Still, Hines and the other spear heavers might make one great effort and do better than their best.

I know this about our team. There isn't a man on it, from the 18-year-old schoolboys to the veterans, who is not a competitor. No one without plenty of heart, stamina and ability could have won his place.

But what the other nations have, none of us know. Our athletics are so run that no good man can stay under cover long, but across the water things are in a stage of rapid development and change almost from day to day. Men of might, champions, may show up at Amsterdam whose very names will be new.

If any of these unknowns expect to scratch their names deeply on fame's golden scroll, they had better sharpen their spikes. At these Olympic exercises it is going to take a champion of champions to win.

ONLY TEAM OF SUPERMEN CAN WIN OVER UNITED STATES IN OLYMPIC GAMES, SAYS EXPERT

men cleared the bar at 6ft. in the stadium yesterday.

Deboer of Holland can go over twenty-four feet in the broad jump, which might get him somewhere—and might not. Hamm can jump close to twenty-six feet, and so can Hubbard if his ankle recovers.

The pole vault looks like a gift. Carr, Barnes, Droegemuller and McGinnis should make this a closed event. Perhaps they would let them take it to Switzerland where the boys could practice vaulting the Alps and get a little variety into the event.

The Finns, Swedes and Germans are likely to show up with some husky discus throwers, but our own plate skimmers are not so poor. All Houser is likely to do when he feels like it is to break a world's record, and Weicker, Corson and Anderson shouldn't be far behind him. It is strange that Krenz didn't do better in this event, but he told me on Friday morning that he didn't feel at all fit. Eric is a great discus thrower when he is right.

Oaks Divide Double Bill With Seals

SAN FRANCISCO, July 8. (AP)—San Francisco won the morning game 7 to 6 and Oakland the afternoon contest, 9 to 4, in today's double-header here.

The results gave the Seals the eight-game series five games to three.

The Oaks drove Walter Mails from the box in the afternoon game. His last play was to force in a run by walking a batter with the bases full. Daglia blanked the Seals for eight innings, but they rallied in the ninth, made four runs, and filled the bases with two out. The fans called on Hollis Thurston for a home run, but he rolled one to Lury and the game was over. Scores:

Government Examinations Indicate Lack of Men

Army General Says Plan for Replacements Needed

Radio Control Suggested as Separate Service

BY DR. RALPH L. POWER

Although there seems to be no shortage of radio operators in Southern California, judging from the government examinations last week and at other times, there might be in times of war.

The army's lack of reserve of trained radio and other communication experts would become a perilous handicap to the success of operations, Maj.-Gen. G. S. Gibbs, chief signal officer, has informed officers of the Army War College.

"No replacement system has been provided that insures a continuity of the highly skilled operators and mechanicians required for the operation of the more complicated forms of communications equipment," Gen. Gibbs said.

"Many regiments have succeeded in training a radio operator for each radio set with which they are equipped. A few sets have two competent operators. In some units the training has reached a high state while in others the reverse is to be found.

"Whatever may be the status of peace-time training of the few key individuals for the most difficult technical tasks, there are no trained men to take the places of the one or two men in each unit."

Rapid transportation and the element of surprise are essential factors in the movements of large masses and in the concentration of troops at the point of attack and only by the speedy transmission of information can commanders of large units keep themselves cognizant of the situation, army officials say.

Gen. Gibbs advocates single control and management for any communication system with all of its stations interconnected. The personnel should belong to a single branch of the army, having a functional replacement system extending from its base training reservoir to the most advanced unit of the general system so that replacement is practically automatic, he contends.

FLYERS' RECEPTION TO BE ON AIR FROM NORTH

RADIO SERVICE FOR FERRY SHIPS

WASHINGTON, July 8. (Exclusive)—Radio telephone service is proposed in the international ferries plying between Denmark and Germany. Installation of the radio telephone equipment is looked for in the near future. Experiments with the equipment have been reported as fairly successful.

RADIO MEN GATHER TODAY

Ray Thomas, Southern California distributor for Atwater Kent, has announced the annual dealers' convention for today in the Elks' Temple. The luncheon is scheduled for 12:30, the banquet at 6 p.m. and the vaudeville frolic program thereafter. There will be morning and afternoon sessions for the merchants.

SAY IT WITH FRANCS SAYS FRENCH STATION

LILLE (France) July 8.—"If you like the concert and think it's worth it, send us a franc," (4 cents,) is the message of the Lille radio station. The promoters do not think it fitting that announcements of articles and shopping news should be sandwiched in between masterpieces of the world's music and, to avoid an appeal for advertising revenue, they prefer to go straight to the listener.

CLARK ENDS SOLE SUPPORT

Philharmonic Backer Invites Public to Assume Major Share in Orchestra's Maintenance

Will Los Angeles have its Philharmonic Orchestra when the current season closes in April, 1929? This is the question that is being asked in music circles as a result of the announcement made by William A. Clark, backer of the orchestra, through his attorney, Edward D. Lyman, in letters to the members of the Philharmonic board of directors stating that after the present season he will withdraw as sole financial supporter of the world-known musical organization.

Mr. Clark, believing that the time has arrived when the general public should assume part of the responsibility in financing the orchestra, has offered to subscribe the sum of $50,000 annually for five years as a nucleus for a public subscription fund, Mr. Lyman declared.

"If Los Angeles is to be assured of its orchestra after our tenth season closes in April, plans for financing it will have to be formulated in the near future, as all contracts, including the lease of the Philharmonic Auditorium and the contracts of the orchestra members terminate in April," George Leslie Smith, associate manager of the Philharmonic, declared last evening. Discussing the several plans for financing the Philharmonic, which costs about $300,000 annually, Mr. Smith said he does not think it feasible to attempt to raise the money through taxation. Public subscription would be best, a large number of subscribers, preferably where several thousand participate rather than a small select group.

Mr. Smith pointed out that Chicago, Philadelphia and San Francisco are supporting orchestras in this manner.

As soon as a quorum can be obtained the board of directors of the Philharmonic will meet to decide on the steps to be taken.

Mr. Lyman emphasizes in his letter to the directors that Mr. Clark for nearly ten years has been the sole support of the orchestra expending during that time some $2,000,000. In 1919, when the philanthropist founded the musical unit that has now become internationally known, he promised to support it for five years. But at the expiration of that period he voluntarily renewed his pledge for another like period. Mr. Lyman indicates that Mr. Clark believes that general support of the orchestra by the people of Los Angeles will make it more genuine community work.

Mr. Clark is said to be at his summer home near Butte, Mont., and will not return to Los Angeles until September.

ALLEN BAIL INQUIRY WILL BEGIN TODAY

State Bar Committee to Consider Notorious Bond Scandal Facts

Investigation of the notorious Allen bail-bond scandal by a State Bar disciplinary committee will commence this afternoon in the offices of the State Bar Association. This marks the first action taken publicly by the association since the State Bar Act, granting the profession full control of its activities, became effective.

The committee, composed of former Chief Justice Myers of the State Supreme Court, John G. Mott and Jefferson Chandler, has authority and jurisdiction, in so far as matters relating to the bar are concerned, equal to that of the Superior Court.

Former Superior Judge Wood stated yesterday he is prepared to present evidence accumulated during the past four months to the committee. Former Judge Wood and Nathan Newby will act as examiners and Attorney W. J. Clark is assisting them.

The respondents in the action are Chief Deputy District-Attorney Murray and Attorneys Howell Richardson and Benjamin Elconin. The last two acted as attorneys for Lewis H. Allen and obtained his cash bail bond of $5000 after Murray represented to Superior Judge Hollzer that Allen was incarcerated in State's prison in Illinois.

MARKETS OF WEST COAST STUDY TOPIC

Co-operative Delegates to Observe Problems of Region at First Hand

Field trips designed to acquaint members of the American Institute of Co-operation with production and marketing problems at first hand will occupy more than half the time of the visitors from the beginning of their Pacific Coast sessions in Los Angeles the 9th inst. and for the three weeks following. During that time they will travel the length of the West Coast, seeing as well as hearing the benefits of co-operative marketing. It is the first time the institute ever has met in the Far West.

The program, as announced by R. N. Wilson, manager of the agricultural department of the California Development Association, who is chairman of the institute's committee on tours, provides for a week of discussions and personal visits to producing areas of Southern and Central California, trade conferences and general sessions for the next two weeks at the University of California at Berkeley and its agricultural-experiment station at Davis, then a week of inspection in the Pacific Northwest.

LONG HUNT IN KILLING CASE ENDS

Chef on Liner Arrested as Suspect in Murder of Main Street Grocer

A nation-wide search of more than a year resulted in the arrest early yesterday of Harry S. Johnson on suspicion of murder, when Detective Lieutenants Seager and Thomason took Johnson into custody at the Wilmington docks on the arrival of the liner Hawaii, on which he was employed as chef.

Johnson, according to officers, was one of two bandits who shot and killed R. B. Negley, grocer, in his store at 10018 South Main street during a hold-up on May 4, 1927. Johnson, police state, signed a confession in which he named Ray Yeoman as the man who fired the shot that killed the aged grocer. Yeoman is serving a term at San Quentin penitentiary for bank robbery, according to arresting officers, and will be brought to Los Angeles to face a murder charge after the arraignment of Johnson.

Negley was found dead from bullet wounds and his store rifled, according to police record, and no clew to the identity of the slayers was found at that time.

Three months after the murder Joe Jackson, Clair Clayton and ...ay Yeoman were arrested and convicted of bank robbery. During the trial information that Harry Johnson was implicated in the slaying of Negley was revealed.

A country-wide search ensued and Johnson's trail was picked up in New York City with his subsequent arrest yesterday.

SHIPPING NEWS

LARGER FRUIT SALES SOUGHT

Growers' Chief Slated for North Europe Trip

Effort Planned to Increase Citrus Demand

Sunday-School Convention Party Due on Liner

Larger markets in Northern Europe for California citrus fruits are the quest of R. L. Willits, director of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, who will take passage on the Holland-America Line motorship Drechtdyk next Saturday. He will go first to the United Kingdom, then Sweden and Norway and the Continent.

Penetration of trans-Atlantic markets has been remarkable in the last four years, rising from practically nothing to more than 700,000 boxes of oranges and grapefruit last year. This year's limited crop and ready domestic market preclude any phenomenal showing, but producers are allocating all possible shipments in order to hold the foreign markets for anticipated buxom years to come.

The United Kingdom leads the foreign consumers of California's golden fruit, followed by the Scandinavian countries. The citrus products attained a strong appeal to European palates last year, when the crop in Spain and Southern Europe slumped. Their uniform excellence is said to have proved a strong contrast with the Spanish orange. Seldom does a refrigerated ship now leave Los Angeles Harbor for Northern Europe without carrying several thousand boxes of the fruits.

Accompanying Mr. Willits will be his wife and a party of six, while Lee T. Grider, construction engineer for Bent Brothers of Los Angeles, also will take passage as far as Curacao.

ORIENT DELEGATES DUE HERE TOMORROW

Two hundred and twenty delegates en route to the tenth international convention of World Sunday Schools, are due in Los Angeles from the Orient tomorrow on the Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Tenyo Maru.

The party is made up of 136 Japanese, twenty Koreans, fifteen Chinese and seven Filipino delegates and twenty pastors, who are in charge of the party. It is headed by Rev. S. Iwamura of Tokio. The youngest delegate is Makio Noriuse, 11 years of age, and the oldest, T. Miyoshi, 62.

The liner is expected to sail the following day, after embarking several score passengers and freight, bound for the Orient via San Francisco.

One hundred and seventy-one ships arrived or departed Los Angeles Harbor during the last three days, an average of fifty-seven movements daily, according to the lookout for the Marine Exchange. Thirty-five sailed out Saturday, twenty-seven departing in five hours before midnight, while several other ships arrived at the same time.

The Pacific Exporter is due from the United Kingdom today, as the last new motor liner of six to be entered on the Pacific-Northern Europe run by the Furness, Pacific, Ltd., this spring and summer. Like the other five, which have called here, the Pacific Exporter is of 10,000 tons, carrying 4200 horsepower Diesels maintaining thirteen knots an hour, and possessing 73,000 cubic feet of refrigerating space for transporting Pacific Coast perishables to Europe. She also has outside cabins for a dozen passengers.

Charles Hubbard, testing engineer for the Bernuth-Lembcke Line, yesterday completed meter studies on the tanker Hugonaut, carrying creosote, and left last night for San Francisco to return this midweek. He is a former chief engineer with the old Pacific Mail Line.

Thirty-seven "picture brides" from Japan were among the through passengers from the Orient, bound for South America, on the Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Rakuyo Maru, in yesterday and out today. The girls are in native costume and each wears a characteristic decoration whereby the bridegroom-to-be will know her on arrival.

The liner disembarked a score of travelers here and will take on ten, while 465 are continuing through port, representing Germans, Latins, Japanese, Chinese and Hindus. Capt. R. Nakagawa commands the liner.

In the long-name contest for ships at sea, enter that of the Ansaldo San Gregorio Secundo. It is an Italian motorship in yesterday with 96,000 bags of sugar from Cuba. Eleven thousand bags are being discharged here, the rest being consigned to North Pacific ports. Furness, Pacific, Ltd., is agent.

"Port" and "starboard," the indirect orders to the helm, will give way to left and right, indicating the direction the ship is to turn if the International Shipping Conference has its way. The direct system was approved by the conference recently in London.

A deeper load line for tankers than is allowed ordinary cargo carriers is recommended by the International Shipping Conference, recently convening in London. Greater strength by reason of more bulkheads than possible in merchandise carriers is cited. The conference was impelled to this position by the American technical subcommittee. Approval will be sought by all maritime nations.

AIR-AND-SEA JOURNEYS GO INTO EFFECT

Tickets on Sale Here and at San Francisco for New Transportation Tie-up

"Tickets go on sale today at Los Angeles and San Francisco under the first transportation tie-up ever announced in the history of the United States between a steamship company and an aerial transport concern.

These tickets permit an all-winter round-trip between California's two great cities. The journey may be made one way on the steamer Yale and Harvard, operated by the Los Angeles Steamship Company, and return on the twelve-passenger triple-motored Fokker monoplane operated by Western Air Express Inc. The steamers make the trip four times weekly; the airplane will fly between the two cities daily.

A reduced fare of $85 has been announced for the round-trip tickets. The fare includes a de luxe cabin on the steamer, with two beds, shower bath, and all meals; on the airplane it includes luncheon served during the flight and automobile transportation to and from the airport at either terminal.

The new service, it is said, is expected to have a strong appeal for vacationists and tourists.

T. R. Williams, Rich Pasadena Sportsman, Dies

PASADENA, July 8.—T. R. Williams, 32 years of age, wealthy sportsman and husband of Marion Williams, former California tennis champion, died tonight in the Pasadena Hospital following an operation for appendicitis.

Williams had been married but three months. His widow is the former Miss Marion Williams. She rushed to her husband's bedside from San Diego when he was confined in the hospital on the 2nd inst. Williams was operated on two days later and complications developed which proved fatal.

He leaves, besides his widow, a sister, Mrs. J. B. R. Nixon of Atlantic City, and a brother, C. B. Williams of Grand View, N. Y.

RICH GOLD STRIKE AT JARBIDGE

Find in New Workings of Elkora Group Reported Richest Since Mohawk

RENO (Nev.) July 8. (Exclusive) The most remarkable gold development in any Nevada mine since the bonanza days of the Mohawk property at Goldfield is reported from the Elkora group, at Jarbidge. In new workings on the bottom levels a thirty-foot vein of $28 ore is said to have been exposed, with production averaging nearly $300,000 a month.

The Elkora is owned by the American Smelting and Refining Company. Official confirmation of the great strike has been withheld by officials at Jarbidge pending a statement from the New York headquarters. The property for several years has been the leading gold producer of the State.

At a meeting held recently in Reno the Quartz Mountain Mining and Milling Company authorized expenditure of a large sum in further development of the San Rafael, Calico and other properties in the Quartz Mountain field, near Fallon. Manager Louis D. Gordon stated that large reserves of shipping and milling ore had been opened in new territory, with the winze from the 350-foot level showing excellent material. The company is controlled by Nevada, Los Angeles and Utah residents.

The Arrowhead Development Company of Los Angeles has enlarged the shaft of its Gold Mint property near Wellington, and resumed sinking of the outlet from the 200-foot level. Manager Peter Fox states that good ore has been opened in new areas, with indications favorable for intersection of the main vein before the 300-foot level is gained. The company has established a permanent camp and installed powerful equipment.

PROSPECT AT COPPER MINE ROSY

Property of Central at Dos Cabezas Reported in Promising Ore Body

WILLCOX (Ariz.) July 8. (Exclusive)—Central Copper, at Dos Cabezas, fourteen miles from Willcox, is deepening its explorations, with favorable results reported by Manager John W. Prout. At 900 feet of depth has been cut what is believed to be a faulted section of a valuable ore body that was lost fifty feet below the 400-foot level, after about $500,000 worth of ore had been taken from a section 100 feet deep.

The same ore has been cut at 1100 feet depth, declared assuring permanence of the supply on which future mill operations will depend. Much diamond drilling is being done on three levels. The operating force is of 125 men.

The Silver Strike property, near Bowie, W. J. Schlipin, manager, is tunneling on a four-foot vein of silver lead ore, to be explored for 500 feet.

At Johnson Camp, the Johnson Copper Development Company is cleaning up its mine and equipment, preparatory to renewed activity.

The great marble deposits near Dragoon station are to be worked by the National Marble Company, recently incorporated by Bruce Stephenson and M. J. Donahue of Douglas and B. D. Blakeslee of Paradise.

New Deep Zone at Rosecrans Test Due Soon

The new deep zone at Rosecrans, from which several companies are now producing, may shortly be given a real deep test by the Barnsdall Oil Company.

Barnsdall's O'Dea No. 9, which was tied up for weeks with a fishing job, is now being filled with heavy mud to a depth of 6591 feet and the indications are that the company is preparing to give it a production test.

The Associated Oil Company, which already has one or two wells producing from the new zone, is deepening its Wanka No. 1, on the east side of Main street, from 4900 to about 5500 feet.

The Union Oil Company has reached a depth of 5183 in deepening its Howard Park No. 18 to the new zone, being now in gray sand. Its Howard Park No. 11 is standing at 5901 feet.

Oil News From Round Mountain District Given

EDISON, July 8. (Exclusive)—The Honolulu Consolidated well in the Round Mountain area on Sec. 20, 28-29 is standing idle at a depth of 695 feet. The General Petroleum Corporation's Conry No. 1, on Sec. 30, 28-29, is showing no oil at this time, water being pumped. The Shell's Jewett No. 3, on Sec. 29, 28-29, is producing water and oil with bailing at 1620 feet. Drilling is proceeding at the St. Helens Petroleum Company's Kernaco No. 2, on Sec. 13, 28-28, and Cy Wicker's No. 1, on Sec. 6, 28-29.

In the Edison district the Midway Northern well at 3572 feet is in schist, having penetrated a foot of white quartz at 3560 feet and brown and green shale at 3565 feet. The General Petroleum's Kerwin No. 1, has been drilled out to 3790 feet, for a test.

GAS NOW CHANGING FIELDS

Shell Company Piping Surplus from Signal Hill; Pumping it Into Wells at Dominguez

BY HOWARD C. KEGLEY

One of the new twists of petroleum engineering which recently has been put into practice in the Los Angeles basin, in the interest of natural gas conservation, is the practice of taking natural gas from leases in the Signal Hill Field and pumping it into wells in the Dominguez Field to repressure the oil sands, in the expectation of increasing the ultimate oil recovery from producing sands.

This is now being done by the Shell company for the purpose of saving a goodly portion of the surplus gas from its deep-zone wells at Signal Hill. It is piping gas over to Dominguez at the rate of 6,000,000 cubic feet per day, and at Dominguez is joining with the Union Oil Company and Associated Oil Company in a gas conservation program which is putting gas back into the oil sands of that field at the rate of nearly 21,000,000 cubic feet per day.

Shell and Union leases at Dominguez lie adjoining, and these two companies are putting back into the sand under their leases approximately 20,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day, counting the 3,000,000 cubic feet Shell is piping in from Signal Hill, while Associated is pumping 700,000 cubic feet of gas per day into the sands of its DeFrancis lease at Dominguez.

The theory of petroleum engineers is that by restoring depleted gas pressure in the oil sands of the average field they can eventually increase the production of old wells and in the long run obtain from the leases more oil than would otherwise be recoverable. Shell officials admit that they have not yet observed any particular increase in the production of the old wells at Dominguez, and neither has Union, according to reports, but petroleum engineers assert that the system has not been practiced long enough to produce concrete results.

As for the Associated, which has been pumping its Dominguez gas back into the DeFrancis lease for ten days or two weeks, it has not noticed an increase in production, but has suffered a decrease of 130 barrels per day through loss of production in the DeFrancis No. 6, into which it is pumping the gas. The use of this hole for the introduction of gas takes it completely off production, at least for the period of the experiment, but the company expects to get back the 130 barrels a day, and more too, within a short time, as a result of repressuring.

The layman naturally wonders why Shell does not pump its surplus gas at Signal Hill into its wells in that field. The answer to this is that at Dominguez it has the co-operation of both the other operating companies, while at Signal Hill it would only increase the production of scores of other operating companies if it pumped its gas back into its own wells, and would eventually lose all the gas because the many little companies operating there are assertedly more interested in quick and easy oil production than they are in restoring depleted gas zones, and would probably let the gas blow off into the air as it came from the wells, because the present production of the deep oil zone is yielding gas in much greater volume than it can be used.

There is a wide range of opinion as to how much gas is going to waste at Signal Hill, but it is certainly more than 100,000,000 cubic feet per day, and some authorities say that it may be double that figure.

Associated Oil Goes Deeper on Potrero Well

In the Potrero district the Associated Oil Company's Voorhies No. 1 is reported to have missed the upper oil sand which showed up in the Cypress wells at about 3700 feet, and has drilled on down to 4100 feet. It expects to find a producing sand at a point between 4400 and 4700 feet.

The company's Pacific Southwest No. 1 has been drilled to a depth of 1800 feet. The Cypress No. 1 is still shut in, and the Cypress No. 2 is steadily producing.

It is the opinion of field scouts that the Voorhies well has a chance to pick up both the sands which were tested by the Cypress No. 2 and Cypress No. 1.

PROJECT LAUNCHED

Pipe Line From Texas Field to Cost Several Millions

MIDLAND (Tex.) July 8. (Exclusive)—Twelve carloads of ten-inch pipe are en route to Midland to start this end of the new pipe line from Atlantic Refining Company's tank farm at Midland to Port Arthur. Officials of the Atlantic say the pipe line from Midland to tidewater will cost from $9,000,000 to $12,000,000.

Ten booster pump stations will be built on the line, which will be about 500 miles long. One of the latest of these will be on the tank farm about two miles east of Midland.

IMPORTANT SHOWING IN MONO MINE

Drift on Vein at Depth Viewed as Promising by Comanche Company

Word has been received from Benton in Mono county, that an important ore uncovering has been made in the Comanche mine, in the 250-foot south drift from the 850-foot level of the Kerrick shaft.

This drift, on the vein, is being driven to make connection with the known ore body of the company's Diana mine which, as an integral part of the Diana-Kerrick-Hudson and Cornucopia ore system, is credited with a joint production of about $4,800,000 before the closing down of these properties in 1861; when their deepest workings, it is claimed, did not exceed 550 feet.

The face of this drift, Supt. D. C. Palmer writes, has exposed four feet of solid ore of excellent shipping value; from which, in one round of shots, three skiploads of about a ton each, were taken. This body is believed to be the extension of the massive ore shoot of the Diana mine and, as drifting advances, is expected to widen out into a large zone of marketable ore.

The Comanche Company has let a contract for the driving of the upraise to make connection with the bottom of the Kerrick 1365-foot shaft. The completion of this work is expected about September 15, and it is planned regular shipments of ore will begin about October 1.

Suspension of Carlisle Mine Work Puzzles

DUNCAN (Ariz.) July 8. (Exclusive)—Without explanation, work has been stopped on the old Carlisle property, just across the New Mexico line, east of this point. All miners and operatives have been laid off, save the men operating the power plant and pumps.

It is known that a large quantity of rich ore recently was developed, in a vein that lies parallel to the one that has been worked for forty years past, while samples from drilling operations are declared to have showed broad extension of the mineralized area. Official declaration has been made of early construction of a 300-ton mill, with probable provision of a power plant at Duncan, on the railroad.

B. F. Boswell, who has been manager, has resigned and has gone to other employment at Trona, Cal. An option on the property is held by George Johnson, a wealthy Chicago advertising man, who is a heavy owner of Phoenix realty. A payment of $300,000 is due from him early next year. Belief is locally expressed that the shutdown merely indicates reorganization of the executive force at the mine.

KNICKERBOCKER FIELD BEING COMPLETED

Knickerbocker Field, the latest addition to the athletic fields of Los Angeles, is being rushed to completion for the formal dedication on July 22. The field is named in honor of F. H. Knickerbocker, general manager of the Union Pacific system. Normally the shops of the Union Pacific do not operate on Saturdays so the employees last week decided that they would have a personal hand in the construction of the grand stand and facilities which are to be dedicated to their "big boss." Hundreds of volunteers were on the job Saturday and each did a bit preliminary to the baseball game which followed in the afternoon.

ASSOCIATED OIL TO SIDETRACK TROUBLE

The Associated Oil Company's deep test, Lloyd No. 100, in the Ventura-avenue field, which twisted off a drill stem several weeks ago at about 7950 feet, is cementing the remainder of the fishing job in the bottom of the hole at 6600 feet, and will endeavor to sidetrack the drill past the obstruction at that point and proceed to drill the hole to 8000 feet for a thorough test of the oil sands.

HIGH VALUES IN SAMPLES OF GOLD ORE

Specimens Taken From Music Mountain Run Thousands to Ton

KINGMAN (Ariz.) July 8. (Exclusive)—Ore flecked with gold and running several thousand dollars to the ton has been brought by Supt. J. F. Melkle from the P. & M. mine at Music Mountain. It is from a drift on the 100-foot level, from a broad ore shoot that now is being explored and that has several feet of high-grade milling material. If present conditions continue for a material distance on the ledge, a milling plant will be installed.

A twenty-five ton flotation mill, the first unit of a larger plant, is to be erected at once on the Diana property of the Arizona Magma Mining Company, near Mineral Park. Ore shipments, sampling $40 a ton, are to be started this week to El Paso. C. T. Carpenter, president of the corporation, states that 100,000 tons of milling ore already is blocked out in Magma holdings at Chloride and Mineral Park.

At White Hills, statement is made that the west drift on the 970 level has progressed eighty-five feet in six feet of ore that samples up to $17 gold and 80 ounces silver. Work has been prosecuted on the vein 150 feet from the shaft. Some trouble is being known with water.

NEW SHAFT AT ARIZONA MINE READY

Phelps Dodge Finishes 2100-Foot Project After Eighteen Months

BISBEE (Ariz.) July 8. (Exclusive)—After eighteen months of intensive work, completion is reported of the new 2100-foot Warren shaft of the Phelps Dodge Corporation. It was sunk by contract with the Longyear Contracting Company.

Though more than 50,000 pounds of high explosive was used, only a few accidents were known, and those of minor importance. Stations have been cut on six levels and a long connection was made on the 1800-foot level with the C. & C. shaft, half a mile away, where all water will be lifted. A heavy flow was encountered at 1600 feet.

Now is to be started an extensive drifting program on the 2100-foot level, expected to be of the largest importance in demonstrating the trend and depth of the Bisbee ore bodies. Surface equipment at the shaft is of the heaviest character.

Phelps Dodge is doing much work on a property in the Greaterville section, southeast of Tucson, with eighty men employed, under charge of Percy Williams, a well-known Arizona mining executive.

Ore shipments to Douglas are being made from Sonoita station. The corporation appears prospering exceptionally well, with its dividend rate just lifted from 6 to 8 per cent. Shares have been quoted at around $140, but are rarely to be had.

Redondo Beach Drilling Fight in Last Stage

The last chapter in an oil-well-drilling controversy which has divided Redondo Beach for the last five years and in which over 1200 acres of valuable oil leases are involved was opened Saturday, when a suit to test the legality of the ordinance which prohibits drilling came to trial in United States District Court.

The question as to whether or not oil drilling is to be permitted within the city limits of Redondo Beach was fought out at two elections, and the ordinance adopted by the city was sustained. The present suit was brought by the General Petroleum Corporation, owners of several hundred acres of leases in the restricted area and of one well, which was on production when the ordinance was adopted.

Following the completion of the discovery well, the Del Amo No. 1, about one mile east of Redondo, lots in that portion of the city went sky high, for oil drilling purposes. A building permit fee of $100 for each derrick was fixed by the city, but a short time later all drilling was ordered suspended.

The oil company based its suit on the fact that its leases were consummated prior to the adoption of the ordinance. Hundreds of speculators now holding prospective oil leases at Redondo Beach are interested in the outcome of the trial.

GOOD PRODUCER AT YORBA LINDA

Wildcat Well of Long Beach Operator Promising

Flow During Test Placed at 350 Barrels Daily

Plans to Increase Output by Deepening Project

George W. Johnson, Long Beach operator, who made quite a success in the development of the Los Cerritos field, northwest of Signal Hill, and has been doing considerable wildcatting in the last two years, apparently struck something worth while in the Yorba Linda district, according to reports from the Davenport well, which he brought in last week from a depth of 2763 feet.

According to field reports, the Davenport well, during a production test, flowed at the rate of 350 barrels a day, of clean oil, cutting less than 1 per cent, with a gravity test of 27.5 deg. Pressure is said to have been good, being about 150 pounds on the tubing, and about 260 pounds on the casing.

Besides the oil, the well is said to have flowed saturated gas at the rate of between 500,000 and 750,000 cubic feet a day, which, gasoline men estimate, to carry in excess of two gallons of casinghead gasoline per 1000 cubic feet. This performance is asserted to have been obtained from a penetration of five feet below the shoe of the eight-inch casing, which was set at 2763 feet.

After flowing the well for several hours, and demonstrating an effective water shut-off, Mr. Johnson killed it to drill deeper into the formation. He expects to have the well back on production within the next few days, has a derrick up for another well on the Stein lease, adjoining the Davenport property, and is rigging up to start drilling immediately.

Across the street from the Davenport well, the Yellowstone Oil Company is planning to drill on a location about 140 feet from the Davenport. Yellowstone has forty acres under lease in that area.

Coxe Tells of Progress at Nevada Mine

George E. Coxe, vice-president and general manager of the Pan American Mining Company, who was in Los Angeles last week from the company's extensive mine holdings in Mt. Comet district, Lincoln county, Nevada, states another 150 feet of lateral work will make connection with the large known ore body of the famous Schodde stope.

This objective, he further states, should be reached within the next four or six weeks, when it is expected regular shipments of high-grade silver-lead ore will be inaugurated. All preparations have been made for production with the exception of the final completion of about four miles of the new road connecting with the railroad shipping point, and this should be finished in ample time, as it is in course of construction under the direction of county and State officials.

J. W. Randolph has resigned as president of Pan American, and his successor will be appointed within the next few days.

OPERATIONS AT SEACLIFF SLOW

Projects at Muscle Rock in Hard Formation

General Petroleum Delayed by Trouble Jinx

Other Projects in Various Development Stages

Field developments at Muscle Rock, a few thousand feet north of the Seacliff field, are making slow progress because of exceedingly hard formation, through which the drills sometimes do not make more than twenty feet a day.

The General Petroleum Corporation had the misfortune to twist off a drill stem in its Oland No. 1 at 2070 feet, and is now trying to extract it. This well is on a point of land just to the west of the State highway. On a neighboring lease the Petroleum Exploration Company is down 373 feet in its Hickey No. 1.

The Wilshire Oil Company's Hickey No. 1 is coring at 2230 feet. The Italo Petroleum Corporation's Hickey No. 1 is drilling at 1894 feet. The Bankline Oil Company's Hickey No. 1 is drilling at 1510 feet. These wells are all up on the bluff east of the highway.

In the Seacliff field proper E. J. Miley is getting away down in his Miley No. 1. The hole is down 5793 feet in streaks of shale and oil sand. This well made an unsuccessful production test at about 5156 feet some time ago.

Most ESTATES are founded upon INVESTMENTS

More Estates are founded upon investments than upon "guessing tomorrow's market." For every estate that is won by speculation there is one that is lost. Estates builded upon wise investments are the result of industrial productivity... earnings that have accrued from factors that have permitted a profit all along the line and thus have benefitted the nation.

Good Bonds and preferred stocks for steady income, common stocks in leading companies in basic or important industries for capital appreciation and liquid funds for business reserves, properly proportioned, constitute the investment program that builds sound and impregnable estates and contributes to the wealth and prosperity of the nation.

PRIME
In All the Essentials

For those seeking a sound, conservative investment, Prudential 6% Guaranteed Certificates have outstanding merit in all the essentials—

SAFETY
AVAILABILITY
DIVERSIFICATION
NON-FLUCTUATING

1. Tax exempt in the State of California.
2. Legal investments for Trust Funds, etc.
3. Regulated by stringent laws which forbid officers and directors to borrow the association's funds, establish the investments and limitations on loans which may be made, specify the extent to which capital and reserves must be maintained, etc.
4. Supervised by the State Building and Loan Commissioner, who must examine the accounts of the association at least once a year; special reports are frequently called for.
5. All funds are loaned under first mortgages upon the strongest security—city realty, generally homes, expertly appraised. Prudential is the only association which maintains a Graduate Architect and Construction Engineer on its payroll for loan advisory service. Loans are made on the monthly repayment plan—security constantly improves.
6. Healthy collections are an indication of a sound loan policy; Prudential holds the State's record for freedom from delinquent accounts.
7. You are not putting "all your eggs in one basket" by investing with Prudential, where your dollars are secured upon hundreds of scattered properties—a practical insurance against local depressions and calamities.
8. Paid-in capital is $500,000; this must remain unimpaired and unlimitedly guarantees investors. Investment Certificates are also a direct lien upon the entire assets of the Association. Underlying security is valued at more than two and one-half times the amount of Investment Certificates outstanding.
9. Adequate contingent reserves are always maintained.
10. Wise investors look behind financial statements for the integrity of management. Prudential's officers are long-experienced and capable; its nineteen directors are individuals of prominence and financial responsibility. All personnel having access to funds are bonded.

PRODUCTION UP AT SIGNAL HILL

Six New Completions Check Downward Trend

Getty's 3200-Barrel Project Best Performer

Completion of a few unusually good wells in the deep sand at Signal Hill last week reversed downward trend which has been evident in the output of that field for the past several weeks, and put the total yield of the field, at the end of the week up to within a few hundred barrels of the peak which was registered six weeks ago. Unofficial estimates, based on a count of producing wells in the field indicate the total yield to be over 204,000 barrels, while the peak output was only a little more than 205,000 barrels.

Production at Signal Hill at the end of last week was about 201,000 barrels, the increase of more than 3000 barrels a day being the result of the completion of only six wells, which had an initial output sufficient to offset the decline in the older wells, and add 3000 barrels to the total for the field.

The largest well of the week was George F. Getty, Inc., No. 22, which was completed for an initial production of about 3200 barrels, but increased to 3400 barrels within a couple of days. Getty completed another well for a production of about 1700 barrels per day.

The Shell brought in two good wells on its Patton and Wilson lease, which helped run up the average, and J. J. Davis completed his No. 10 as a 2600-barrel well. The sixth well was a Texas Company completion at the rate of 1650 barrels a day.

The performance of the new wells confirms the opinion of production experts that the deep zone at Signal Hill will probably show a gradual flattening out instead of an abrupt decline such as marks the performance of the average intensively developed field. Recently completed wells, even where the initial production is between 500 and 1000 barrels a day, have shown surprising consistency, their production after a few weeks being not much less than their flush production.

The Union Oil Company has three wells on its Long Beach Community lease nearly ready to be placed on production. They are the Community No. 10, Community No. 17 and Community No. 18.

Aviation Unit Launched by Standard Oil

Due to the increasing interest in aviation the Standard Oil Company of California has established an aviation division, the duties of which are to closely follow all phases of aviation activities with a view to developing and furnishing petroleum products that will satisfactorily meet the demands of aircraft under all operating conditions, and to arrange distribution and service facilities to adequately take care of that class of trade.

Mr. S. S. Chadderton, who has followed aviation activities for fifteen years, has been appointed manager of this division. He was in the United States Air Service during the World War, leaving the service at the termination of the war as a captain. During that period he had an opportunity to fly and experiment with many types of planes.

Mr. Chadderton entered the employ of the Standard in 1914 as an automotive engineer. In 1920 he was appointed assistant district sales manager at Seattle, and in November of 1923 was transferred to a similar position at Los Angeles. In 1926 he assumed charge of the service station department in the home office at San Francisco, and on April 1, 1927, was appointed assistant manager of the refined oil and naphtha division.

GRAY AND STOKE POGES

The poet, Thomas Gray, author of one of the most famous poems in the English tongue, appears to be enjoying a minor place in the news of the moment. Toward the end of last week a debate at the Oxford Union took the form of a speculation whether it was not, after all, better "to have taken Quebec than written Gray's 'Elegy;'" and a correspondent to the Observer was protesting with much vigor against the popular view that the "Elegy in a Country Churchyard" was written at the village of Stoke Poges. The Oxford Union, after some consideration, decided that Gray's "Elegy" was, on the whole, a more meritorious performance than the taking of Quebec, and perhaps the popular view which associates that poem with Stoke Poges will also emerge triumphant from its new ordeal. The Observer's correspondent vows that the "Elegy" was written in the churchyard of Thanington, just outside Canterbury—a proposition which has been heard of before and which is said to be supported by an assurance made by Gray himself to the daughter of an eighteenth-century clergyman at Canterbury. On the other hand, the dead Gray is certainly buried at Stoke Pokes, and it is equally certain that the living one had the closest associations with that village. And wherever Gray's "Elegy" may have been started there is hardly any doubt at all that it was finished—seven or eight years later — at the village where his mother had retired to live. The fact that this wide gap exists between the beginning and the end of the poem shows how absurd it is to attach a too literal locality to the inspiration of such a work.—[Manchester Guardian.

QUIET LIFE OF VON BULOW

In the Villa delle Rose in Rome, so named because in its gardens bloom 3000 varieties of roses, Prince Von Bulow is passing his declining years far from the troubles of international politics.

No one, seeing the white-haired, sturdy, elderly man, quietly dressed, walking along the streets not far from the famoous Borghese Gardens, would recognize in him the man who was chancellor of Germany longer than any man except the Iron Bismarck.

Prince Von Bulow will be 80 next year, and, with the exception of the years during which Italy was in the war against the central powers, he has lived in Rome for a long time. He was sent there as special ambassador after the outbreak of the war to keep Italy neutral or on the side of Germany.

They tell today how he paced the Borphese Gardens houru after hour waving his arms and muttering to himself because he saw the futility of hist task.

The Villa delle Rose, overlooking most of Rome, was formerly the Villa Malta, so named because it once belonged to those knights. Von Bulow has owned it for many years and has occupied it with his wife, stepdaughter of Minghetti, once Italian Premier.—[Kansas City Star.

UNAPPRECIATED NUDITY

Nothing is so inspirational as the perfection of beauty. Esthetics the world over, therefore, will sympathize with the pious habitues of Atlantic City in the suffering that must be involved in the decision to discontinue the annual beauty pageant and bathing-girl parade that for so many years has made that city notable as a home of art. It is announced that some of the contributors to the "Miss America" fund have become obsessed of the notion that the damsels that participate in the pageant "are not truly representative of young American girlhood," and that they are really "a congregation of girls seeking personal advertising and profit." A frightful return, indeed, to the promoters of the "Miss America."—[The Argonaut.

PETROLEUM EXPORTS HIGH

State of California Establishes New Peak for Bulk Oil Shipments

California topped all former records in the exportation of bulk petroleum products during the fiscal year which ended June 30. The grand total was 113,618,487 barrels, compared with 111,865,637 barrels during the previous year.

The year's movement of oil included 49,043,771 barrels of fuel oil, 28,367,963 barrels of crude, 26,699,311 barrels of gasoline, 3,915,351 barrels of Diesel, 3,547,637 barrels of kerosene, 1,342,312 barrels of tops, 687,211 barrels of distillate, and 14,911 barrels of lubricating oil.

Bulk petroleum shipments for June brought the total movement for the first half of the current year up to 54,514,899 barrels. The June total was 8,890,158 barrels, and included 3,179,271 barrels of fuel oil, 2,896,870 barrels of gasoline, 2,404,260 barrels of crude, 247,750 barrels of Diesel, 137,897 barrels of kerosene and 24,120 barrels of distillate.

Shipments of petroleum products from the harbor last week totaled 1,986,190 barrels. The Pacific domestic trade took 1,036,315 barrels, including 551,447 barrels of crude, 384,690 barrels of fuel and 100,178 barrels of gas. The Pacific foreign trade took 487,805 barrels, embracing 331,500 barrels of fuel, 21,658 barrels of Diesel, 62,000 barrels of gas, 4985 barrels of lubricating oil, 64,450 barrels of kerosene and 3212 barrels of crude.

The Atlantic domestic trade took 308,070 barrels, made up of 150,398 barrels of crude, and 157,672 barrels of gas. The Atlantic foreign trade took 154,000 barrels of fuel. The shipments for the week were listed as follows:

PACIFIC DOMESTIC

J. A. Moffett to Portland with 65,000 barrels of fuel for Standard Oil Company.
Ditacarbon to Martinez with 67,771 barrels of crude for Union Oil Company.
J. C. Fitzsimmons to Point Wells with 65,350 barrels of fuel for Standard Oil Company.
Kekoskee to Oakland with 54,701 barrels of gas and crude for Richfield Oil Company.
Standard barge to San Diego with 5540 barrels of gas for Standard Oil Company.
H. M. Storey to Richmond with 104,000 barrels of crude for Standard Transportation Company.
Robert E. Hopkins to Avon with 73,379 barrels of crude for Tidewater Oil Company.
D. G. Scofield to Richmond with 78,000 barrels of crude for Standard Oil Company.
Lebec to Seattle with 76,729 barrels of fuel and gas for General Petroleum Corporation.

VEIN RECOVERED

Long-Sought Goal of Nevada Birch Creek Mine Reported Found

RENO (Nev.) July 8. (Exclusive) Recovery of the long-sought vein of the Nevada Birch Creek mine, twelve miles east of Austin, is reported by Grimes and Handy, who recently took a lease and bond on the old producer.

It is said the ledge has been exposed at surface for 100 feet, and shows five to six feet of mill ore, accompanied by seams and stringers of rich quartz. A tunnel has been started to cut the ore body about 100 feet below the apex.

EAT A "VAGABOND" DINNER

An oddity in dining out has been inaugurated in Hollis, N. Y., in the shape of a "Vagabond" dinner, and it has scored a big hit. Herein lies the novelty:

The guests assemble and eat the first course in one home and as soon as it has been disposed of rush for their wraps and hustle away to house No. 2, where the second course is waiting, all "het up." An added sauce is attached to this course by the hike necessary to obtain a place at the "board."

Once again the chairs are pushed back and the diners scuttle to where the third course is waiting. The novelty of the affair gives added zest to the occasion and every one is in readiness for the fourth hop, with the appetites still functioning "on all six." By the time this has been disposed of the diners are a little groggy, but game, and hop into their cars or "hoof it," as the case may be, to the fifth and final item on the menu. The idea has caught on and any number of meals "a la vagabond" are booked for the near future.

The initial affair, which gave the idea its start, was held under the auspices of the Epworth League of the Hollis Methodist Episcopal Church.—[New York World.

HIS DEAL

They were playing cards in the station waiting-room. One of the players, a stranger, was getting a bad beating. Finally, he saw one of the others give himself three aces from the bottom of the pack.

He turned to the man beside him and said: "Did you see that?"

"See what?" asked the man.

"Why, that fellow dealt himself three aces from the bottom of the pack."

"Well, what about it?" asked the man. "It was his deal, wasn't it?"—[London Tit-Bits.

GOLD ACE TO ERECT MILL ON ESTATE

Machinery for Project on Way and Start Fixed for September 15

Machinery equipment for the installation of a 100-ton gold amalgamating milling plant is being shipped from Los Angeles to the property of the Gold Ace Mining Company, two miles northeast of Cararra, Nye county, Nevada, and President and General Manager G. Raymond Boggs of this city states it is planned to have the plant in regular operation about September 15.

On the dump at the millsite, and exposed in the mine workings, Mr. Boggs says, approximately 125,000 tons of free-milling gold ore is exposed and available for mill treatment. The mill heads, he states, will average about $12 per ton in gold content, about 95 per cent being recoverable in milling practice.

The magnitude and possibilities of company holdings, according to Mr. Boggs, are revealed in the fact that on the surface there exists a twelve-foot blanket vein carrying values of about $50 in gold to the ton. This ore can be economically mined by the quarrying method, and a 500-foot surface rail tram is designed to connect this deposit with the ore bins at the millsite. There are 2500 feet of underground mine workings, and the thirty-foot ore body has been developed a distance of 1500 feet on its strike.

Electrical power for mining and milling purposes will be furnished by the Cararra Marble Company through the medium of two miles of transmission lines, while water for all purposes will be conveyed through pipe line from the same source.

RUMOR OF NEW OIL AREA STIRS

Wildcat Scouts Interested, Report from Goleta

Rio Grande's Outpost Well Starts Speculation

Little Real Information on Situation Available

Unconfirmed reports of the discovery of a new structure in the area west of Santa Barbara, about four miles south of the Goleta structure which was discovered by the Miley Oil Company about two years ago, have aroused the interest of wildcat scouts. The well is Elwood No. 1 of the Rio Grande Oil Company on the Bell & Luten ranch where Rio Grande and the Barnsdall Oil Company control 1000 acres on a fifty-fifty working agreement.

About all that could definitely be learned on the subject is the depth of the well which is approximately 3200 feet, and the fact that the crew is setting a string of casing, supposedly for a test of the formations. Officially it is reported that the Elwood passed through a faulted formation at about 2600 feet, which gave the crew considerable difficulty, and that casing is being set to preserve the hole, and prevent further mechanical difficulty on this account.

Unofficially it is reported that the well picked up a live oil sand somewhere near the bottom of the hole and of sufficient thickness to warrant a production test. The sand is said to be in a formation altogether different from that in which E. J. Miley obtained production on the Goleta structure, which parallels the Elwood structure, but is wholly unrelated to it.

The presence of oil was definitely proved in the Goleta structure by development work which the Miley Oil Company, and the Transcontinental Oil Company conducted in that district, but the production sand, while shallow, was not in sufficient quantity to be rated as being commercial, and practically no drilling is now being done at Goleta.

FLOW OF WATER PERILS WELL

Excess in M.K.T. Project at Ventura 500 Barrels

Daily Total Yield Still Runs Approximately 2000

Situation Declared Similar to Doheny Project

Although the Foster No. 1 of the M.K.T. Oil Company, on the south flank of the Ventura-avenue field is still producing 2000 barrels of oil a day, after having been on production for several days, it is also yielding something like 500 to 600 barrels of water, and by so doing is performing very much like one of the Doheny wells performed a year or so ago, and at approximately the same depth.

The Doheny well, which is only a couple of locations north of the Foster well, came in with a production greater than 300 barrels, but ran a large percentage of water, and was eventually deepened to the deep zone of the field, where it became a good producer.

Field reports are to the effect that the Foster well probably will be unable to go far below its present depth of 5736 feet, owing to the fact that by making a production test a few hundred feet higher up, several weeks ago, it got so much casing in the hole that the bore is now down rather small to permit of further drilling.

The impression of some of the other operators in the field is that the M.K.T. outfit will have to drill another well to a depth between 6300 and 7000 feet in order to ascertain the real possibilities for production on the Foster property. The company some time ago announced that it would start Foster No. 2 within thirty days, and this project will, it is expected, make the deep test.

Although one school of geologists in the Ventura-avenue field appears to be of the opinion that the Foster No. 1 is on a new and smaller anticline parallel with the major anticline of the field, another school of thought believes that the Foster well is on the south dip, along with the Orton and Willett lease wells of the Doheny companies.

The opinion of these men is that there isn't room between the Doheny leases and the M.K.T. lease for a downward plunge and another uplift. The theory of one field expert is that frequent faulting in that area, as indicated by cores from many wells, has made conditions favorable for a rich accumulation of oil in some isolated spot, and that the Foster No. 1 well happened to find that spot.

CIVIC THEATER FOR DETROIT

A theater owned by and operated for the people of Detroit is projected by a group of Detroit women. Eventual success of the plan, they say, will result in one of the first popularly owned civic theaters in the United States.

Miss Jessie Bonstelle, actress and managing director of the Bonstelle Playhouse in Detroit, is engineering the scheme. Mme. Clara Clemens, daughter of Mark Twain and wife of Ossip Gabrilowitsch, director of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, is active in the enterprise.

A five-year lease has been obtained on the Playhouse by Miss Bonstelle and is being held in trust until a theater fund is raised by popular subscription. Subscribers will receive reductions in prices at the box office and will be granted other privileges. The theater will be managed by a board of directors who will serve without pay, with Miss Bonstelle as director of productions.

A resident company, with guest stars appearing from time to time, will be installed. Co-operation of the Detroit Board of Education is counted upon in emphasizing the value of the theater as an educational force.—[Kansas City Star.

ENGLISH WITH A "KICK" IN IT

A singular branch of learning, featured by more than a score of American universities, is known as "business English." This is, briefly, the art of writing sales letters; and is based upon the theory that the prospect's vanity may be excited by a hearty informality which is lacking in the English of literature or of polite intercourse.

One reads, for example, in the textbook used by classes in business English at New York University:

Business English is a useful art rather than a fine art. Its purpose, like the purpose of business, is to gain profit. "Follow the line of least resistance" is an axiom of business English. Business English is typically conversational—in many cases, colloquial.

It is worthy of note that the colloquial English recommended by New York University finds enthusiastic reception in some business circles. One block from the university's headquarters in Washington Square is a subway station, where a great news corporation prods the vanity of prospective clients by the printed question:

"Whad'ya read?"—[Jesse Rainsford Sprague in Harper's Magazine.

Because of growing popularity of bus travel in South Africa, heavier machines are being added to the lines.

Arabia and Hejaz sent to this country 32,430,000 pounds of figs in 1926, and only 567,000 pounds last year.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY, CHEMISTRY

Qualitative analysis will be given in this department of The Times in correspondence as ores and minerals free of charge. Make each sample of an ounce or so in weight. Be sure to write a letter stating what test(s) are desired and give the approximate locality from which samples were taken. Do not pulverize the specimens. Give your name and address on paper wrapped with samples.

Uranium Traces

HOLLYWOOD, June 22. Question: At your request I am mailing you additional samples of the canary-colored stains, on rock which occurs in Inyo county, California. I paid shipment charges. S.

Answer: And the "charges" have been paid back to you. In the shipment two varieties of minerals were found. One of which is altered clay-like material (of no value commercially) gritty, and of yellowish-gray color caused by altered limonite (hydrous iron peroxide.) The samples desired are now reported to be quartz, carrying lemon-yellow stains in bare traces and which were very difficult to analyze. In analysis, positive reactions for vanadium and copper were obtained, with traces of uranium. It is not surprising to know that uranium minerals will be found of better grade in Inyo county, California. Some months ago a sample of Carnotite (a double vanadate of uranium and potassium) was sent to this department from near the line of Mono and Inyo counties. Let us hope that you may find better grade minerals of uranium at the locality.

A Gritty Clay

PHOENIX (Ariz.) June 22. Q.:—Once more I want information. While hunting, ran across rock like sample sent under separate cover. What is it, and what can it be used for? X.

A.: The sample is partly volcanic ash and somewhat on the order of olden-time polishing powder (Tripoli.) Uses problematical.

Good Iron Ore

LOS ANGELES, June 23.—Q.: This iron ore occurs in Los Angeles county. Is it hematite iron ore? C. S.

A.: The sample is of specular iron (hematite) with magnetite.

Three Samples

NEEDLES, June 23.—Q.: I am submitting three rocks for determination. It is not my intention to abuse the privilege so generously extended to all prospectors in the interests of mineral deposits, but I feel The Times should consider that it would be amply repaid if through its efforts of ore and mineral determinations the mineral resources of California, adjoining States, and Mexican territories would develop into commercial ore deposits. X.

A.: Your letter shows precisely what the efforts of The Times have been since October, 1903. It brought the attention of investigators to the many clays of the Far West; as also the ores of tungsten; the vanadates and tungsten minerals of Goff's, Calif.; the boron minerals of the State and those of Nevada; the potash and aluminum minerals of Nevada and Utah; the magnesite of Oregon and the iron ores of Eagle Mountains—to say nothing of gold, silver, lead ores and minerals from all over the country. These are facts easily proven. Your samples show up as follows: No. 1 carries some massive garnet; it is of quartz, feldspar, dendritic manganese as coating, with altered matter after pyrite. No. 2 is a burnt-up garnetyte rock containing various iron oxides, with manganese, and vanadium not present. The crystals of No. 3 resemble snow-white crystallized gypsum, but chemical reactions prove them to be calcite (lime carbonate.) Will be glad to serve you further, at any time.

Mixtures

LOS ANGELES, June 24.—Q.: I have quite a large deposit of the samples in San Bernardino county. The largest piece is from a depth of thirty-five feet. Please classify them. P. H.

A.: The specimens are amphibole schists containing traces of graphite of doubtful commercial value.

Classifications

NEW PINE CREEK (Or.) June 25.—Q.: Under separate cover please find some rock formations for classification and report through your "In the Earth" column. It was a pleasure for me to read the column referred to when I lived in Los Angeles twenty years ago, and I am sure The Times is still running it today. Thanking you for past services rendered. D.

A.: You're right, and still running today! Sample No. 1 is siliceous sinter and contains no mercury. No. 2 is impure sinter with some chalcedony (quartz variety.) Fluorite absent. No. 3 is an igneous siliceous conglomerate; mercury not present. No. 4 is amphibole; flourine absent; the bluish white content is chalcedony. No. 5 is quartzitic rock containing iron sulphate of nauseous taste with altered limonite; opaline silica; altered pyrite, and native gold absent. No. 6 is not a silver chloride. It is partly opaline silica with crystallized quartz (chalcedony.) It is stained green with traces of Dumortierite (aluminum silicate) and gave a slight reaction for manganese. No. 7 carries no calcite. It is a blackish porphyritic rock showing microscopic limonite in spots, and low percentages of other iron oxides with manganese. Your numbered slips show that all samples are from Northwestern Modoc county, California.

White Mineral

LOS ANGELES, June 25.—Q.: The accompanying sample of white mineral is from Western Nevada. Is it of marine, or fresh-water origin? T.

A.: The sample is a mixture, and quantitative work is required to determine it fully. Answering other questions set forth in your letter: As to "Marine origin." The questions can be answered by an examination of the country rocks at the locality and by that method only. The fire resistence of the sample is not equal to that of asbestos. It is in part diatomaceous earth mixed with volcanic ash, and it is probably of doubtful value as filtering mineral.

Selenite

SANTA ANA, June 25.—Q.: The sample following this letter was found in the Santa Ana Mountains. Indications show there might be quite a body. I take it for mica, but after applying heat I have my doubts. Is there commercial value to this ore, if found in quantity? Thanks for past favors. X.

A.: The sample is impure crystallized gypsum; impurities iron, manganese, and aluminum silicate—each, in traces. The specimen represents doubtful commercial value. Prospect the locality for gypsum rock; that's the variety for commercial value!

Low-Grade Hematite

LOS ANGELES, June 26.—Q.: Sample inclosed comes from Los Angeles county. Please state in column "In the Earth" result of tests and oblige. T.

A.: The specimen carries no free gold and represents iron ore of problematical value.

Carbonate and Silicate

ONTARIO, June 26.—Q.: Sample No. 1 comes from Chino, Cal. It seems to contain matter that makes things grow overnight. No 2 found in Arizona; Needles district. Test for calcite—or what not? R. R.

A.: No. 1 is sandstone carrying a low percentage of phosphoric acid. No. 2 is calcite, and a good grade. It will be well to prospect this lead closely, and try to obtain high-grade calcite worth $8 per pound.

Free Gold Absent

LOS ANGELES, June 26. Q.: This mineral was found in Calaveras county, California. Please analyze for gold and silver. H.

A.: Samples 1 and 2 are mica schists. No. 3 is of quartz, black microscopic hornblende, and some mica. No fire assays are made by this Times department.

Granite

CULVER CITY, June 26. — Q.: Please test this rock from Coachella Valley and oblige. J.

A.: It carries hornblende with some tremolite. Phosphoric acid absent.

Flake Platinum Absent

SAN FERNANDO, June 26.—Q.: Found in San Fernando Valley. Please test for platinum and other rare minerals. F.

A.: The sample is hornblende schist with some quartz.

SHATTUCK-DENN SINKING

Reports from Bisbee, Ariz., state that shaft-sinking at the Shattuck-Denn is progressing below the 2000-foot level, where a huge body of primary ore is being developed.

FORGOTTEN ROMAN CITY UNEARTHED

Workmen in Vienna Find Ruins Rich in Relics as They Dig Near Hotel

VIENNA, July 8. (AP)—Ruins of what is believed to have been a Roman city were discovered by workmen excavating in front of the Rits Hotel here yesterday. Several elaborate tombs containing embalmed human remains, jewels, floral wreaths, food and various utensils, all in extraordinary state of preservation, were unearthed.

Prof. Bettinger, noted Viennese archaeologist, who was summoned, confessed himself utterly bewildered by the perfect condition of two of the skeletons which he declared to be those of men who lived before Christ's appearance on earth.

The work of excavation was suspended so that the relics can be removed to a museum and studied further.

Proposed Ocean Hop Starts Suit

CHICAGO, July 8. (AP)—Stunt and transocean flying may be all right for a single man, but a married man with a child should spend his time on the ground, according to the bill for separate maintenance filed against Emery W. Westlake by Mrs. Westlake.

Westlake, his wife asserts, is contemplating a Chicago-to-Paris nonstop flight. Mrs. Westlake is determined to prevent such a flight, even if she has to use an injunction, she declared.

SIX INJURED IN COLLISION ON HIGHWAY

Auto Crashes Into Parked Car and Driver Faces Failure-to-Aid Charge

SANTA ANA, July 8. (Exclusive) Six men were injured, one critically, when an automobile bearing four of the men crashed into another automobile parked at the side of the road near Sunset Beach early this morning.

J. E. McIlroy, 26 years of age, 2378 Cerritos avenue, Long Beach, was placed in the Orange County Jail here following the accident. A charge of failure to render aid may be placed against him tomorrow, county police officers said.

According to the investigating officer's report, the parked car was occupied by Oliver Lewis, 17; Clinton Lewis, 18, and C. W. Wells, 18, all of Whittier. They had stopped because of a flat tire. The car driven by McIlroy and bearing Buell Howard, 17, Kyle Holmes, 18, and Clifton Beckett, 19, of Long Beach, is asserted to have crashed into the parked car. McIlroy, according to the police report, fled after the crash and was arrested later in the day.

Wells is in a Whittier hospital and is the most seriously injured. Howard received a fractured skull and the others, excepting Clinton Lewis, sustained cuts and bruises.

WARNING ISSUED

American Sugar Men Describe Cuban Monopoly Plans

WASHINGTON, July 8. (AP)—A defense of the American sugar industry's right to tariff protection and a warning against a Cuban monopoly over that product were voiced in a statement issued here today by E. A. Burgueres of New Orleans, president of the Domestic Sugar Producers' Association.

Arguing that the Cuban government plans to "crush the domestic sugar industry and to substitute for it Cuban monopoly," Burgueres said that "the President of Cuba, with the eastern coast investors in Cuban plantations, want the tariff slashed so that Cuban sugar, produced with cheap labor, would come to American ports for refining at a price below that at which our domestic farmers could grow it."

PRESIDENTIAL MAIL AVIATOR INJURED

ASHLAND (Wis.) July 8. (AP)—Wilbur Erickson of Fort Riley, Kan., pilot of an airplane carrying mail to President Coolidge at the summer White House on the Brule River, was injured today when his plane turned upside down as it struck an obstruction while taking off near here. He was taken to a hospital with head injuries. He will recover.

RAILROAD EXECUTIVE PASSES ON

Howard Elliott, Ex-Chief of Northern Pacific, Dies at Home of Daughter

DENNIS (Mass.) July 8. (AP)—Howard Elliott, former president of the Northern Pacific Railway, died here late tonight of heart disease.

Mr. Elliott had been spending the summer at the home here of his daughter, Mrs. Frederick Wilson. He was 68 years of age.

Twenty-three years after Howard Elliott, still a student at Harvard, started railroading as a rodman in a surveying crew, he had climbed to the presidency of the Northern Pacific Railway.

He began his career with the Burlington system, at the age of 20, and had attained the second vice-presidency, in charge of maintenance, operation and construction, when James J. Hill, the Northwest's "empire builder," brought him in 1903 to the president's chair of the Northern Pacific.

That post he held for ten years, and when the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad needed a "doctor" for its physical and financial ills its directors called Elliott in and made him president. Public confidence in the New Haven was soon re-established, its financial crisis was averted, and credit for the accomplishment was given largely to Elliott.

A nervous breakdown compelled his resignation in 1917, but he took an active part in war-time administration of the railroads, and returned to the Northern Pacific in 1920 as chairman of the board. He was a director in several other companies.

Elliott was born in New York, December 6, 1860, and was married in 1892 to Miss Janet Algernon of St. Louis. She died in 1926. They had two daughters and a son.

Aviator Lands on One Wheel

REDDING, July 8. (AP)—With one wheel of their plane broken off, H. G. Andrews, pilot, and his three passengers enjoyed a thrill here today when they made a safe landing.

Airmen who witnessed the "one-point landing" declared it to be one of the finest exhibitions of airplane manipulation they had ever seen.

Aviator Forced Back to Horta

HORTA (Island of Fayal (Azores) July 8. (AP)—Capt. Francis T. Courtney, British aviator who hopped off this morning for Canada, returned at 4:30 p.m., Greenwich meridian time.

SMOKER'S PIPE PIERCES BRAIN

Aged Canadian Dies in Odd Accident Through Fall While Puffing

NEW WESTMINSTER (B. C.) July 8. (Exclusive)—Victim of a most unusual accident, Thomas Baxter, 88 years of age, of South Westminster, expired in Royal Columbian Hospital two hours after he fell and his pipe stem pierced one of his eyes and penetrated his skull to the brain.

He was walking on his ranch when he tripped and fell heavily. His straight-stemmed pipe slipped from his mouth and was poised on the ground, end uppermost, when his eye descended upon it.

Baxter was rushed to the hospital, but there was practically no hope of saving his life. He was born in Glasgow, Scotland.

New Calendar Up for Debate

WASHINGTON, July 8. (AP)—Another step in American Co-operation with the League of Nations will be taken tomorrow when representatives of government departments and business interests assemble at the National Academy of Sciences here for the first meeting of the national committee on calendar simplification. A thirteen-month year will be considered.

With a view to later American participation in an international conference on the calendar question, the committee, under the chairmanship of George Eastman of Rochester, N. Y., will carry out an investigation and later report to the State Department as to the attitude of the country's industrial, scientific, agricultural and labor interests.

Dry Agents Told Not to Use Guns

WASHINGTON, July 8. (Exclusive)—Blunt warning that vigorous action will be taken in all cases where dry agents disregard the regulations calling for extreme caution in the use of firearms has been sent to all prohibition administrators by Dr. James M. Doran, prohibition commissioner.

The warning is contained in a secretly written memorandum issued after Dr. Doran had discharged Robert L. Taylor, a West Virginia dry agent, some weeks ago for firing into an automobile. The memorandum, which has been withheld from the press, called attention to the paragraph in the manual of instructions governing the use of firearms and admonished all agents to read this section and obey it.

Dr. Doran expressed the view today that the order already has had beneficial results.

Rockefeller, Jr., Gift Sets Mark

TARRYTOWN (N. Y.) July 8. (AP) John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has purchased for $5,000,000 the Pocantico Hills property of St. Joseph's Normal College, conducted by the Christian Brothers, and has given the college $1,000,000 toward the cost of its removal program.

The $1,000,000 gift to the college is said to be the largest single gift Mr. Rockefeller ever has made to Catholicism.

Juanita Hansen Out of Danger

NEW YORK, July 8. (AP)—Miss Juanita Hansen, stage and screen actress, was reported "out of danger" today at the Murray Hill Sanatorium, where she was taken after being accidentally scalded in a shower bath at her hotel apartment.

The actress fell under the scalding water when she turned on the hot water full force by mistake. Her face and body were seared.

ARRESTS EXPECTED IN POISONING PLOT

CHILTON (Wis.) July 8. (Exclusive)—A suspected poison plot, believed aimed at the entire family of Rev. L. M. Harwood, pastor of Trinity Presbyterian Church here, may result in the arrest soon of two persons under suspicion, investigating officials declared today. Rev. Mr. Harwood, who came here five years ago from Chicago, owes his life to the fact that he has eaten only root vegetables from his home garden, chemists said. Leaf vegetables had been sprayed with a thick coating of calcium arsenate, the scarcity of which is expected to enable investigators to easily determine its purchasers.

Officials are of the opinion that the attempt upon the Harwoods' lives may be connected with dissension within the pastor's parish since his arrival here. The minister has received several threatening letters.

PASADENA CITY SALE HITS SNAG

Judge Gates Prevented from Hearing Arguments

Court of Appeal Grants Writ of Restraint

Outcome of Tax Case to Form Precedent

Pasadena's efforts to restrain County Tax Collector Welch from [illegible] in City Hall, fire stations [illegible] public park or so, will not be passed upon by Judge Gates in Superior Court today, as had been expected.

The District Court of Appeals has issued its writ prohibiting Judge Gates from listening to the arguments for the time being at least. The necessary writ of prohibition was issued on the application of Court-appointed Mattoon and Deputy [illegible], and the question of whether or not Judge Gates ever will be allowed to hear the arguments will be passed upon by the court after argument the 23rd [illegible].

PROPERTY EXEMPT

Questions arise out of Pasadena's refusal to pay special flood-control assessments levied against municipal property. The city takes the stand that city-owned property by the terms of the act creating the flood-control district, is exempt from assessment. The flood-control district, on the other hand, interprets the act as meaning that property owned by a municipality since 1915, when the act was passed, but the property was acquired subject to the rights of the district to levy against it.

Pasadena declined to pay assessments on 344 parcels of realty at the end of a year. Tax Collector Welch proposed to mark it down "delinquent" just as he would anyone's property. Pasadena sued to restrain Welch from doing it. A temporary restraining order was issued, and the case was set down for argument before Judge Gates. County Counsel Mattoon appealed to the District Court urging that the Superior Court has no jurisdiction to interfere with the performance of duty by a public officer, as the case does not harm anyone.

TAXES NOT TRANSFERRED

Not only the issue of whether a tax sale," which amounts only to the entry of a notation of delinquency on the tax role, and does not affect title, license & property [illegible]. This question will be passed upon by the Appellate Court. The county will hold that the delinquency "sale" is a book-keeping entry and will not bind the property owner any more than it is already bound by his delinquency. It holds that conveys title cannot be made until five years after the date of the proceedings [illegible] a matter of importance to the county, for if Pasadena wins it will be the way to any property owner who cannot afford to allow [illegible] if it can be avoided. The county claims as to the right to [illegible] property acquired by municipalities since 1915 is faced in nearly every other city in the [illegible].

Power Owner Loses in Crash Damage Action

[illegible] stalls on a railway and a street car hits it, of course has had some bad [illegible] Judge Schauer's jury to determine, under such a set [illegible] was the un-[illegible].

The Japanese boy, owner and driver of the auto, was the un-[illegible] in this instance. The [illegible] was granted the Pacific Railway, owner of the street car, and the street car, and [illegible] in the suit.

The car stopped at an intersection of Long Beach Boulevard and railroad track. A big red [illegible] struck the automobile. Kito [illegible] by an ear. His theory was [illegible] company ought to exercise a flower to stall occasionally [illegible] speed accordingly. The [illegible] argued that drivers and [illegible] ought to know their own [illegible] and stay off car tracks at critical [illegible] you no damages.

RUTH ELDER TRIES WINGS IN PICTURES

First Trans-Atlantic Aerial Feminine Passenger Here for Cinema Adventure

Completing a 6000-mile trip from Paris, Ruth Elder, first woman to make a trans-Atlantic flight, arrived in Los Angeles yesterday ready for a career in motion pictures.

The girl who hopped off last year as a passenger in the plane which was forced down within sight of the coast of France is in Hollywood to carry out terms of a contract signed with Paramount shortly after her feat. It is her first appearance before the motion-picture camera.

In the party greeting Miss Elder were studio officials and a platoon of United States Marines under command of Lieut. A. J. Schmulian.

The aviatrix is scheduled to start her screen work this week.

Yellow Line's Fare Case to be Heard Thursday

Motions to dismiss the amended complaint of the Los Angeles Railway Company in a suit against the State Railroad Commission to restrain the commission from carrying forward its rule against an increase in street car fares on the "yellow" lines in Los Angeles, will be heard in United States District Court Thursday. Three Federal judges will sit en banc to hear the motion. The court also will hear a motion to strike portions of the complaint.

The railway company asserts that it is losing money under the present 5-cent fare and is indebted to the estate of the late Henry C. Huntington for about $9,000,000 because of losses during past years, Mr. Huntington, then principal stockholder, refusing to ask an increase in rates because of his "love for Los Angeles."

LIGHTING REQUESTED

The installation of ornamental lighting posts on Holiday street from Iona street to Bellevue avenue has been petitioned for of the City Council by Pauline M. Hill and other property owners.

PROPOSED PARK SITE INSPECTED

Eighty-four Return from San Jacinto

Area of 50,000 Acres Holds Sugar Pine Forest

Steps Taken to Acquire It for State System

Launching a definite plan of action looking to the acquisition of 50,000 acres of heavily timbered land dominated by Mt. San Jacinto for a Southern California State park, eighty-four men completed a two-day inspection trip at Idyllwild last night. The party included Maj. Frederick R. Burnam and W. F. Chandler, who are members of the State Park Commission of five; Prof. Charles B. Wing, chief of the division of State Parks, and representatives of chambers of commerce, the Automobile Club of Southern California, transportation companies and the various civic organizations of the Southland.

SUGAR PINE FOREST

The trip was made on saddle horses and with pack animals and covered the principal peaks in the San Jacinto group, Hidden Lake, Round Valley and Long Meadows. The section holds the last virgin forest of sugar pine in the State and it is proposed to ask the Federal government and the Southern Pacific Railroad to co-operate in the establishment of the section as a permanent public State park, the area to be maintained in its wild and natural condition without the construction of automobile roads within its forests.

"We feel after what we have seen during the last two days that the public will be best served by reserving this for campers and hikers under nominal charges without leasing cabin sites," said Maj. Burnam, his opinion being concurred in by Mr. Chandler and Prof. Wing.

"Thereby the problems of automobile roads, water service to cabins, sanitation and other matters entailing expense will be obviated," he added.

BONDS PROPOSED

The matter will be incorporated in a report to be submitted this fall by Frederick Law Olmstead, who is handling the inspection of 268 proposals that have been received by the State Park Commission toward a comprehensive development of a balanced park system under the proposed $6,000,000 bond issue for that purpose.

Clara K. Young Case Trial Date to be Set Today

Date for the trial of a suit by the United States against Clara Kimball Young, motion-picture actress, for recovery of money said to have been mistakenly returned to her at the time she paid her income taxes for 1917, will be set today by United States District Judge James.

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG.

It is asserted in the suit that while in New York, the actress made income-tax returns for a payment of $6582.67, and later was assessed considerably more by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. It also is asserted that, though she paid the amount asked, the government mistakenly returned $19,981 to her, which is sought in the suit.

Mrs. Ned Lutz Follows Baby Son in Death

Mrs. Ned B. Lutz of 832 South Lorraine Boulevard died yesterday morning at the Methodist Hospital. She was preceded in death by a baby son.

Mrs. Lutz was the wife of Ned B. Lutz, engaged in the life-insurance business, and besides her husband, leaves three children. Before her marriage she was Pauline Beckwith and resided in Mount Pleasant, Iowa. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

GROUND BROKEN FOR AIR EXPOSITION

Large Plane Draws Plow at Mines Field Ceremony

THE airplane is mightier than the plow, Dr. T. C. Young and several thousand spectators discovered yesterday afternoon when ground was broken at Mines Field, near Inglewood, for the 1928 national air races and aeronautical exposition, to be held September 8 to 16.

It occurred to the committee of the California Air Race Association, which is sponsoring the exposition, that it would be quite a novelty to have the plow drawn by a plane. Therefore, the huge tri-motored Fokker, owned by the Richfield Oil Company, was hitched to the farming implement and Dr. Young, a member of the executive committee, took his position at the handles.

Just what happened during the next few minutes is problematical because neither Young nor the plow could be seen for the dust. However, it was learned later that the undertaking was highly successful. A fairly neat and regular furrow had been gouged out for a distance of several yards and the ground was declared officially broken.

Work of preparing for the air races, which is to be started in earnest this morning, involves the construction of a huge exposition building and an amphitheater with seating capacity of several hundred thousand persons. Grading also will be started on three runways from which the competing aviators will take off. The field, which is a mile square, contains some 2800 acres.

STREET TAX FOR AUTOS SUGGESTED

Tariff for Highway's Use Proposed for Lightening Assessment Burden

Reduce paving assessments in Los Angeles by charging motorists $5 each for the use of the streets.

This is one of the suggestions sent to the City Council by Attorney Frank I. Hogan in recommending changes in the laws in order to lighten and equalize the Los Angeles special assessment load.

The motoring fee of $5 could be applied to the cost of paving, according to Attorney Hogan's plan.

In general, he said that the taxpayer and small home owner is the bulwark of the city and everything possible should be done as justice to the people who now carry the burden of assessments. He suggests that after the Council has confirmed the assessments there should be a board of appeal, composed of public-spirited citizens, to which property owners could go with their assessment complaints and troubles.

The City Council, which formerly asked for only a bare majority property owner's petition, is now demanding 55 per cent, and in some cases rejecting majority petitions where the Council believes the improvement is premature or that there is a controversy in the district over the matter.

Fire Damages Luggage Shop

Fire damaged the Peacock Luggage Shop and rooming-house at 134 North Main street to an estimated extent of $10,000 yesterday afternoon.

Approximately 5000 persons crowded the grounds of the City Hall, opposite the fire, to watch firemen wage a second-story battle with the flames.

Rubber covers were placed over the contents of the luggage shop before high-pressure streams were directed in the rooming house above, saving most of the suit cases and trunks of the shop from water damage. Engines from the Hill-street station answered the alarm.

CONFIRMATIONS SCHEDULED

Mayor's Appointments Up in Council Wednesday; Fight Expected on Commissioner Allen

The annual battle between Mayor Cryer and the City Council over confirmation of the Mayor's appointments to boards and commissions is scheduled to be fought before the Council Wednesday morning.

This year most of the Mayor's appointments will be confirmed without difficulty, as of the sixteen commissioners whose terms expired the 1st inst. the Mayor reappointed all but four. A majority of those reappointed will be confirmed, it is expected, including E. J. Delorey to the Board of Public Works. This is the only salaried commissionership in the list now before the Council.

Walter B. Allen, who was reappointed to the Board of Harbor Commissioners, probably will face opposition. The Council's Harbor Committee is to hold a public hearing on the Allen appointment tomorrow afternoon at the request of the Affiliated Improvement Associations. It is a most unusual procedure to hold a hearing on the question of confirmation of an appointment. Allen has taken credit to himself as being the father of recent unified operation agreement for the harbor rail lines. That agreement has been attacked during the past week by the Federated State Societies and the Highland Park branch of the Citizens' and Taxpayers' Protective Association.

The Council's Welfare Committee has recommended confirmation of the Mayor's appointment of Kimpton Ellis to the Civil Service Commission in place of William E. Schreider. The other new appointees are W. C. Yeatman to the Park Commission, Mrs. F. O. McCollioch to the Playground Commission and Oscar Cummins to the Public Utilities Board.

Passing Men Impressed as Fire-Fighters

Sheriff's office men have been impressing passers-by to fight the fire that broke out yesterday on the Tejon ranch. About fifty men, part of them impressed from passing automobiles, now are fighting the flames, which are heading toward Antelope Valley.

One thousand acres are in flames, but officials say that the blaze is expected to burn itself out.

PAN-PACIFIC TRAVEL IDEA SPONSORED

Hotel Man Back from Orient Tells of Plans to Draw Sea Tourists West

Formation of the Pan-Pacific Travel Association to popularize and promote greater tourist travel to countries on the Pacific Ocean, was announced yesterday by A. Frank, vice-president and general manager of the Ambassador Hotels Corporation, on his return from the Orient.

Mr. Frank was chairman of a delegation of Pacific Coast hotel men who were invited to tour Japan, Korea and Manchuria by representatives of those countries. He presided in behalf of the American hotel men at a dinner given by Baron Sakatani in Tokio, where the hotel association was launched.

All countries whose major interests border on the Pacific Ocean will be invited to be represented in the association, Mr. Frank said. They include Australia, New Zealand, Chile, the Philippines, Hawaiian Islands, Panama Canal Zone, Alaska, British Columbia, Mexico, Bolivia, the Malay States, as well as a score of undeveloped and beautiful smaller islands.

The plan of the association, he declared, is to carry on an extensive advertising campaign, which will be international in its nature, to tell the world of the lure and charm of the Pacific countries, and the significant roles they are playing in the making of modern history.

"I firmly believe," said Mr. Frank, "that this project thoughtfully and thoroughly carried out will be of inestimable value to all those interests participating, and particularly to all of our Pacific Coast communities."

GAMING GOES ON AMID PROTESTS

Gambling Charges Unable to Halt Beach Activity

Investigators Reported to Be Watching Scene

Grand Jury Said to Have No Power to Act

Openly defying a clean-up and close-up campaign launched by citizens of the Santa Monica Bay District, and with managers meeting in conference on methods to oppose efforts to halt their games, operators of tango parlors, flash stands, and other games of chance described as wide-open gambling ran at full blast all day yesterday.

Hundreds crowded the different booths yesterday and the largest Sunday crowd in the history of the beaches was trying its luck at the tables. Many of those present yesterday were drawn to the district by the announcement of the campaign and, according to police, were anticipating raids, riots and other interesting events.

MASS MEETING

Additional plans in the movement to determine the legality of the games of chance along the entire beach front will be made at a mass meeting tonight at the W. C. T. U. hall in Santa Monica, it was announced by C. H. Brown, one of the leaders, yesterday.

The circulation of petitions requesting a grand jury investigation continued and many new names were added to the long list over Sunday, but a new line of attack must be outlined in view of the ruling of the District Attorney. The meeting tonight is expected to decide on the future moves.

Efforts of the leaders of the anti-gambling crusade to obtain an investigation of their charges by the grand jury are doomed to fail, according to an announcement yesterday by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Eagan, in charge of such matters.

"Charges that certain games at the beaches were operating in violation of the laws covering gambling and games of chance were placed before the grand jury several months ago," Eagan said.

REASONS GIVEN

"At that time the matter was investigated and it was found that the games were within the law, and even though the use of merchandise as prizes might be proved a smoke screen cloaking the gambling the only offense would be a simple misdemeanor, and not within the jurisdiction of the grand jury.

"No demands have reached me asking an inquiry into the methods used by the operators and managers of the tango, flasher, or other games of chance, and if the residents of the beach cities should present a petition making such a request it could not be granted and would have no effect in bringing the matter before the grand jury as that body is not empowered with the investigation of a misdemeanor. It would be very difficult to prove that the operations of the games are wide-open gambling, and even were this possible, the grand jury is not authorized by law to return an indictment charging a misdemeanor," the Deputy District Attorney said.

WARNING DENIED

Although reports were circulated freely that many of the games were under the surveillance of investigators from the office of Dist.-Atty. Keyes, attempts to confirm this were futile, and no visible efforts were under way to check the games as illegal. Managers of different pastimes from Redondo Beach to Santa Monica declared that they had received no call from representatives of the law, and had not been ordered to close down or make any change in the method of operation.

It was admitted freely by the management of the various games that a conference was under way seeking to combat the opposition, and operators charged that the entire movement was caused through friction between the Venice and Santa Monica regulations.

DIFFERENT RULES

Operators charge that the Ocean Park games operate under regulations of the Los Angeles Police Commission, and that the Santa Monica situation is controlled by the Santa Monica city officials; and that the two governing bodies permit two different laws to govern games that are running within fifty feet of each other. The imaginary boundary line between the two beach cities is just north of Lick Pier, which places five tango par-

The Lancer

by Harry Carr

THIS boy Frank Wykoff of Glendale ". . .

What are we going to say about him?

To me he signifies a lot more than a clean-minded boy who can run faster than any human feet ever hit the grit before. He gives notice of the fact that America is breeding a new race of physical giants.

POWER

The heroes of the ancient sagas were, in fact, weaklings as we view the athletes today.

Wykoff would have made the fastest Greek who ever ran a footrace look as through he were fastened on a treadmill. The Greeks were so proud of their boxers that they erected marble statues to their memories. Mr. Gene Tunney could lick the whole collection in one ring at the same time and not get up a sweat.

If there ever was a Hercules I have no doubt whatever that my good friend, Bull Montana, could have chewed both his ears off and stood him on his head.

In every way and from every angle America represents power.

OUR ORIENTAL HOME

There is something more than accident in the finding of an ancient ice king, done up in furs, on one of the lonely Aleutian Islands off the Alaskan coast.

It is very plain that all this southwest country had its racial origins in the Orient and that we are going back again.

All the southwest Indian tribes show plainly in their faces where they came from.

WHEN THAT DAY DAWNS

The other side of the picture is that our future is across the Pacific.

Los Angeles has done pretty well already, but the days of its real greatness will begin when it contacts in an important way the markets of China and the Far East.

LEARNING CHINESE

In this connection the University of California is doing a wise work. It has installed a splendid course for the study of the Chinese and the Chinese language.

In another generation Fresno will be about as valuable to an American boy as a study of the Arapahoe Indian language.

Our children will need to know Spanish and Chinese.

FUR-LINED KING

To go back to this Stone Age discovery in the Aleutian Islands:

Either the discoverer has placed his "find" too far into the past or ethnologists have been mistaken as to the period when men first wallowed in front of royalty.

This old chief, whose fur-lined tomb has been found, was plainly a king of the first water. If he was truly of the Stone Age, as the dispatches state, we will have to revise our ideas of the Stone Age.

AN ANCIENT GENIUS

In our own Southwest Museum is a Catalina Island skull and a flute that mutely tell the story of how kings came to be.

The skull gives evidence of a disease which usually reduces the patient to feeble-mindedness; but which is frequently associated with high musical genius.

When this skull was found, in the same grave was a crude flute of different design from any other found at Catalina. Everywhere about the grave they found evidences that he had been buried with great honor.

Obviously he had knocked the boys and girls over with his music and no doubt was in a fair way to be elevated to kingship.

TRAFFIC CASUALTIES HEAVY

Child Killed, Man and Woman Dying of Injuries; Bystanders Arrest Two Reckless Drivers

Week-end automobile accidents rolled up a record of one child dead, one wounded with injuries that may cause her death and a man seriously injured. At the same time the police drive against traffic casualties resulted in the arrest of three persons on suspicion of violations of the State Motor Vehicle Act.

Soledad Padilla, 3 years of age, 707 North Grand avenue, died yesterday at the Receiving Hospital as a result of injuries received when she was struck by an automobile driven by J. W. Carr, a rancher of Whittier, at Sunset avenue and Bunker Hill street. Carr was released Saturday night on his agreement to report to Capt. Bean today, when decision wil be made as to possible action against him.

BLAMED ON CAT

A black cat that crossed the path of Miss Mary O. De Ath, 1023 North Coronado street, brought her the bad luck superstitious people attribute to such an incident. Several blocks after she had seen the bad-luck omen dart ahead of her automobile Miss De Ath struck and probably fatally injured Mrs. Mary Kette, 51, 1713 West Pico street, at Ninth and Green streets. Miss De Ath told police she had been driving a car only about one month. Mrs. Kette, with a daughter, Miss Lillian Kette, was waiting for a street car when she was hit. She was dragged for thirty feet before the car was stopped and suffered a punctured lung, several crushed ribs and internal injuries.

T. H. King, 1531 West Twenty-third street, may die as the result of broken ribs and internal injuries received when he was struck by an automobile driven by J. H. Williamson. The accident occurred on Pasadena avenue and the victim was taken to Receiving Hospital where attending physicians gave him little hope for recovery.

IT LUX LIKE CLEAN-UP IVORY DAY IN CITY HALL---NO LYEING

Twenty-five thousand pounds of soap will be required to keep the new City Hall all shined up during the fiscal year, which began the 1st inst. Building Manager Rodgers has just started in with his new year's housekeeping of Los Angeles' only skyscraper and has begun ordering his year's supplies.

One hundred and thirty janitors are employed to keep the new building clean. After the building closes at 5 p.m. fifty janitors armed with mops and soap tackle the twenty-eight-story building and clean it from top to bottom. Three men are employed in keeping the marble clean. They use special oils. The powdered soap is consumed at the rate of more than two barrels or 400 pounds a week. One man is employed solely in keeping the ornamental tile spotless. The janitors have 507,715 square feet of floor space to clean.

The general expense of maintaining the City Hall this fiscal year will be $121,720, of which $42,000 will be for electricity, which includes the Lindbergh revolving light at the tip of the tower. Janitors' supplies, including the soap, will cost $28,510.

There are clocks in all parts of the building and one man works most of the time keeping the clocks in tune.

As showing the great demand for the jobs of keeping the City Hall clean, 1000 men took the civil-service examination for the position of janitor. So many applied that the examination was conducted in the auditorium at Manual Arts High School.

HAYS LAUDS SOUND FILMS

Executive, Back From Europe, Predicts Brilliant Future for Pictures With Dialogue

Fresh from a successful invasion of France, Will Hays, executive head of the Motion-Picture Producers' Association of America, arrived in Los Angeles yesterday morning aboard the Golden State Limited for a stay of four weeks.

The talking motion picture, while yet in its formative stage, has a brilliant future and will be adopted universally, Mr. Hays said. Sound, said he, will be dramatised when the dramatization adds to the value of the picture. He mentioned the historical value of recording both the likeness and the voice of great personages.

As the arrangements whereby the trade barriers erected in France against American motion pictures were notably lowered, Mr. Hays said it is hoped that the artificial wall will be entirely eliminated in time. He protested that such a law is wrong in principle and a violation both of the letter and the spirit of the conventions of the Geneva Conference.

WILL H HAYS

He pointed out that all European governments are endeavoring by extreme measures to foster their national motion-picture industry as a national asset.

"We hope," he said, "that such an effort does not extend to the point of prohibiting free flow of films from every country to all others as the merit of such films deserves.

"We have no restrictions in America against foreign films. On the contrary, we want to encourage importation of quality pictures wherever they are made. Further, we are endeavoring to encourage the international exchange of such quality pictures. In all of this program, artificial trade barriers are unwarranted."

Youth Shot by Officer in Gun Chase as Bandit Suspect

POLICE HUNTING FOR COMPANION

Three Men Robbed of Cash and Motor Cars

Safe of Postal Substation Broken Open

Woman Knocked Down and Jewelry Taken

One man is in the Georgia-street Receiving Hospital and police and deputy sheriffs are conducting a Southern California-wide search for his asserted partner following three hold-ups by bandits and the wounding of a 17-year-old youth by a police officer near the scene of one of the robberies.

Paul Brown, 17, of 610 Towne avenue, was shot through the chest by Police Officer Ward when the latter was searching alleys following a hold-up at Seventh and Gladys streets and came upon Brown and a companion in the rear of 721 South Kohler street.

REFUSE TO HALT

According to police, Ward and Private Officer Elliott were searching the alley when the two youths came from a rear house at 721 South Kohler and started to run. Both men disregarded commands of the officers to halt. One of them escaped. Ward shot Brown as the latter jumped over a fence.

Brown was booked at the Newton-street station on suspicion of robbery. Witnesses stated to investigating officers that Ward commanded the youth to halt and fired three shots into the air before he fired the shot that Police Surgeon Saterien states may cause Brown's death.

HOLD-UPS TAKE CARS

The robberies took place less than fifteen minutes apart, according to police, C. J. Cheney, 1147 West Fifty-fifth street, being the first victim. Three men held him up in front of his residence and took $13 and his car after forcing Cheney to walk several hundred feet away from the car before they drove away.

C. Rochin, 326 Redondo Boulevard, was held up in front of 734 East Fifty-fourth street by three men answering the same description, the bandits taking $3.50 and Rochin's car, which was recovered a few blocks from the scene of the robbery.

FORCED INTO ALLEY

M. Hirsch, 5723 Hoover street, was robbed at Seventh and Gladys streets by two youths who took $7 and his car. Hirsch was forced into an alleyway near the corner by one bandit while the other started the car. The two men drove away threatening Hirsch with a revolver as the car sped down the street.

A few minutes after the robbery of Hirsch, Officer Ward fired the shot at Brown while searching the vicinity for suspects.

POSTAL STATION ROBBED

Operating in widely separated parts of the city, burglars early yesterday blew a safe in a post-office substation, obtaining $168, and robbed a private residence of jewelry valued at $3000.

The safe in the postoffice substation No. 30 at 9301 South Central avenue, was blown open and stamps and money to the amount of $168 taken.

Samuel Jenkins, 510 North Boylston, awoke Sunday morning when he heard a disturbance in the dining-room of his home. He investigated and arrived in time to see a leg disappear through the window. He found $3000 worth of family jewelry had been taken from its hiding place in the sideboard.

COUPLE ROBBED IN OWN GARAGE

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lacour, 1165 West Thirty-sixth street, were held up by two armed men as they were putting their automobile in the garage. The couple obeyed the bandits' commands to hold up their hands but this action did not save Mrs. Lacour from being knocked down by one of the men who then stripped a $400 diamond ring from her hand. J. M. Gobelin, 3518 South Catalina street, rushed from his home to aid the pair but stopped when the men threatened to shoot him.

P. R. Walker, a milkman, was hit on the head and robbed of $4.50 when he stopped to leave a bottle of milk at 1424 West Fifty-sixth street. Walker lives at 1160 East Sixty-fourth street.

Bandits held up two service stations during the week-end crime ripple, but their hauls were scanty. One man held up John Mossholder, employee of a service station at Thirtieth and Malabar streets, and obtained $30. Another bandit obtained $25 when he held up J. A. Harner in a service station at Washington and West Boulevards.

Two armed bandits locked two employees and a customer of a Daley grocery store at Sixtieth street and Eighth avenue, in the ice box after taking $15 from the butcher, $20 from the grocer and $30 from Al Crase, a customer.

EXPOSITION FEATURES ANNOUNCED

Special Programs Slated for Every Day of Event at Long Beach

Special events will mark each day of the Pacific-Southwest Exposition which will open at Long Beach on the 27th inst., and continue through Labor Day.

Each of the twenty-one participating foreign nations is planning an elaborate program at which lecturers will explain the culture, art, industry and commerce branches in which their particular country is pre-eminent.

Various fraternal societies, luncheon clubs, business organizations and institutions will feature special days. This will be in addition to special sports and amusement programs on the sixty-acre tract.

The Italian exhibit will be featured by a "Carnival of Venice," which will reveal the romance, beauty and charm of that famed spot in Italy. The branches of the harbor surrounding the exposition site will furnish the setting for the carnival.

The French exhibit will be held on special days and the natives and descendants of France will put on the pageant, "Joan of Arc." Natives of those countries will be garbed in native costume on these special days.

The special days set aside for the Scandinavian nations, Norway, Denmark and Sweden, will be marked by programs dealing with the folk lore, songs and dances of these nations.

TRAGEDY TURNS TO HAPPINESS

Girl Believed Kidnaping Victim Was Hiding During Wedding Preparations

Tragedy stalked into the home of Ysidro Sanchez, 1742 Paduca street, when his 18-year-old daughter Frances disappeared from a party of friends in a Venice dance hall during the Fourth of July holidays.

For days deputy sheriffs sought to find the girl or some clew to her whereabouts, but only to meet with failure. The expressed opinion was that the girl had been kidnaped by some evil-motived gang frequenting the beach district.

But the scene has shifted again, according to a report on file at the Sheriff's office, and happiness walked in—taking the spotlight away from tragedy, for Frances is to be married.

Hiding at the home of a friend, the girl sent word to her father that she intends to marry Nickolas Longano, but that she was afraid to return home.

The father told Deputy Sheriffs Sepulveda and Ybarra that in his opinion Longano would be an ideal son-in-law, so the girl returned to her home to prepare her trousseau.

he had been arrested by H. L. Peterson, visitor from Arizona who resides at 40 Monster street, Venice. Peterson stopped Montgomery and held him for officers after the man is said to have driven a zig-zag course on Washington street near Crenshaw Boulevard. The man is said to have struck several cars while careening along the street.

Another suspected drunk driver was taken into custody by a man whose car he is said to have hit and was lodged in jail on a charge of suspicion of drunk driving and failing to aid. Arthur L. Barnes, 5638 South Main street, was arrested by Officers Wilson and Simms after he had been chased for several blocks in a commandeered car by P. H. Finch, 436 West Sixty-ninth street. Finch said his car was struck by Barnes, who fled from the scene, but who was caught when he stopped to fix a fender damaged in the crash.

The day's toll included numerous minor accidents in which injuries were slight.

CHILD STRUCK BY AUTO DIES OF INJURIES

SANTA ANA, July 8. (Exclusive) Dan Hewes, 4-year-old son of Hayden L. Hewes, Riverside attorney, died in the Laguna Beach Hospital late this afternoon from injuries received when he was run over by a car driven by William A. Boegeman, 2720 Newell street, Los Angeles.

The child, according to a police report, started to cross the street with a playmate when run down by the automobile. Boegeman was not held.

An inquest will be conducted tomorrow at the Dixon funeral parlors in Huntington Beach.

Commander Lind Stricken at Sea Returns to Port

Transferred from ship to ship 500 miles south of Los Angeles while a heavy sea was running, Commander Wallace R. Lind arrived at San Pedro late yesterday afternoon suffering from gastric disorders and was rushed by automobile to the Navy Hospital at San Diego.

Commander Lind was aboard the U.S.S. Meduse, bound for Nicaragua, when he became ill. The S.S. President Harrison, sechduled for Los Angeles, was signalled and a successful transfer of the sick man was made at high sea at 3 a.m. the 7th inst. Lind was picked out of a life boat from the Meduse by a boom and a sling swung over the side of the President Harrison.

Preliminary examinations upon Lind's arrival at the port revealed that an operation will not be necessary. Lind had been assigned to the Meduse two days before he suffered the gastric disorders. He traveled by automobile across the continent last week. An operation for gastric trouble was performed on Lind a year ago, he said.

SLAYING CASE SET FOR TODAY

Grand Jury to Hear Story of Keller Shooting

Husband Ready to Give His Version of Tragedy

Wife and Others of Family Slated to Appear

The fate of Calvin W. Avis, who admits that he fatally wounded Fred Keller, June 28, last, when the latter refused to cease paying attention to Avis's wife, will rest in the hands of the Los Angeles county grand jury today.

Avis has announced his willingness to appear before the investigating body and tell in detail the incidents that led up to the shooting. His wife, mother-in-law and other relatives familiar with the case also have been subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury to tell their versions of the affair.

At a Coroner's inquest Avis was exonerated of blame following testimony that when Keller called at the defendant's home he sat on the sofa with his arm about Avis's wife and refused to cease his attentions to her.

After the shooting of Keller in a fight that followed the altercation, Avis is asserted to have disfigured his wife's face with a pocket knife. Avis, however, says that he does not remember doing this.

He is represented by the law firm of W. I. Gilbert.

WEDNESDAY RAIL FARES TO SEA CUT

Pacific Electric Will Have Excursion Rates to Beach Resorts During Summer

Providing marked reduction under regular fares, announcement of low Wednesday excursion rates to various beach resorts served by the Pacific Electric was made yesterday by D. W. Pontius, vice-president and general manager of the railway. The low rates begin this Wednesday and continue throughout the summer.

Under the reduced rates, fares to Santa Monica, Ocean Park, Venice and Palisades del Rey will be 30 cents for adults and 20 cents for children under 12 years of age. A 40-cent fare for adults and 20-cent fare for children will be effective to Long Beach, San Pedro, Seal Beach, Redondo Beach, Hermosa Beach, Manhattan Beach and El Segundo. In the case of the south-coast beaches, the saving by reason of these reduced fares is 30 cents per ticket and 20 cents in the case of west-coast beach points.

The announcement stated that tickets at the reduced rates are good only on Wednesday and will be sold by ticket agents at the Main-street and Hill-street stations, at Hollywood, Sherman, Culver City, Watts, Compton and Gardena stations.

Frequency of service will be increased on many lines and extra cars added to regular trains throughout the rush period of the day.

Art Club Opens First Sculpture Exhibit at Park

More than fifty choice pieces of sculpture went on display yesterday at the opening of the California Art Club's first annual sculpture exhibition at Barnsdall Park. A garden fete, classic dances, music and reading, under the direction of Miss Louise Everett, were on the opening program. Miss Jason Herron, Miss Velma Adams, Mrs. Floyd P. Ellis, Mrs. LeRoy Lennick, and Mrs. Mary Everett participated.

The sculpture included life-sized carvings, decorative groups and panels, flowers, fountains and other objects done in stone, marble, bronze and plaster.

Among the members of the club are Andrew Bjurman, Merill Gage, Roger Noble Burnham, Mrs. Julia Wendt, Mrs. Melba Wilson, Frank Wamsley, George Stanley, A. Kalchamakoff, Miss Ella Buchanan and Miss Jason Herron.

The exhibition is open to the public beginning tomorrow afternoon. It will be in session two months.

Federal Judge Will Set Trials for Two Courts

United States District Judge James today will have a full day's work in the calling of the term trial calendars of two district courts. He will call the term trial calendars for both his court and that of Judge McCormick, now sitting in New York. The calendar calls for the setting for trial of 272 cases during the next six months. Of these 159 are civil actions and 113 are criminal cases.

This day of trial setting does not include the cases of Judge Henning's court, as he called his term trial criminal calendar shortly before leaving for Europe as special representative of the United States to investigate the court procedure in European countries. He will call his civil calendar upon his return in September.

DR. PARRISH RETURNS

Back from his vacation, most of which was spent in Portland and other Northwest points, Dr. George Parrish, city health officer, today will resume his duties, which consist of safeguarding the public health in Los Angeles.

JACK PICKFORD IMPROVES

Jack Pickford, who has been a patient at St. Vincent's Hospital since the 4th inst., was reported yesterday to be greatly improved. It is expected he will be able to return home in a few days.

Dodge Brothers Standard Six is the fastest car, with the fastest pick-up, under a thousand dollars . . .

HOWEVER

That is only HALF the story. The IMPORTANT point is that this exceptional speed is made practical by Dodge ruggedness of chassis and body construction.

OTHERS

Might succeed in building a car at this price with equal SPEED, but to do so successfully they would also have to build a car with equal STURDINESS . . .

AND

That is where Dodge Brothers, with years of experience in building a dependable low-cost product, are years ahead of the field . . . . . .

YOU

Can buy the Standard Six knowing that it is not only the fastest car in its class but the sturdiest—and this one is every bit as important as the other . . .

Dresses of Fifty Years Ago Worn at Celebration

Chic, But Old-Fashioned

Picture shows, left to right, Mrs. S. P. Mulford in a wedding gown and hat worn at her marriage fifty years ago; Mrs. Mary Scott, wearing a gown bought for her in Baltimore in 1860 by her father, who was a delegate in that city at the Presidential convention which nominated Stephen A. Douglas; Mrs. Lena Leonard Fisher, sister of Bishop Leonard wearing a gown and veil and carrying a fan which has been in the family since 1830; Mrs. J. G. Early wearing a fashionable Parisian gown of twenty-five years ago, trimmed in Brussels lace, and purchased and made for her during a visit to the French capital.

ANGELENOS NEAR TOP ON TRAVEL LIST

John T. Cooper, Banker, Back From Europe, Tells of Large Number Abroad

"With the single exception of New Yorkers, more Angelenos are touring Europe today than residents of any other city in America. The passenger lists on the French liner Ile de France, on which we returned, indicate this and like testimony was given by all Americans with whom we talked."

JOHN T. COOPER

This declaration was made last evening by John T. Cooper, vice-president of the Security Trust and Savings Bank, who returned yesterday with his family after three months' cruising the Mediterranean. Mr. Cooper, clubman, banker and member of the national board of Stanford University, has resided in Los Angeles for more than forty years. He is a native of this city.

"The proportionate number of Los Angeles tourists abroad certainly speaks well for the business prosperity of this city," said Cooper in commenting on his trip. "When one considers the traditional habit of residents of the Atlantic seaboard to take their vacations in the Old World rather than in their own country, and our own distance from that seaboard, the large number of Angelenos is all the more noteworthy. Add to these the fact that we are not attracted abroad by a better climate and finer scenery, and our showing on the passenger lists is positively eloquent!"

ST. LOUIS MAN TO HEAD PLANNING CONFERENCE

Harland Bartholomew of St. Louis, city planner for forty municipalities, is to head sessions on city planning at an institute of municipal administration to be conducted August 13 to 18 at the University of Southern California. City and county officials from Arizona, Utah, Nevada, Idaho, Colorado, New Mexico, Texas, Montana, Wyoming, Washington, Oregon and California are to attend.

LA CIENEGA BOULEVARD PLAN GAINS

City Council Takes Step for Acquisition of Right of Way Remainder

Plans to make La Cienega Boulevard a through, wide, well-paved artery from Santa Monica Boulevard to Washington Boulevard were advanced when the City Council took steps for the acquisition of the last remaining section of the proposed right of way. This section lies between Beverly Boulevard and Third street.

It was originally intended to condemn this right of way but the city engineering department reported that all but one small piece could be gotten by deed.

Accordingly, the Council authorized the City Attorney to purchase this small section of land for $12,500 and to obtain deeds for the balance.

With the right of way in possession of the city, the physical improvement work can be rushed through in comparatively short time, it was pointed out.

Meanwhile, construction work is progressing on the installing of a seventy-foot pavement from Beverly Boulevard to Santa Monica Boulevard. There is now a permanent pavement from Third street to Venice Boulevard.

A grade separation has been authorized at Venice Boulevard, and the city has acquired the right of way from Venice Boulevard to Washington Boulevard.

La Cienega Boulevard is included in the major traffic street plan, as recommended by the Traffic Commission.

SENTENCES TO PRISON IN DECLINE

Only Ten Ordered to State Institutions During Week; Calendars Cleared

Only ten defendants were sentenced to State prisons during the last week as the court calendars were cleared of their congested condition in preparation for the vacations of numerous judges, according to the weekly report of Presiding Judge Edmonds of the criminal division of Superior Court.

Five of these were sentenced on charges of forgery, one for driving an automobile without the consent of the owner, two for grand theft, and one each for assault with intent to commit murder and statutory assault.

The list of those sentenced and the penalties imposed follows:

L. F. Fenzler, San Quentin, forgery, one to fourteen years.
Alice Coville, San Quentin, forgery, one to fourteen years.
Hubert Roark, Folsom, driving automobile without consent of owner, not less than five years.
Hugh McGinty, San Quentin, assault with deadly weapon with intent to commit murder, on three counts, one to fourteen years, to run concurrently.
O. Ray Anthony, San Quentin, forgery, one to fourteen years.
Billy J. Kelly, Folsom, grand theft, three to ten years.
James Martin, San Quentin, forgery, one to fourteen years.
John B. Huntington, San Quentin, statutory offense, one to fifty years.
Jacob I. Johannes, San Quentin, grand theft, one to ten years.
Ben Ochsner, Folsom, forgery, on two counts, seven to fourteen years, to run concurrently.

PILGRIMAGE PLAY OPENS NEXT WEEK

A week from tonight the curtain will rise again on Los Angeles' famous Pilgrimage Play, "Life of the Christ," now in its ninth consecutive year. In preparation for the event, the open-air theater in the Hollywood foothills has been given many improving touches. From more than 1000 who desired to appear in the play, an exceptional cast of 100 has been selected. Dress rehearsals, in progress the past two weeks, have given satisfaction to the management and will be continued until Saturday.

NATAL DAY OF CHURCH OBSERVED

Methodist Congregation Service Commemorates Fiftieth Anniversary

Church history of half a century, and the progress of the past five years, was commemorated yesterday with special services at the First Methodist Church, which celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the church in Los Angeles, and the fifth anniversary of the erection of the present edifice at Eighth and Hope streets.

The calendar of events, which closed with the sermon last night, started Friday evening at the 1878-1928 banquet at the church, where a special after-dinner program of music, speeches and a fashion show, told again the story of the intervening years since the church occupied land at 331 South Broadway, with Marion McKinley Bovard as pastor, and when the old-fashioned picket fences kept pedestrians on Broadway from walking over the lawns of the church and parsonage property.

Dresses of fifty years ago and more as worn by the belles of "ye olden days" were a feature of the evening's entertainment. Mrs. M. R. Danman wore her great-grandmother's gown, 150 years old; Mrs. Lena Leonard Fisher, sister of Bishop Leonard, wore a dress and veil and carried an ostrich-feather fan that has been in the family since 1830; Mrs. Mary Scott was attired in a gown purchased for her by her father in Baltimore in 1860, while he was a delegate to the Presidential convention which nominated Stephen A. Douglas, and Mrs. S. P. Mulford wore her wedding gown of more than fifty years ago.

Members of the congregation wearing the costumes of fifty years ago, and others the fashions of today, gave a fashion show under the supervision of Elaine Anderson Dudley, as the closing event on the program, which was highly applauded.

GIRLS LOST TWO DAYS IN HILLS FOUND

Plucky Pair Travel All Night on Foot in Search for Shore Line

After wandering in the hills southwest of Calabasas for more than forty-eight hours, Catherine Ryan, 16 years of age, and Mildred Jean Young, 14, students at El Retiro School for Girls near San Fernando, have returned to the institution none the worse for their experience, according to word received by the Sheriff's office.

Although fatigued from hours of walking, the girls were able to give a detailed account of their experiences after becoming lost while on a picnic on Costello's ranch in Las Virgenes Canyon, on the 5th inst.

According to their story, they started hiking toward the ocean as they believed that it was only a few miles distant. When night fell they found it impossible to retrace their steps so they kept on toward the sea, walking all night. Late the following day they reached the beach near the Malibu ranch.

From there the girls begged a ride from a passing motorist and eventually reached the school early Saturday morning by hitch-hiking their way from the beach through Los Angeles to the San Fernando Valley.

ASSESSMENTS DOCKETED

The assessments to pay for the installation of ornamental lighting posts on Western avenue from Lexington avenue to Wilshire Boulevard will be considered by the City Council this morning.

LINE TO BE REROUTED

The Northwest Improvement Association has asked the City Council to order the rerouting of the Temple-street car line so that it will proceed from Edgemont street on Temple street directly to the new City Hall.

WATER RIGHTS CASES LISTED

Division Chief Conkling to Hear Two Pleas

Los Angeles City Authorities Oppose Wilson Request

Osterkamp Application Asks for Flow of Spring

The Division of Water Rights, State of California, will hold two hearings in their local offices in the Sun Finance Building this week, one of which is of particular interest to Los Angeles residents.

Both hearings will be held next Thursday. At 9:30 a.m. the application of Clarence Wilson to use 3000 gallons of water per day from Glass Creek in the Owens River watershed will be heard. The water is planned to be used as a domestic supply for a resort in Mono county about ten miles south of Mono Lake. The city of Los Angeles is opposing the application on the ground that the appropriation of the water in question would interfere with the supply of water flowing into the Los Angeles Aqueduct. One of the sources of the city's water supply in the valley is the flow of the Owens River.

At 2 p.m. on the same day there will be a hearing on the application of Grace Osterkamp to appropriate 0.6 of a second foot of water from a spring in La Sierra Canyon, tributary to the Triunfo Canyon drainage, located back of Glendale. Thaddeus N. Brewster is opposing the application on the ground that the spring in question is on his land and that he has used its entire flow under riparian claim since 1911.

The hearings will be open to the public. They will be conducted by Harold Conkling, chief of the Division of Water Rights.

INCOME TAX LIENS REAP RICH HARVEST

The United States government has reaped a rich harvest in the southern district of California in collecting additional income taxes, it was reported by Collector of Internal Revenue Welch. Since the first of the year 5000 tax liens have been filed, covering income taxes for the past eight years, it was stated. In addition about $2,000,000 in overlooked and additional taxes have been collected. Many liens are now on file and awaiting hearing in United States District Court.

FRENCH OPERA CHIEF ARRIVES

Presentation Here to be Discussed

Paris Couple Travel by Plane

Georges Ricou, director of the Opera Comique of Paris, and Mme. Ricou, being greeted on their arrival in Los Angeles via Western Air Express plane, by Gurney E. Newlin, president of the Los Angeles Grand Opera Association.

A SERIES of conferences is to be held todya in local music circles at the conclusion of which it will be definitely announced whether the Opera Comic Company of France will open its first United States engagement in Los Angeles in 1929.

Georges Ricou, director of the Opera Comique, and Mme. Ricou arrived Saturday by Western Air Express from San Francisco to confer with directors of the Los Angeles Grand Opera Association. They were accompanied by Gaetano Merola and Armand Agnini.

Upon arrival at Vail Field M. Ricou's party was greeted by Los Angeles music lovers, including Gurney E. Newlin, president of the Los Angeles Grand Opera Association; Merle Armitage, manager of the association; Georges Chartier, Robert Parquhar, R. J. Schweppe, Countess Estournelles De Constant, Lucien N. Brunswig, James R. Page and Henri Didot, French Consul.

DOG LICENSES DOUBLE

First week of collections by the Humane Treatment of Animals Department for dog licenses showed a total almost double that for the first week for new licenses a year ago, according to Rodman Robeson, general manager of the department. Up to the end of the week a total of 1800 owners of dogs had obtained licenses for the new fiscal year. Almost one-half the applicants were women and most of the canines listed were police dogs, although the number of Spitz, Pekingese and Chows pets listed indicate the type is still popular, especially with the fair sex.

NOTABLES DUE IN MUSIC BOWL

Mayor Walker Invited to be at Opening Tomorrow

Other Visitors Expected for First of Symphonies

Many Film Players Listed as Holders of Boxes

A cosmopolitan audience will greet the opening of the seventh season of "Symphonies Under the Stars" tomorrow night at Hollywood Bowl. For the occasion a number of visiting celebrities have been invited by the Hollywood Bowl Association to be guests of honor.

Among these are Mayor Walker of New York; Elsa Alsen, Wagnerian soprano; M. and Mme. Georges Ricou of the Opera Comique of Paris who are here as guests of the Los Angeles Grand Opera Association; and Regina Vicarino, coloratura of Washington, D. C., who will be the guest of Mrs. C. B. Cleveland.

FILM BOXHOLDERS

Sprinkled among the boxholders are members of the motion-picture colony.

Heading the list is Charles Chaplin. During the two months of the festival he entertains many of his friends at the Bowl.

Another boxholder of long standing is Ramon Novarro. In his box may be found Louis Graveure, Lawrence Tibbett and other musical and artistic friends.

OTHERS LISTED

Aileen Pringle also is on the list of box holders. It is said that in the past season, H. L. Mencken, George Jean Nathan, Carl Van Vechten and Joseph Hergesheimer have listened to the concerts with her.

From the directorial ranks Robert Leonard, Paul Sloane, Cecil and William De Mille, and Hobart Henley are listed as box owners, while of the writers, Rupert Hughes heads another group. Sid Grauman will attend the concerts.

Fay Wray and Andres de Segurola are others from the film field who will entertain in boxes.

COURT DAYS EXTENDED

Municipal Courts at San Pedro and Van Nuys, which have been operating half days, hereafter will have full-day sessions, following the issuance of an order to that effect by Presiding Judge Chambers. Municipal Judge Austin is retained in Division Nine at Van Nuys and Judge Decker is assigned to Division Twenty-four at San Pedro, by the order.

Today's Bible Text

Hatred stirreth up strifes; but love covereth all sins. Prov. x:12.

FOR SPORT'S SAKE

The way the ladies have been shooting their husbands of late it is hard to tell whether the dames look upon it as a crime or a pastime.

THE RULING PASSION

An 80-year-old woman has just driven across the continent alone and in her own car. There doesn't seem to be much use in worrying over what to do with grandma any more.

SAME OLD STORY

The folks who used to get blown up with fireworks now get bumped by Fords, so what's the difference? The hospitals get the business just the same.

TOO MANY FLIES

An entomologist insinuates that there are nearly 30,000 brands of flies. Hardly any of them have friends so that it is perfectly correct to swat the whole outfit.

UP IN THE AIR

Now they are making parachutes big enough to bring a whole plane to the ground in safety. First thing we know flying will be so simple that an angel will have to loop the loop to get a hand.

WANT THE GOODS

Most of the threats about foreign countries boycotting American goods are idle ones. Peoples of the Old World are tickled to death to get our wares—if we will trust them or lend them the money for payment.

BREAKING RECORDS

Looks as if these Olympic games were going to be well worth while. If other peoples indicate an indifference to Old World records matching that of our own athletes a complete new slate will be made.

THE GATE MONEY

The Yankee Stadium, where Tex Rickard figures on staging the next big fight, can be made to accommodate 100,000 fans. The trick is to get them excited enough to inquire the price of ringside seats.

THE DISTURBER

Tom Heflin was reported as announcing that if Smith were nominated he wouldn't utter a word during the whole campaign. This was meant as a threat, but there are a lot of Democrats who would be delighted to construe it as a promise. But Tom can't stay still that long.

FIGS OF TEXAS

Texas visitors are invited to notice the progress the big State is making in the development of the fig industry. If Eve should need a new gown Texas will be prepared to compete with California in supplying the fundamentals. Texas already boasts of one orchard having more than 500 acres and it is said that it will produce in the neighborhood of 2,500,000 pounds of figs this year.

STILL GOING

The average cost of the upkeep of the American family car is a dollar a day. Of course this is not all for gasoline. It includes repairs and depreciation and is a reasonable estimate. It may also be mentioned in passing that the ordinary family gets the worth of its money although all this would have been thought riotous extravagance thirty years ago. Grandpa can remember when he thought a dollar a day rather good pay for his labor. He would hate to think of spending most of it for gasoline for his wheelbarrow.

TEXAS IS STILL DRY

They may have a bone-dry Democratic ticket in Texas yet. Several of the candidates in the State primary are running in protest against the Houston platform. They say that the virtuous Texan Democrat can never be bamboozled into casting a ballot for a wet Tammany leader. He aims to be loyal to his party, but not to that extent. Gov. Moody may publicly advise his supporters to stand by the Tammany man, but there will be no private chastisement if they don't. Texas was once the wildest of the wild, but now it seems to be the dryest State in the Union.

THE DEMOCRATIC REVOLT

The revolt of old-line Democrats against Tammany Hall and Al Smith, the "wet" nominee of a "dry" convention, is by no means confined to California. All over the East and South, where Smith must get the bulk of his vote if he is to win, the repudiation of the Tammany candidate is general. The outspoken declaration of Mrs. Clem Shaver, wife of the Democratic National Chairman of the past four years, merely echoes the sentiments of thousands of men and women who have supported Democratic candidates in the past and still consider themselves members of that party.

They feel no obligation to support Smith, because they do not consider him a Democrat, but a Tammanyite. It seems likely that in this election Tammany will harvest the bitter fruits of its previous desertions of the party at critical times. They do not leave the Democratic party; it is the Democratic party that has left them by presenting, as Mrs. Shaver said so forcefully, "Tammany, whisky and a trick platform."

In California, the movement away from Smith has become a procession. Judge Bledsoe, Nathan Newby and a host of others prominent in Democratic party councils have moved bodily into the Hoover camp, not because they are less Democrats than they ever were, but in order to make a really effective protest against the capture of that party by the common enemy, Tammany Hall. The Santa Barbara News, which has supported Democratic principles and candidates for years, announced support of Hoover in the following words:

"It is the Democratic party as represented in the late convention that has ceased to be democratic. Al Smith is not a Democrat, never has been and never will be a Democrat in the sense that Thomas Jefferson understood democracy. Tammany represents everything that is not democratic. It was founded on the proposition that a few men, associating themselves together, might get for themselves, by this association, more than they could get in the simple life struggle. . . .

"If Al Smith is elected President of the United States, which God forbid, the headquarters of Tammany will be removed to Washington and Tammany will be national. Tammany with all its graft, with all its rascality, with all that has heretofore disgraced New York City, will be removed to Washington and will there disgrace the nation."

Smith, of course, has a negligible chance of carrying California in any event, and his repudiation here has significance only to the extent that it indicates national sentiment. That Democrats everywhere, but especially in the South, are aghast at the betrayal of their party that took place at Houston, is the declaration of Fairfax Cosby, local Democratic attorney who was, for a time, considering the attempted formation of a third party.

According to Mr. Cosby, this intention has practically been abandoned, because of the fact that Hoover meets the requirements of an ideal candidate. As supporting Hoover, Mr. Cosby named prominent Democrats in Virginia, Louisiana, Ohio, South Dakota, Arizona and District of Columbia. Under the circumstances, the formation of a third party, which might help Smith as much as it might hurt him, would seem to be a move of dubious desirability. In Hoover, good citizens of all parties can unite, and the suggestion of Nathan Newby that a Democratic Hoover-for-President organization be formed, seems to offer the best means for Democrats to express their disgust at Tammany methods.

Not only because a Tammany man is the nominee, but because the platform on which he stands breaks so sharply with the traditions of the party in many respects, do real Democrats find themselves forced to repudiate it as spurious. Hardly one of the principles for which that party has fought for so many years, not even free trade, is supported by the platform declarations, and so much good Republican doctrine was adopted wholesale that for thinking Democrats the choice becomes one wholly of personalities.

Smith is not even having smooth sailing in his own State. There is a lively contest for control of the State organization between Tammany and a group headed by Judge Proskauer, George Van Namee and Mrs. Henry D. Moskowitz, and, whichever way it is decided, it will produce soreness and dissatisfaction. Since Smith cannot do without Tammany, he probably will be forced to throw his influence to his old associates and alienate many independent Democrats.

Not even for Smith, not even for the sake of party victory, would Tammany permit itself to be edged away from first place at the pie counter.

DISCIPLES OF DR. SUN

At the Temple of the Azure Cloud on a wooded slope five leagues from old Peking, the four leading disciples of the late Dr. Sun Yat Sen gathered the other day to perform a most remarkable ceremonial. In the temple lay the remains of the founder of the Chinese republic, and to this place they had come to give an account of their stewardship, to tell of the victory they had won in his name and to pledge in that sacred place their loyal co-operation to achieve the reconstruction of China along the lines he had indicated before the revolution of seventeen years ago. There in that temple lay all that is mortal of the great Chinese leader, Dr. Sun Yat Sen, and to it had come Chiang Kai-shek, Feng Yu-hsiang, Yen Hai-shan and Li Tsung-jen, victors in the long fight for Nationalism, to perform what the western world would consider a strange pagan ceremony, full of the strange mysticism of the Orient. And yet Dr. Sun was a Christian, a physician of the modern type and a man of science. He was converted during early manhood in an American Congregational Church in Hawaii and had long resided in America and England.

It made no difference with his disciples, most of them of the old Confucian faith, with the possible exception of Feng. They felt, as their fathers would have felt, that they could speak to the disembodied spirit of Sun more intimately in that temple where his body lay exposed to their reverent eyes than if they had remained miles away while addressing it.

A pagan ceremonial? Not so pagan after all, if we accept as analogous the visit of Pershing to the grave of a great friend and ally of America and his impressive utterance, "Lafayette, we are here." And the effect upon the people of China, when they heard of the ceremonials at the Temple of the Azure Cloud, could not have been greatly different from that produced upon the people of America by the simple speech of their military leader in France.

While this sort of mystic appeal may mean little to those who hold that "space is as nothing to spirit," and that, in the Chinese instance, the one appealed to was far from the reach of human eye or voice, it would be difficult to find a better example of the endeavor of the living to pay tribute to the honored dead. True, great tribute already had been paid to Sun by his countrymen, millions of whom not only took up arms for his ideal of a great oriental republic, but cut off their queues and donned the common dress of the world at his word.

BREAKFAST GOSSIP

A traveler and vivant declares that the fruit known in some sections of Africa as the pamplesmousse is our own grape fruit and is duplicated in various divisions of the tropics. We know it as the pomelo, but down Madagascar way it may be called the pompoleon as well as the pompelmous.

These variants possibly spring from the circumstance that the fruit was extensively raised in the royal botanical gardens at Pamplesmousse on the Island of Mauritius more than a century ago. This garden was established when the island was a French colony and has been perpetuated by the British, who have ruled Mauritius since 1810. By the way, Mauritius has an area something larger than that of the city of Los Angeles and boasts of nearly 400,000 inhabitants—mostly brunettes. It lies in the Indian Ocean about 500 miles east of Madagascar and has a right warm climate. Not only the pomelo but most anything else except Iceland moss will grow there.

Still speaking of grape fruit it might be mentioned that this tropical breakfast nearly girdles the earth—although California and Florida are the centers of distribution. It is found in Porto Rico and others of the West Indies.

The story goes that the fruit was brought to that part of the world from the islands of the Malay Archipelago, on the other side of the earth. The transfer from the East Indies to the West Indies was said to have been made by a Capt. Shaddock—whose name the fruit still bears in the islands of both the East and West. There are different varieties and sizes of the shaddock. There are numbers of pear-shaped specimens and some with a reddish pulp, but they all have the acrid rind, which is rich in quinine.

In Latin the fruit is the citrus decumana, but we will probably continue to call it grape fruit—because it neither looks, tastes nor grows like a grape. The authority says that the round or globose specimens should be called the pomelo and the pear-shaped varieties the shaddock. But whatever you call it it is found in California and Arizona at its best.

SMELLS

Some one has discovered that smells are an advantage to an aviator. Even as Columbus knew that land was near by the perfume of the forest far from shore, so the birdman can tell over what section or city he cruises by the smells that rise.

Niagara sends aloft a mighty column of mist that can be detected seventy miles away. The odor of the vapor is also a herald. The salty smell of the sea announces the approach of the coast long before the silver strand comes into view.

A cement plant cannot hide itself in a canyon. A cloud of dust banks high above and expands over a wide area. A peculiar pungency is telltale of many a chemical factory.

The desert broadcasts its presence by a spicy fragrance that lures the winged hero through its wastes, even as the honey bee is coaxed to the blossoms born to blush unseen.

When the radio fails and Will Rogers's barns with signs on the roofs are wrapped in fog, the aviator knows he is over Chicago by something in the air that reminds him of dead horse. It may be the stock yards; it may be the abattoirs functioning. Then it may be some political scent flung out of some dark area way to drive intruders off. As carrion calls the vulture to its dinner up the wind, so the odors of the city point the plane.

The moon is said to have held his nose as he passed over Philadelphia prior to the Butler regime. Folks scouted it then as a bit of imagination; but many are coming to accept it as reality. However, Philadelphia and Chicago are not the only cities that make the man in the moon sneeze.

The radio beam is hardly necessary to lead the aviator to Los Angeles. The perfume of orange blossoms guides him to his haven. Miss Los Angeles is a perpetual bride with orange blossoms in her hair. The procession of the equinoxes is one continuous wedding procession through the year.

Even a beacon seems a work of supererogation. All an airman need to do is to ride down a beam of light in the flood of California sunshine straight into the heart of the Angel City.

BANK OF ENGLAND

The Bank of England is said to have kept its interest rate at 4½ per cent for nearly fifteen consecutive months without change. The adoption of the rate was thought to be a temporary expedient at the time, but it was held through all kinds of financial weather and it has had a strong stabilizing effect upon British finance. London may have lost her place as the financial capital of the world, but the British banks are still bulwarks of the money game.

The Lee Side o' L.A.

By Lee Shippey

RECENTLY we had to upset the pretty legend that Spring street got its name from the spring which still flows in the basement of the Lyceum Theater. Here's a little more light on the subject:

Dear Mr. Shippey: Spring street was named for Trinidad Ortega, niece of Don Pio Pico. Lieut. E. O. C. Ord, who made the first survey of the town, was not insensible to her charms, and called her La Primavera—springtime. When asked what he wished to call the new street, he said: "Why, La Primavera, of course." Trinidad married one of the De la Guerras of Santa Barbara, and the little guitar the bridegroom gave her as an engagement present now is in the Southwest Museum. Sincerely, (Mrs.) Marjorie L. Wolcott.

Marvelous Restraint

The way some girls are painted, B. M. says, he doesn't see how they can look at each other without laughing.

That's easy. They're afraid it would crack the enamel.

They used to say that nothing but marriage would ever cure girls of the giggling habit. So if mere applied complexions will do it, hooray for them.

We still maintain the world is growing better.

No Escape

Watch the men upon the street—
Nearly every one you meet
Wears disguising sort of clothes,
Culled from roguish fashion shows.

A bishop wears a derby hat,
An artist ties a drab cravat,
The plumber slinks in silken shirt,
The real director needs a quirt.

Of course it matters where one buys
His suits and socks, his hats and ties,
But clothes may come from any shelf—
He keeps on looking like . . . himself!

We Lose Our Reputation

To the Editor of The Times: Heretofore I have looked upon your paper as the acme of reliability. But after reading in "The Lee Side o' L. A." about a woman who, carrying two big market bags, dashed out of the Grand Central Market, tore the handles off both bags as she tried to crowd on a yellow car and then calmly gathered up all—all, mind you—of the scattered groceries in her skirt!—after reading that, I say, I know that Lee Shippey must have just awakened from a Rip Van Winkle sleep and is imagining things. Had he rubbed his sleepy eyes a few more times he would have noticed that there is not enough goods in a woman's dress to hold a quart of groceries. Had she been able to crowd even the contents of one market bag into her upheld skirt she would have been a sight from which any gentleman should have turned his eyes. And had she spread it so as to support the contents of two market bags—well, I know it never happened, for I've asked police headquarters and no riot call was turned in that evening. Wake up, Lee!—(Miss) S. E. P.

Back to Earth

Lee: Friends of mine are just back from their honeymoon. In case the court steno ever needs it, here is the verbatim report of their conversation at that first home dinner:

He (as she brought in the steak):
"Is there gravy in the pan?"
She: "Oh, dear! I forgot.
I meant to order a can."

He: "It's queer about this corn—
Just one end is hot."
She: "The other ends aren't cooked—
They were too long for the pot."

He: "That macaroni
Is some considerable size."
She: "Rhubarb comes that shape—
Those are my rhubarb pies."

Misleading Signs

On Temple street: "Apartaments for lighthouse keeping."

At Capistrano, a cottage loudly proclaims, from slanting roof and sides, that fish bait is sold there. But when one gets to the door he sees a small notice. Originally it read, "Fish Bait Here," but now the word "No" leads all the rest.—S. C. S.

Add "Fourth" Casualties

THE BRIGHT SIDE

BY CHARLES COKE WOODS

Looking on the dark side may become a settled mood of the mind. It may become a mental malady. Individuals have suffered, business has suffered, civilization has suffered from looking on the dark side. To keep one too long in a dark room dims the vision and weakens the optic nerve. It also weakens the social nerve, the civic nerve, the business nerve, all kinds of nerves.

Looking on the bright side has been a settled mood with all men of real achievement. Bruno and Galileo and Columbus and Cyrus Field and Bell and Ford and Edison and a thousand others polished up the dark side hundreds of times by looking on the bright side. The darkness is negative. So is looking on the dark side a negation. And negations have never been constructive achievers on the highways of victory.

It was only by looking on the bright side that Copernicus convinced a stolid and unbelieving world that the earth is a planet like the others and that it revolves around the sun. We of today can hardly imagine the courage it took to look on the bright side in Copernicus's day when everybody was in the dark on the theory and the truth he modestly, but bravely, announced to the world. Copernicus came up against a stone wall of prejudice, but looking on the bright side battered it down. He had no easy time in that dark day. The earliest recorded notion about the earth being flat had not lost its hold on men's minds. Copernicus had to look on the bright side and break through the midnight mentality of his day.

Back in the days of Anaxagoras they threatened to kill him for looking on the bright side and insisting that the sun was a ball of fire and that it might be as big as the country of Greece. He had a hard time with the darkness of his day when people thought maybe the moon was created once a month and periodically cut up into stars. But that old Greek's courage was equal to his conviction and he kept looking on the bright side.

Kepler in a dark day, hunted and dogged by poverty and misfortune, showed the wide world the truth about the laws of planetary motion. So it goes on with Newton, his "Principia" and his discovery of the law of gravitation and some other wonderful things. It was only by the heroism of hope that he won through. Looking on the bright side was the constant attitude of such men as Roemer and Bradley in studying and measuring the velocity of light which, at the time of their experiments were considered by the masses as foolish notions.

No man can be a pessimist and a builder of cities or civilizations. That is what lost the ancients the cities and civilizations of Greece, Rome, Babylon, and all the others that dissolved to dust. Pessimisms are bred of false lights and false living. Another name for the disease is despair. In the minor and moaning key of misery a dethroned war lord banished in St. Helena confessed to the world: "I find myself out of harmony with the universe." Pessimism can never deal satisfactorily with barber's itch, yellow fever, diphtheria, farm relief, flood control, a poultry ranch, or the Presidency of the United States.

Facing toward the bright side has more than once recovered whole communities from depression and has brought business back to high tides of prosperity. It has rebuilt broken walls, refinanced disrupted institutions, and put many a failure back on the map of success.

THE GREAT SILENCE

BY EUGENE BROWN

What is the country going to do for its prize fighters?

Tex Rickard attended the national conventions of both of the big political parties but nothing much happened. It was thought that if the Republicans indorsed Tunney and the Democrats came out strong for Heeney the whole nation would be ablaze with excitement over the prospective meeting of the two battlers and good old Rickard would have to get a steam shovel to count the gate receipts.

But the platform committees never gave it a thought. The politicians were so busy trying to fix up something to satisfy the farmers that they overlooked the boxing game entirely.

No wonder poor Rickard looks worried. He hardly knows where his next million dollars is coming from.

If the Republicans had had the courage and foresight to have pointed with pride to the record of Gene Tunney or had viewed the invasion of Heeney with alarm the throbbing citizenship of America might have become sufficiently aroused to scramble for the $40 ringside seats for the encounter between these lusty representatives of the ring.

Had a united Democracy indorsed Heeney and vigorously denounced Tunney as a pussyfooter and a false alarm the citizens of the country would have an issue lousy with interest and Tex Rickard a gate worth counting.

As the situation stands the promoter cannot arouse enough excitement to even attract a bet.

Are the political bosses cowardly or are they merely blind to their opportunities?

TAMMANY METHODS

BY EDWARD C. KRAUSS

On the surface, Tammany Hall, a convenient designation for the New York County Democratic Committee, is a genuinely democratic organization, its members regularly elected by the enrolled Democrats of each Assembly District. But these elections are conducted under Tammany discipline, with the results arranged beforehand and from above, so that the apparent broad base of Tammany's decisions is a sham.

Years ago I attended an election-district convention called to name delegates to a State convention. The chairman had a typewritten sheet before him, from which, when he had rapped for order, he read: "The chair recognizes Mr. Ginsburg."

Mr. Ginsburg, who had made no request for recognition, rose and read from a typewritten slip the nomination of a permanent chairman. The chair, again consulting his directions, "recognized" another man, who likewise read from a typewritten slip the words, "I second the nomination."

So it went with clock-like regularity all through the proceedings. EVEN THE MOTION TO ADJOURN WAS READ FROM SUCH A TYPEWRITTEN SLIP. There was no debate, no opposition to anything, merely a roomful of dummies who carried out orders to the letter.

I had no real need to attend the convention, for the results of it and half a dozen other conventions I was assigned to cover were obligingly given me in advance by a young man I met at the door and who introduced himself as Assemblyman Smith. He had the whole list of delegates to be elected from the Second Assembly District in his pocket.

Yes, it was "AL."

LIFE AND DEATH

BY LANNIE HAYNES MARTIN

Out of thirteen aged English men and women, who were offered a forty-year extension of existence, ten declared that they would not care to sign on Life's dotted line.

This seems to be a strong verification of that crude old saying that "many people are already dead and don't know it." One was blind. The green fields of England, the blossoming hedgerows, the sea, the faces of his children were all blotted out for him, and one can understand how he might wish for death. But with faculties, even partially functioning, for those who could see, walk, hear and talk, life held no interest whatever, death for them would be no change, and it is change which old age fears and fulminates against.

A woman recently visited Los Angeles who is not yet 60 years old. She has independent means, good health and no particular sorrow, yet to all of the interests of life she is already dead. She would not go out to evening functions because she had no evening dress. Yet she wore many diamonds and owns an expensive car. She does not care for modern plays, was too fat to play golf, she belongs to no clubs, reads perhaps two books a year and can be intrigued into nothing new, except a card game.

Each year since 1895 has been a mummy bandage around her mind and she breathes only the dust of departed days, her entire conversation being prefaced with, "Do you remember the day when," and going on from there to repeat, verbatim, inconsequential twaddlings which had been uttered over thirty years ago.

Everything in Southern California was shown to this woman. Miles of beauty, snow-capped mountains, waving trees, fertile valleys, curving shore lines; leagues of achievement, aqueducts, power lines, bridges, roads, marvelous homes and gardens were pointed out to her, but neither the Coliseum nor the City Hall tower, nor even the Hollywood Bowl, could elicit one little enthusiastic exclamation. The woman is already dead, and the only thing we didn't show her was a crematory, for which she expressed regret on leaving!

Another woman came here comparatively recently to live. She boasts of her seventy-four years. She can dance and sing and play the piano divinely. She is writing a novel. She has two or three pet charities, she sponsors concerts, teaches, without compensation, young aspiring musicians, gives lectures and entertains delightfully, and only a few days ago she declared "There are so many things I have to do I hope I can live a hundred years yet." This woman with her fullness of living makes one believe that some people have really been dead all of their lives.

Our colonial ancestors had deep feather beds and heavy bed curtains to help keep the chill New England winter from their slumbers; they had soapstones or hot bricks, and brass and copper warming pans to help warm up, but they had to depend on huge fireplaces, whereat one's front blistered, and one's back froze, before the Pennsylvania Dutch introduced stoves into the country, according to legend. W. B. J.

"According to Webster" has been the last word in pronunciation and definition for Americans for a hundred years. Yes, it was in 1828 that the doughty Noah published his first edition of "American Dictionary of the English Language"—in two bulky volumes each, costing $20. Webster's definitions were noted then, and now, for their brevity, precision, and yet fullness. W. B. J.

CHRIST'S MISSION TEACHES SECRET OF RIGHT LIVING

Dr. Martin Says Master Stressed Necessity of Finding Heaven in Joy and Work of Life

Christ came to earth to teach men how to live the more abundant life and to teach them to find satisfaction in the work and pleasure and opportunity of the present, Dr. Willsie Martin, pastor of the Wilshire Methodist Church, yesterday told his congregation in his sermon on "Joyous Living." He said that through the centuries too great emphasis has been placed on suffering as the means for attaining the goal of true spiritual perfection and happiness.

In the teaching of Christ, he declared, there was no indication that man is expected to inflict suffering on himself to purify his soul. "Rather," he declared, "He teaches us to live today to find heaven here and now."

When this is fully appreciated and the true teachings of Christ understood, a mighty spiritual revival will follow, Dr. Martin asserted, for he said it will reveal to man the loveliness and glory of the spiritual.

"Let us pause and take stock of the mission of Christ," said Dr. Martin. "He said he came to help us to live—to live the more abundant life.

"We all are seeking for the life that satisfies. Some do not know just what sort of life that is. They are just blindly, instinctively groping. That is why there is so much pathos in the picture of human society—men going up blind alleys for happiness only to find disappointment.

"Jesus said man's life does not consist in the abundance of things he possesses. If we study intimately and sympathetically the life of Christ we come to feel that the chief quality of His life was a wonderful kind of joy that gave to Him charm, loveliness and power. His life emphasizes that we are to live today to find heaven here and now; to find satisfaction in work and pleasure and the opportunity of the present hour."

CHURCH HAS AIDED CAUSE OF DEMOCRACY

Since the dawn of the Christian era the church has played a vital part in the struggle for democracy, Dr. Herbert Booth Smith, pastor of the Immanuel Church, declared in his sermon yesterday. He traced step by step the advancement of democracy and pointed out that it was Stephen Langton, archbishop of England, who played the leading role in obtaining from King John the Magna Charta, which imbodied the bill of rights for the common man. Another churchman, he said, Simon De Montfort, in 1265, fifty years after the Magna Charta, called a council of barons, laymen and clergymen, which resulted in the forming of the English Parliament. Christ was the true exponent of democracy, he said, and pointed out that he sought out the multitude and spurned the suggestion of Simon Peter, who wanted Him to live in seclusion on the mount. Dr. Smith criticised the churches who cater to an exclusive well-to-do class and make the man of humble circumstances feel he is not welcome to seek in their handsome edifices a shrine in which to worship.

PEOPLE LIKENED TO ELECTRICAL DEVICES

"Magnetism" was the subject of a lecture delivered by Dr. E. E. Thomas yesterday before the members and friends of the Rosicrucian Brotherhood. Dr. Thomas said in part:

"Electricity is the invisible agent known to us only by its various manifestations. The individual is a perfect electrical plant. Food, water and air furnish the fuel. The solar plexus is the storage battery and the sympathetic nervous system is the medium by which the body is charged with magnetism. Sleep is the process by which the battery is recharged and the vital processes replenished and renewed. The male is the positive or electrical charge and the female the negative or magnetic charge. The male represents the current, force, energy; the female, capacity, resistance and power.

"Each person is a magnet having both positive and negatives poles. The law of love is a piece of pure science, and the oldest and simplest form of love is the elective affinity of two differing cells. Above all laws is the law of love, for love is life."

MAGNETIC CHARM ITEM OF MORALITY

Ardian Sasha, author and founder of "The Laws of Life," spoke yesterday at the Laws of Life Fellowship at Santa Monica in the Council chamber of the Santa Monica City Hall on "Five Principles of Magnetic Personality." He said in part:

"Some folks, upon meeting a magnetic person, begin to imagine that he is either practicing hypnotism or is possessed with some occult magical powers, while in truth the person may possess mere personal magnetism because of strictly adhering to principles of morality. Nothing is as unattractive and lifeless as desirelessness, but desire is magnetic and when well controlled if enters into the inner life and magnetizes the whole being.

"A person subjected to hypnotism has his will-power shattered in relation to all affairs of life, while a person who is influenced by magnetism has his will-power increased. The importance of adhering to moral principles is well proved by the fact that in all studies of psychology it is accepted that the first step toward developing a magnetic personality is absolute cleanliness and purity of body, mind and character."

PARABLE OF FISHES IN LESSON SERMON

"Sacrament" was the subject of the lesson-sermon yesterday in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The citations from the Bible included the account of the third time Christ met with the disciples after he was risen from the dead, on the shores of the Galilean Sea when he found them fishing and told them to cast their nets on the right side of the ship. "They cast therefore, and now they were not able to draw it for the multitude of fishes . . . Jesus saith unto them, Come and dine . . . "

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "This spiritual meeting with our Lord in the dawn of a new light is the morning meal which Christian Scientists commemorate. They bow before Christ, Truth, to receive more of his reappearing and silently to commune with the divine Principle, Love. They celebrate their Lord's victory over death, his probation in the flesh after death, its exemplification of human probation and his spiritual and final ascension above matter, or the flesh, when he rose out of material sight."

RANCH SCHOOL TO BE RAZED

After having served the children of ranchers for thirty-eight years, the old Liberty School, four miles west of Calabasas, is to give way to progress, and a new building, pretentious and modern, is to take its place at Picture City.

Electors of the Liberty School district overwhelmingly voted to abandon the old school and prepare a bond issue for $26,000 for the first unit of the new building. It will be built on a four-acre tract at the new municipality next to the 2766-acre Lasky motion-picture property on Ventura Boulevard.

Two acres of land upon which the school is to be built are deeded free by Colodny & Colodny, owners of Picture City, and the district is providing the other ground.

Stromee Case in Court Today

Col. Leo A. Stromee and eleven others are scheduled to appear today before United States District Judge James to have their case on a charge of conspiracy to violate the National Prohibition Act set for trial. The case has been pending since last March when the government raided the speed boat Crissey at San Diego and obtained documents which are said to involve Stromee, then dry agent in charge at San Diego, and H. C. Ramage and Ralph B. Morley, former dry agents.

Others mentioned in the indictment are Maurice Sugarman, Jud Purdue, George Williams, J. M. Parker, George Ross, Frank Cornero and several others.

HASSETT RECOVERING

Secretary J. J. Hassett of the Park Commission, who has been confined to his home following an operation for appendicitis, has recovered his strength so rapidly that he will be back at his desk in the City Hall this week, it was reported from his home yesterday.

SOCIETY

BY JUANA NEAL LEVY

America's literary tastes are changing.

The unashamed tear is replacing the cynical sneer and the pocket handkerchief the casualness of the cigarette when America reads today. For romance has ousted realism from those other two "R's," reading and writing, in the United States, according to Albert Boni, New York publisher, just arrived in Paris. Readers feel as well as think now.

"People are fed up with the photographic, with the painstaking exact description of what they see all around them," Mr. Boni said last week. "The shift is back to romanticism. Dreiser perfected realism and Sinclair Lewis mastered it in all its petty details. It is no longer novel, and the reader wants something else, especially to be carried away."

Of all the continental writers, Proust has taken the surest place across the Atlantic, said Mr. Boni.

While in France, Mr. Boni is arranging for the translation into French of Wilder's "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," which has attained a sale of 186,000 copies and which soon is to be filmed.

A young broker who startled the world of books a few years ago by deserting Wall street to become the publisher of those familiar little limp leather volumes of selected works which make up the modern library, Bennett Cerf, is now swinging to the other extreme, and in answer to what he declared in Paris last week is "the latest trend in American letters" will cater to the connoisseur whose purse and taste enable him to stock his library with the literary caviar of highly aristocratic limited editions.

"A new development in American literature recently has been the increasing taste for beautifully printed limited editions," Mr. Cerf said. "To satisfy that taste, we have organized the Random House Press. Our editions will number about 1200 books, 600 for the United States and the rest for England and France. We will publish one or two fine books a year, at first only in English."

The grouping of interests and the combining of talents which have featured the growth of American industry are now causing a great transformation in the American publishing business, according to Henry J. Fisher, associate of the McCall Corporation, Harper & Bros., and other publishing houses, who recently visited Paris en route from Italy.

"Weekly or monthly journals with enormous circulations are the thing in America today," said Mr. Fisher, and he admitted that this was very discouraging to the growth of small journals devoted to the encouraging of good writing. The publisher declared that more and more books are being sold in the United States.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lindry, who have been traveling in Germany, were recent visitors in Nuremberg, where they registered at the Hotel Wurttemberg.

Mrs. Louise Silworth of Long Beach was a recent visitor to Genoa, Italy, spending several days at the Bristol Palace Hotel. Jerrold Walton of Pasadena and John Holtz, Granville McGowan and L. T. Kingsbaker of Los Angeles have been stopping at the Grand Hotel Miramare in Genoa.

More than fifty ceramists, mostly Americans, and their wives, who are making a specially organized tour of Europe to see the important glass and pottery works, have arrived at the Central Hotel in Berlin. Sailing on May 19 from New York on the liner Tuscania, they have visited France, Switzerland, Czecho-Slovakia, and now Germany and will go to Holland and England before sailing for home. In the party are Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Curtis, Miss Mabel C. Farren and William Jackson, all of Los Angeles.

Paul Von Neindorff, also traveling in Germany, was a recent arrival in Dresden, where he registered at the Hotel Bellevue.

Joseph Pagliano recently spent several days in Frankfort, Germany, staying at the Frankfurter Hof.

Californians stopping in Berlin include Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Joannes and Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Newman, and Miss Martha Fischer, all of Los Angeles.

Miss Clara Gottschall was a recent guest of the Hotel Adlon in Berlin.

As the season advances, the parties at the Hotel Ritz in Paris Sunday evenings increase each week in number and importance. Last week's attendance was very large and of much social interest. In one party was Mrs. Ira C. Copley of Washington, who passed the winter on her yacht in the Mediterranean, and Commander and Mrs. Randolph H. Miner of California. Others noticed included Mr. and Mrs. Richard McCreery of California.

Mrs. K. R. Renick and Mrs. Martha Keneflck of Long Beach have arrived at the Hotel Continental in Paris from Spain.

Mr. and Mrs. George Pickard with their debutante daughter, Miss Coral Pickard, are at Queen's Hill, Sunningdale, Eng., where they are entertaining this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McAdoo of Pasadena have arrived in Paris after crossing on the liner Olympic and are staying at the Hotel California.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parmelee, who during the last few months have made an extensive tour of the continent, recently arrived in Paris to register at the Hotel Continental.

Alfred Wilcox has been stopping at the Hotel Adlon in Berlin.

Dr. Blanche Weaver is registered with the American Express Company in Paris for mail and excursions.

The Olympic Palace Hotel in Carlsbad, Czecho-Slovakia, which is the only first-class hotel which keeps open the year 'round, is maintaining its popularity with American visitors, who include Mrs. May Owen of Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Nicklin are stopping at the Hotel Montpensier in Paris after having nearly completed a prolonged trip around the world.

Mr. and Mrs. Bayles Ross S. Balcom of Los Angeles have arrived abroad to spend three months.

A NEW BREED

Dorothy had always wanted a dog, and at last a kind and sympathetic uncle gave her one.

There was a certain amount of discussion among the family with regard to the animal's breed. The uncle declared the dog was an Airedale.

Meeting a friend of her father one evening while taking her pet for a walk, Dorothy had an anxious moment.

"Whatever is it?" the other had asked. "A pup, Dorothy? What kind, my dear?"

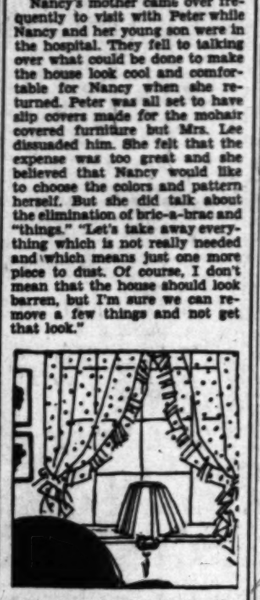
The little girl tried hard to remember what her uncle had said. "He's a ne'er-do-well," she replied, after a long pause.—[London Answers.

NANCY PAGE

Clean the House of Clutter To Keep It Cool

By Florence La Ganke

Nancy's mother came over frequently to visit with Peter while Nancy and her young son were in the hospital. They fell to talking over what could be done to make the house look cool and comfortable for Nancy when she returned. Peter was all set to have slip covers made for the mohair covered furniture but Mrs. Lee dissuaded him. She felt that the expense was too great and she believed that Nancy would like to choose the colors and pattern herself. But she did talk about the elimination of bric-a-brac and "things." "Let's take away everything which is not really needed and which means just one more piece to dust. Of course, I don't mean that the house should look barren, but I'm sure we can remove a few things and not get that look."



Then Mr. Lee presented the house with a few pieces of white pottery. It is exceptionally good just now and does give a note of coolness to a room. The hangings and window draperies were taken down from Nancy's room. In their place were put glass curtains of sheer white dotted Swiss. Mrs. Lee considered a Swiss dotted with green, but finally took the all white. There was no overhanging of any sort. Then Mrs. Lee set flowers here and there. This helped to remove any feeling of bareness in the rooms. It added color and life to the home.

She planned to have fresh flowers everywhere when Nancy returned from the hospital.

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

by Dr Frank McCoy

author of "The Four Ways to Health"

Dr. McCoy will answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of The Los Angeles Times. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

HEAT FATALITIES

Every hot season brings a toll of deaths from heat exhaustion and sunstroke. This occurs when the individual has not taken the proper precautions or made changes in diet and clothing which are necessitated by the change in temperature. Heat exhaustion develops from inability of the body to adapt itself to a rapid rise of temperature. This occurs most frequently when the air is very humid or the clothing is too heavy, which prevents a rapid evaporation of perspiration. By sensible changes in our diet and clothing, we can avoid much of the unpleasantness of the hot weather.

In one of the middle western cities I saw a number of cases of heat prostration in individuals soon after they emerged from a very cool theater into the sweltering external heat. Heat stroke may occur even when one is not in the sun. It comes on slowly and leaves the surface of the body cool and the temperature sometimes subnormal. These individuals always have a sluggish circulation. It is well to place them on a fruit fast for several days, with tepid or warm shower baths, hot enemas, deep-breathing exercises, and dry friction baths.

A sunstroke differs from heat exhaustion in that it is caused by a congestion of the blood to the head. The effect is sometimes immediate unconsciousness, and is often produced by not wearing a hat while in the direct rays of the hot sun. Children, light complexioned people, and those under the influence of alcohol, are especially susceptible. Sometimes death occurs almost immediately. Where this does not occur, there are sometimes serious after-effects, such as a partial paralysis of brain or legs, dizziness, fever, and complete prostration. The individuals who do recover are peculiarly susceptible to heat or the sun for a long time after.

Because of the profound shock which occurs with this disorder, one must use extreme care in the treatment. Ice packs to the neck will cool the blood in the head and reduce the pressure in the brain. I do not recommend the ice-cold enemas that are usually given to lower the temperature, since I am of the opinion that it is more important to secure a thorough cleansing, and warm water is more valuable for this purpose. The cooling may be accompanied by sponging the skin with ice water or using cold shower baths.

The fever of sunstroke sometimes becomes very high, from 105 deg. upward. One who is recovering from a sunstroke must conserve his vitality by as much sleep and rest as possible.

While sunburn is very painful, it hardly ever is serious enough to cause death, although this has occurred in several instances. Much relief may be had by using cool showers or ice water compresses whenever the pain is severe. The skin should be covered with an alkaline oil, such as carron oil, which is a mixture of lime water and linseed oil. This is obtainable at any drug store, and will keep out the air and at the same time neutralize some of the acid products of the decomposing skin. You should time yourself when in the direct sunlight, because the burn may occur even though the skin does not become hot.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Question: F. W. asks: "Will you please tell me if the menus printed once a week in your column are reducing menus? I am too heavy and would like a balanced diet which would take off ten or fifteen pounds. Have been following your instructions but do not lose by using your weekly menus."

Answer: If you want to reduce, I would advise you to change the weekly menus somewhat. A simple way to do is to substitute a fruit meal in place of any meal including starch. If you are overweight and will do this, you will probably lose from three to five pounds a week.

Q.: M. asks: "Is it healthy to drink a glass or two of sweet milk just before retiring every night?"

A.: Not unless you are on an exclusive milk diet, in which case your schedule might extend to bedtime, depending upon how much milk you were taking. Ordinarily, when milk is used at all, it should be used as a meal itself, and not in addition to any of the customary three meals a day.

Q.: S. H. writes: "I am a young man of 20 years and have heart trouble (mitral stenosis) which has existed since birth. I have heard that near my twenty-first birthday I may expect a chance for the better, the explanation being given that during youth at intervals of seven years a change occurs. Is this true?"

A.: It is true that heart disorders of childhood often gradually disappear after adolescence, but do not depend too much upon this possible change. Begin eating correctly so that you do not have an excessive amount of gas pressure against your heart, as such gas pressure is the most common cause of all heart derangements.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope, forwarded to this office, will bring a personal reply.

CALORIC REQUIREMENTS OF THE 4-YEAR-OLD

Mrs. W. D. T. writes: "I have your feeding leaflet and find it very satisfactory. One thing I find missing and that is the number of calories needed by the runabout. My son is 4 and the baby 16 months. He is very active and in perfect health. It would help me if you answered the above."

Answer: When diet lists, such as you find in the diet leaflet, are figured, the caloric requirements of a child are taken into consideration. It is my belief that unless you are dieting to lose weight, or are trying to bring up the weight of an undernourished child by deliberately forcing foods of high caloric value, that you can safely forget calories. The appetite of a healthy child is a good indication of his bodily needs and if you put the right foods before him you can let him eat what he wants of them without bothering about calories.

But, as you think it would help you to know this, the caloric requirement for the 3 to 4-year-old child as given by Rose is 1350 a day.

BABY SHOULD BE ABLE TO SUPPORT BACK AT 6 MONTHS

Mrs. H. A.: A well-nourished baby should be able to support the back at 4 or 5 months, and certainly at 6 months can sit alone without toppling over. That doesn't mean that we should force them to sit up, but most of them want to, tremendously.

Instead of trying to "rub" strength into the back, correct your food. I wish you had told me the baby's weight and present formula, for I could have told you then what is the trouble.

The baby's inability to sleep after being put to bed at night is another factor pointing toward inadequate nourishment. The well baby sleeps without much urging and the best way to regulate his naps is to simply put him down at undeviatingly regular periods in the day until the habit of going to sleep becomes established. This, of course, is easier if done from birth than it is to begin to establish regular habits at 6 months.

The first teeth appear at any time between 5 and 8 months of age and at 1 year the average baby has six little pearls. This is almost as definite as it is possible to be on a subject that is so very individual. I shall be delighted to send you the feeding leaflet if you will send me the required self-addressed and stamped envelope.

BREAD STICKS

One cupful of milk, one-fourth of a cupful of butter, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of sugar, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, one cake of yeast, one-fourth of a cupful of luke-warm water, one egg white, three and one-half cupfuls of flour, scald the milk, add the shortening, sugar and salt. When luke-warm add the yeast cake that has been dissolved in the luke-warm water, add the egg white beaten stiff and the flour, knead, let rise, then roll out half an inch thick, cut in strips half an inch wide, roll gently to make smooth round strips about six inches long, cover with a cloth and let rise fifteen minutes, place on an oiled cookie sheet, let rise again, brush with the beaten egg white and bake ten minutes in a hot oven. Reduce the temperature and bake until delicately brown.

RASPBERRY ICE

One cupful of water, two teaspoonfuls of gelatine, one cupful of raspberry juice, one lemon. Put the water in a saucepan with the gelatine, beat slowly until the gelatine is dissolved, then add the raspberry juice, the juice of one lemon, and sugar to taste. Add a few drops of red coloring and freeze.

APPLE AND GRAPE SALAD

Combine equal parts of apple cut in match-like strips, and equal parts of seedless grapes, three stalks of celery chopped fine, mix all together, sprinkle with lemon juice, serve in nests of lettuce, garnished with cream cheese balls and in a lettuce cup place a tablespoonful of whipped cream mayonnaise.

AVOCADO COCKTAIL

Two avocadoes, pineapple, salt, paprika, six tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, cut the avocadoes in cubes, measure and add half as much cubed pineapple, season, pour over the lemon juice, mix lightly, chill and serve in cocktail glasses, garnished with a maraschino cherry and a sprig of mint.

CIDER CUP

Pour one cupful of boiling water over one teaspoonful of green tea and let stand six minutes, strain over a cube of ice in a glass pitcher, add half a cupful of sugar, mix well, add one quart of cider, one sliced orange, two slices of cucumber and two sprigs of mint. Let stand one hour, remove the mint and cucumber and just before serving add one pint of ginger ale.

Salient Points of the Bidding

South bids the higher of his two four-card suits. North, though holding strong support for his partner's Diamonds, bids one Spade, an improving bid. East's overcall of two Hearts was passed by South, a three-bid in either Diamonds or Clubs not being justified by his holding. North rebids Spades, concluding the bidding.

Salient Points of the Play

Trick 3. East leads a third Heart in response to his partner's call.

Trick 7. Declarer enters Dummy again for another finesse against the Queen of trumps, now marked in West's hand.

Trick 9. Declarer must reduce his trump holding to avoid the eventual necessity, if he retains three trumps in his own hand, of leading a trump up to West's Ace-Queen. Accordingly he leads Dummy's good King of Clubs and trumps it instead of discarding, effecting thereby the Grand Coup, so called.

Good Make-up

Requires a Foundation of Natural Beauty

Acquire it by the daily massaging of skin with the beauty oils embodied in this true complexion soap

A LOVELY skin is won by washing the face properly. Until the skin is thoroughly cleansed never put make-up on, warn beauty experts.

Here is the beauty secret millions practice each night before bed to gain the charm of natural loveliness.

Massage your face with the abundant oils of olive and palm, as found in the rich lather of Palmolive Soap. It is a soap made for beauty, nothing else. And no other soap combines, in scientific blend, these magical two oils.

Spend several minutes doing this—with your hands—Nature's way. The creamy, soothing lather gently penetrates the pores—releases them of their accumulation of grime and make-up. Then rinse—first with warm water, then with cold. And dry by patting with a soft towel. A dab of cold cream is good if skin is dry, but that is all. It's Nature's way to that schoolgirl complexion.

SPIRITUAL THEME GRIPS AUDIENCE

"Window Panes" Offers Many Qualities of Merit; Ovation for Production

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT

(Reprinted from Saturday's late edition)

What treatment would be accorded to the Christ were He to come upon earth a second time? Would He appear in regal raiment or in peasant garb? Would the spirit of His teachings be understood?

Somewhat elusively this theme, not unfamiliar in the theater, is suggested in "Window Panes," written by Olga Printzlau, which opened last night at the Egan Theater, before an audience that manifested a marked response of enthusiasm for both the play and its production. Sarah Padden is the star in a mother role.

Miss Printzlau's play is interesting, and does not, rather fortunately, express a preachment. Its qualities are emotional and dramatic, and it attains several very forceful climaxes.

The setting is peasant Russia. A fortune teller's prophecies in one of the minor villages have induced a belief that the Messiah is about to return to earth. The people await Him and for the most part have congregated at the church in order to make a gala festival of gifts and tributes to the Master, all according to their simple beliefs.

In the household of one of the villagers preparations in a homely way are also made. A mother, and a child who has lost the power of speech, light the candle in front of the ikon in the hope that the Master will pass that way.

A stranger comes to the house. He asks for food and water. He removes the dust from a window pane in the door, which the household was afraid to touch because it "might break," and fills the home with light. He discovers a way to aid the family financially, and then restores the boy's power of speech. He has, however, revealed himself to the boy as a supposed bandit, but a "friend of the people," by an insignia that he wears. The child discloses this to the father, who, in a fit of greed, knowing that there is a price upon the benefactor's head, kills him. The reward for the capture dead or alive of the bandit is thirty rubles, and in the end the father kills himself.

Miss Printzlau's play deals in very simple materials, and its poignancy is at times heart-searching. The spiritual message does not diminish the dramatic effects, and there is abundant suspense in the second and final act. The first is rather regrettably inclined to be sombre and tedious by comparison, though it has several vigorous moments.

"Window Panes" is not strictly entertainment, but it has certain gripping qualities that command attention. One feels that just a little more could have been accomplished in building up this play in the beginning, and that, were it not for this, it would attain a more perfect fascination for its audience, throughout, as well as conveying a message of considerable meaning.

There is no time at which it is suggested that the Christ is portrayed in the person of the Stranger, though the motivation of the scenes of the healing of the child imply this spirit.

Miss Padden is capable of scenes of terrific dramatic intensity, and many moments in her acting, coupled with the emotion of the play itself, brought tears to the eyes of the audience. One has to grow used to the quality of her intonation really to enjoy her work, since at first there is a certain artificiality, in effect at least, about her voice. Her power as evidenced in the role lent it the utmost conviction in the bigger scenes.

One of the clearest-cut performances was that of J. Frank Glendon. I rather imagine that he will be seen in other productions as he was a distinct hit last evening. Somewhat less compelling was the work of Philip Morris as the husband, Paul Kruger as the Stranger, though both of their portrayals grew in merit during the later scenes. Philippe de Lacy charmed by his presence, and touched the heart of the audience particularly in the scene where he uttered the first words after the power of speech is restored to the child. Dolores Miller was worthy of commendation in a small part.

"COSSACKS" STIRRING SPECTACLE

Lives of Russian Riders Spread on Broad Canvas at Loew's State

BY PHILIP K. SCHEUER

(Reprinted from Saturday's late edition)

The Cossacks of Imperial Russia thundered into Loew's State Theater yesterday in a motion picture named after them—one which attained almost to the proportions of an epic. Quite the most spectacular of the movies currently on exhibition, it detailed with picturesque and telling power the life and times of a people for whom sufficed the simple creed, "Man must fight and woman must work—and over all is God."

"The Cossacks" is the production of George Hill, a director who brings to his task a workmanlike knowledge of the tools of his craft without displaying any marked touches of brilliance. There is a looseness of construction about the whole which detracts from the appeal of the characters with whom the story is more specifically concerned, and makes it rather a series of disjointed episodes—colorful enough in themselves—which do not forward the narrative until interest in the chief protagonists has become little more than cursory.

The lack of suspense manifests itself clearly in the opening reels of the picture. Following a lively introductory sequence in which the warriors ride home from a foray against the Turks, there is a great deal of backing and filling in which the Cossacks are shown about their daily lives—these consisting mainly, as the observer sees it, in drinking and roistering. There is, of course, no objection to all this partying as partying, but it lessens the importance of Lukashka and Maryana, the two lovers (played by John Gilbert and Renee Adoree) in whom the producers—to judge by what follows—apparently would interest us.

Lukashka wins the derisive sobriquet of "woman man" among his tribe because of his distaste for fighting. His abrupt transition into a bloodthirsty warrior, and the subsequent splitting of the action into two parts—one for Lukashka and one for the girl, Maryana—tend further to weaken the structure of the intimate story.

It is in its larger aspects, then, that "The Cossacks" achieves notability. The panoramic sweep of the dashing horsemen, the sadistic brutality of hating men, the festivals and the weddings paint a canvas alive with towering figures and streaked with scarlet. The grim humor of these devil-may-care riders of the Czar breaks often through their surface malignity, and their religious devotion commands respect for its very simplicity.

One of the most memorable of the flashes into their natures comes when the ataman, the leader of the clan, exhorts his comrades to greater effort in battle against the Turks in this wise "We'll slit every unbelieving throat that gurgles in these mountains . . . Now—to prayer!"

The love story of Gilbert and Miss Adoree, those two with whom we suffered so gloriously in "The Big Parade," flourishes at intervals. Gilbert is his same dashing self; and while he is given no opportunity for the superb acting of which he has proved himself capable in other films, he makes every scene in which he appears count. Technically he is the star of "The Cossacks," but for long sequences he is quite out of the picture—a generous gesture for one of the screen's leading men.

Miss Adoree impresses again with her sincerity. She is well cast as the girl, Maryana.

Ernest Torrence, as Gilbert's father, contributes one of his never-failing portrayals. He is a fearful and compelling figure; a true ataman.

In the large list of performers are Nils Asther, as the foppish magnificence from Moscow; Sidney Bracey in the role of a servant, caricatured a bit too broadly; Dale Fuller, Mary Alden, Paul Hurst and many others.

"The Cossacks," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, was adapted from a novel of Lyof N. Tolstoi's by Frances Marion. Titles are by John Colton.

An extremely imaginative Fanchon and Marco Idea, "Mars," with Jack Waldron—a master of ceremonies of the Benny Rubin type—Huff and Hunt, John and Harriett Griffith, the Three Musketeers, Steve Savage and others, brightens the stage portion of the show.

To win a wager of $3000, Mrs. Carmen Reggio climbed to the top of the Woolworth Building in New York City, fifty-eight flights of stairs.

New Fan Public Takes Up Pens

Fan mail has more than doubled since the advent of the "speakies," according to the cast of "The Lion and the Mouse," Warner Brothers' talking picture, which begins its third week at the Tower.

Scores of letters pour into the homes of the stars daily regarding their voices. So many people feel that they know the artist just from hearing him talk. There is a warmth to the pictures of the talking type, and persons who have probably never written a fan epistle before in their lives doubtless feel the urge now.

Lionel Barrymore, who is seen as "Ready Money" Rider in "The Lion and the Mouse," finds his fan mail has tripled. May McAvoy, William Collier, Jr., and Alice Frances open twice as many envelopes now.

With the beginning of the third week new Vitaphone presentations will be seen and heard. Bert Swor, comedian and minstrel, will be presented in "Duck and Deduct."

CRITERION SHOWS PLEASING COMEDY

(Reprinted from Saturday's late edition)

An innocuous little film comedy, "Say It With Love," was given its first local showing as the feature of the Criterion's new program, yesterday afternoon. Largely due to the naturalness of its three principals—Shirley Mason, William Collier, Jr., and Johnny Walker—it rode above occasional bumps of inconsistency and managed to provide a pleasant cinematic hour.

The three characters in question were a prize-fighter, a designer of women's wear and a girl who worked in a delicatessen shop. The designer—played by Collier—was in love with the girl; but his suit for her affections didn't impress her as much as did the prize-fighter's. It was only when the designer put on the gloves and got into the ring with the fighter that she realized how much she cared for him.

It is this ring battle which spectators will find a rare tidbit of entertainment.

The production has been nicely mounted by Columbia Pictures and Frank Capra's direction is eminently satisfactory throughout.

Besides the three players mentioned, William Strauss has a prominent part.

High lights of the new issue of Fox Movietone News are, briefly: scenes of the Democratic convention at Houston; a celebration of the birthday of King George of England; a sequence called "Around the World With Athletes," and showing a diving contest in Detroit; a boat race on the Thames; a tennis match with Helen Wills, and a barnyard idyll.

Once again the "talking weekly" impresses with its uncanny ability to recreate places and people, to record in imperishable manner the happenings befalling this world we live in.

Finally, there is a film history of modern transoceanic aviation—"Winging Westward"—and an "Out of the Inkwell" cartoon.

COURTENAY STUDIOS MAGIC IN TIME OFF

The postman who goes on a walking tour for his vacation and the stage door man who visits other stage door men on his day off have nothing on William Courtenay, star of "The Spider" at the Belasco Theater. Courtenay plays the role of a magician and mind reader who solves a murder mystery to the entire satisfaction of the police.

Courtenay spends his afternoons in rambling around stores that sell magical tricks or talking to amateur magicians and his evenings when not on the stage in sitting in his dressing-room reading detective stories.

MISS COMPSON AT WORK

Betty Compson is playing her third big "crook girl" part within the past few months at Paramount, opposite George Bancroft in "The Docks of New York." As soon as she completes this, Miss Compson is to return to First National for another role, according to reports emanating from that studio.

"SIREN" SAVED FROM NOOSE

(Reprinted from Saturday's late edition)

Whew! What Dorothy Revier as "The Siren" doesn't suffer in the picture of that name now at the West Coast Boulevard isn't worth mentioning.

Dorothy as Barbara Eaton, otherwise known as the siren, is a dashing, sophisticated young heiress in the opening sequences of this melodrama from the Columbia studios. Marooned by a flat tire on a mountain road during a blinding rainstorm, she seeks refuge in a lonely and deserted cabin. She has just made herself comfortable and dropped off to sleep by a fire of her own making, when the owner arrives on a hunting trip.

Well, this turns out happily, for it seems the owner, as played by Tom Moore, is a handsome young bachelor who is quite smitten with Dorothy's charms. They spend a pleasant evening talking.

The next scene reveals a party in progress at Dorothy's sumptuous home. A notorious card-sharp, as played by Norman Trevor, is paying ardent attention to her. She, however, treats him most casually. The young bachelor friend of the cabin turns up. There is an argument over cheating at cards and Dorothy orders the gambler from the house. He returns later, fights with Moore—in the midst of which battle a lamp is overturned and the house set on fire. And, yes, it seems that Dot takes a shot at the villain as he is about to throw a chair or table or something at Tom.

The house is razed. It would seem that the villain has been burned to death. But, h'ast! It is not so. He has escaped and is nursing feelings of revenge for the girl who spurned him. By devious means, he casts suspicion on her, has her arrested, tried and sentenced to be hanged by the neck for his murder.

We pass next to the penitentiary. There ensue here a series of harrowing scenes when Dorothy tearfully bids Tom good-by, ascends the thirteen steps to the gallows while prayer is offered for her soul and a group of newspaper men and spectators gather to watch her execution. In this watching group is the man who is supposed to have been murdered. It seems his experiences have so affected him that he is completely changed and unrecognizable.

Someway or another, Tom, (who has never given up hope,) discovers the villain, rushes to the execution chamber in time to denounce the culprit and secure Dorothy's release. The final shot shows the happy couple on their honeymoon in the cabin where they met.

If it were not so violently melodramatic, the picture might be much more interesting, for it is astonishingly vivid at times. As it is, it passes all bounds of credulity and what might have passed for suspense, had more restraint been used in plot development, seems only far-fetched nonsense.

Jed Prouty and Otto Hoffman also have roles.

On the stage this week at the Boulevard is the genial Gene Morgan with a new bag of funny tricks and snappy jazz selections, Bobby Agnew, Florence Foreman, Andy Rice, Jr., and Chucky Callahan in a West Coast variety show. The comedy is a Pathe release, "Love at First Sight."

FUEL ADDED TO KENNEDY ROW

Mrs. McPherson's Mother Offers Telegram Proof

Fresh fuel to the controversy now raging between Aimee Semple McPherson and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, was thrown on the scorching exchanges between the evangelist and the mother yesterday when Mrs. Kennedy in Seattle refuted her daughter's assertion that she had never received a certain telegram charging a "scheme to mortgage the church for personal gain," and stating that she had a receipt from the telegraph company showng delivery of the message.

"I sent the telegram to protect my own interests," Mrs. Kennedy said. "Aimee had told me in letters that she planned to mortgage Angelus Temple for $250,000. I sent the telegram to make my position clear and let everyone know that I did not approve of it."

Referring to Mrs. McPherron's denial of receiving the telegram, Mrs. Kennedy said: "I expected to have some trouble about that telegram so I saw to it that I would get a signed receipt from Aimee when the telegram was delivered."

LAUNCH RESCUES BATHERS

Deliberately driving his launch aground yesterday afternoon in the surf near the Playa del Rey Pier, Capt. Hans Carstensen saved a woman and two men from drowning, and gave his thirty passengers an unexpected thrill.

Carstensen operates the launch Owl plying between the pier and the fishing barge Billings, and yesterday, while returning to shore with a load of passengers, saw the three people struggling with the heavy swells and in the in-coming tide. One of the men was calling for aid, while the woman and other man were exhausted. Observing the condition of the bathers, Carstensen veered from his course, sent the launch onto the sand and, with the aid of his assistant, picked up the near-drowned trio and took them to the pier. His act was applauded by the hundreds of people on the pier.

The names of the rescued were not obtained as they made their way through the crowd and left in an automobile after first-aid treatment.

Neighbors Balk Attacker of Kin

J. H. Stanfield, 38 years of age, is in jail today on a charge of suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon following what the police say was the pursuit of his wife, Anna M., and his daughter, Mrs. Alma Harris, with a butcher knife.

According to the police neighbors were forced to intervene and subdue Stanfield, who lives at 1233 West Ninety-seventh street, when he started to attack his relatives. According to Deputy Sheriffs Snyder and Hammond, Stanfield finally was held by W. R. Faulkner and A. G. Hammond.

JEWISH YOUTH GROUP WILL MEET TONIGHT

A rally of the Jewish youth organizations will be held tonight at the Hamburger Home, 1225 South Union avenue, as a preliminary to the Midsummer Night's Frolic the evening of the 25th inst. at the Breakers Club, Santa Monica, under the sponsorship of the Jewish Junior Service Council. The affair is being arranged for the benefit of the United Jewish Appeal to raise $200,000 for numerous national and international Jewish institutions. Final plans for the frolic will be laid at the rally.

Y.M.C.A. Opens Its Swimming Drive Today

Every boy in Los Angeles who cannot swim has the opportunity to learn beginning today and ending Friday. The campaign is being instituted nationally by the Y.M.C.A. and is free to all boys between the ages of 10 and 16 years.

All boys who cannot swim may report at one of the four Y.M.C.A. pools, located at 715 South Hope street, the Hollywood branch at Hudson and Selma avenues, the San Pedro branch, or the colored branch at 1006 East Twenty-eighth street.

Competent instructors will be in charge to train the boys.

BATHER HURT IN SURF

SANTA MONICA, July 8. (Exclusive)—Chester G. Desmond, 24 years of age, of San Francisco, is recovering today from injuries received when he was pitched from a surfboard, and then struck in the side by the board. Lifeguards dragged Desmond from the water. His injuries are said not be serious. He is at St. Catherine's Hospital. Desmond was stopping at 1322 Hauser Boulevard, Los Angeles.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL GROUP ARRIVES

More Delegates Due Today for World Session

Oriental Children Greeted in San Francisco

Large Chorus Will Feature One of Meetings

The advance guard of the 7000 delegates who are scheduled to attend the world's tenth Sunday-school convention in the Shrine Auditorium, starting Wednesday, arrived here yesterday. More delegates are expected today by train from the East.

Two hundred boys and girls from Japan, China and Korea, on their way to the convention, were given the keys to San Francisco yesterday, according to a dispatch from the northern city. The children are accompanied by missionary workers from their respective countries.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union is planning to have a poster display as a feature of the convention. A complete exhibit of the organization's new posters will be on view at the sessions. An American flag made of pledge cards signed by boys and girls of an eastern Sunday-school will be shown by the temperance organization.

A chorus of 5000 voices will mark the single public session of the convention to be conducted in the Hollywood Bowl on the night of the 15th inst. The chorus will help create a festival of song to be presented by the convention with the co-operation of the Los Angeles Playground Department.

Hundred Planes Arrive Thursday

Among the 200 or so air travelers who will arrive in Los Angeles next Thursday with the fourth annual National Air Tour will be eleven women, it was stated yesterday by J. L. Maddux, chairman of the local executive committee. They will be given a special reception by Los Angeles women when 100 or more planes come to a landing at Mines Field at 2 p.m. Among the women will be Miss Phoebe Fairgrove Omlie, pilot of a monocoupe, and first woman ever to enter in a commercial-airplane-efficiency contest. The other ten women are tourist and sightseeing passengers. When the air tourists reach this city they will have covered approximately one-half of their 6000-mile trip, which started from Detroit on June 30, last. Points scored on each lap so far will be counted here, and will indicate probable winners in the contest for the Edsel B. Ford efficiency trophy and more than $12,000 in cash prizes.

Survivors of Custer's Band Hold Reunion

SANTA MONICA, July 8. (Exclusive)—Memories of the stirring days of the Indian wars were revived here today, when five of the surviving members of Gen. Custer's regimental band, the Seventh United States Cavalry Band, held a reunion at the home of Earnest Wilhelmi, 318 Bay street. Wilhelmi, who is 72 years of age, and one of the survivors, had arranged dinner on the lawn of his place under a vine-covered arbor.

The others at the reunion were Thomas Toulan, Edward Tallman and Thomas Mew of Los Angeles; John Kantz, Tujunga, and with them were their wives and friends. Little William Thomas Stevens, great-grandson of Edward Tallman, was an interested guest.

The old men described how quite fortunately Custer's band was not with the regiment at the time Custer and all his men were massacred by the Sioux Indians on June 25, 1876.

Mrs. Mary McNew, 9644 Victoria street, South Gate, was guest of honor. In her girlhood, Mrs. McNew made a pet of Gen. Custer's famous horse, Commanche, which escaped from the massacre.

State Societies Make Plans for Summer Picnics

Kansas will be host to Oklahoma Thursday night at Veterans' Hall, 246 South Hill street. Judge Schooch will be master of ceremonies. Oklahomans will be represented by Judge Bryan. A program of readings, musical numbers, roll calls and prize awards will precede the dancing.

Tomorrow the Pennsylvania Society will meet to plan the annual picnic in Bixby Park, Long Beach, next Saturday.

Illinoisans will hold no indoor meetings in July. The annual summer picnic will be held the 21st inst., in Bixby Park.

The Wyoming Society has adjourned for the summer. Friday evening the Texans will meet at 1137 South Hope street, for an entertainment and dance.

Gov. Hammill of Iowa will be speaker of the day at a summer picnic to be held in Bixby Park August 11. More than 120,000 residents of the Hawkeye State are expected to be present.

Gov. Hunt of Arizona may address the Arizona picnic the 19th inst.

PAIR LEASE RIGHTS TO BANNED DRAMA

Ed W. Rowland and A. Leslie Pearce have no connection with the production of the play "The Captive," in San Francisco, they announced yesterday. The local producers of the play, which was banned here, have by consent of the owner, Horace Liveright of New York, leased their rights to the production to Ben Giroux of San Francisco. Giroux expects to produce the play in San Francisco, with the cast which appeared here before the play was closed by the City Prosecutor's office.

Pioneer to be Buried Today

Final rites will be conducted for Adam B. Buner, 82 years of age, a veteran of the Civil War, at the Sawtelle chapel at 9 a.m. today. Bruner died Saturday at the Sawtelle Soldiers' Home.

Bruner first came to California in 1869, crossing the plains in a prairie schooner. For many years he was a railroad engineer and was present at Promotory Point, Utah, where the golden spike was driven joining the rails of Central Pacific and Union Pacific railroads. He was a member of Gen. Cook's Post of Indian Fighters and a member of the G.A.R.

He leaves a daughter, Pearl, and three sons, Thomas J., John B. and Edwin L., all of Los Angeles.

ASSESSMENTS CONSIDERED

The improvement of Flora avenue from Eva Terrace to Sierra street having been completed, the City Council this morning will consider the assessments to pay for the work.

Following Three Events In the Hollywood Store Only

These events take place only in the Hollywood Store because these particular departments have no representation as yet in the Dyas Los Angeles Store.

Surely this is added inducement for people adjacent to the Hollywood Store to learn more about this beautiful institution and its complete and glorious stocks.

Hollywood at Vine — very easy of access.

July Sale China Dinnerware

Those who already know the wide and interesting assortment of dinnerware in the China section of the Dyas Hollywood store will be eager to avail themselves of the savings possible in this July sale.

Those who as yet have not visited this section will find it a profitable pleasure to become acquainted during this July event.

Swiss Organdies---A July Feature at 55¢

A price conspicuously low for quality notably good

With summer just well under way and hundreds of light, airy, organdy dresses yet to be made—both women and misses will appreciate the very generous saving offered in this timely organdy event.

These organdies are a very superior quality—excellent finish, 45 inches wide, in a host of dainty light summer tints, as well as the medium and darker colors. Priced conspicuously low!

DYAS CO.—SECOND FLOOR

Rayon Satins—Special 95c Yd.

Widely known as Miraglow, having a high satin lustre finish. At 95c a yard, there is a generous saving possible in the making of negligees, slips, or frocks—and the wearing quality and popularity of this fabric are too well known to need comment. 39 inches wide in 18 colors.

DYAS CO.—SECOND FLOOR

"English" Pattern Prints 35c Yd.

Domestic prints—just as serviceable and showing practically the same colorings as the imported prints at much higher price. An assortment of colorings and designs. The ideal fabric for kiddies' frocks and utility wash frocks of every kind. 32 inches wide.

DYAS CO.—SECOND FLOOR

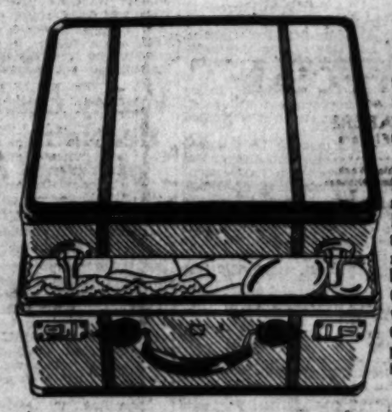
And Now—

Featherlite Migrators

—first at Dyas

35.00

"Plane Luggage" weighs but 6 lbs.



With popularity for the Winship Migrator well established, people appreciating light weight luggage will welcome this addition to the Winship family.

Made of three ply laminated lumber, covered with Belgian linen, it is attractively touched with bright red stripes. If you do not know the Migrator, be sure to learn of its many advantages before your next trip—"the hat box that packs like a wardrobe trunk."

DYAS CO.—LOWER STREET FLOOR

Winship Case 25.00

"Plane Luggage" weighs but 3 lbs.

A companion piece to the Migrator, equally beautiful and of even lighter weight. Same construction as the Migrator—beautifully lined and an altogether desirable piece of smart, light-weight, durable luggage. Shown first in the Dyas Luggage Shops—this Winship luggage again establishes Dyas leadership.

OTHER GENUINE WINSHIP MIGRATORS 12.50 to 18.00

July Event --- Travel Bags

below regular pricing at

Bought advantageously, the savings are gladly passed on to you—to further emphasize the importance of Dyas July events. There are just 200 bags from which to choose—all fine leathers, such as Cowhide, Seal, Walrus, and Pigskin, in the 18" size with single and double handles.

All are hand made—another point for their service and value. Smart, new and distinctive—better see them before the vacation.

DYAS CO.—LOWER STREET FLOOR

Men's All Wool Golf Hose 2.45

Here is a rare opportunity to save in the purchase of very fine golf hose. These are mostly McGregor hose—than which there is nothing better, as all men know.

Excellent variety of colors and patterns—the very newest, smartest ideas from over-seas. It is not too much to say that in the regular way these hose would sell for 5.00 and 6.50. Another instance of Dyas leadership—value giving in timely, desirable merchandise.

DYAS CO.—LOWER STREET FLOOR

Again! Answering Popular Demand

Allen-A Chiffon Hose

1.00 Pair

3 Pairs 2.75

Here again we have the Dyas hosiery section announcing a stirring sale on a very popular hosiery item. Everyone knows Allen-A silk hosiery—knows it for wear, beauty and beautiful colors. These hose have the popular pointed heel, are inconspicuously reinforced with lisle, having an all-silk sole. They are silk from top to toe and certainly offer value at these prices.

The famous Allen-A semi-fashioned, the semi-fashioning that fits and retains its shape after repeated washings. Time to think well ahead to future needs when value like this is available.

DYAS CO.—STREET FLOOR

rhinestone bracelets 5.00

—a July event tells the story

Beautiful bracelets—as brilliant, practically, as real stones—and such as many women purchase to wear with their real gem collections. Reproductions of genuine platinum diamond set bracelets—set by hand with especially fine cut rhinestones.

Sapphire colored stones—Bagette stones and Emerald colored stones in combination with white rhinestones—or solid white stones if you prefer.

No matter what your choice, the value is there. Quantity limited—so it may be well to shop early.

NEWS OF SOUTHERN COUNTIES

TULARE COUNTY FORGES AHEAD IN AGRICULTURE

Visalia Impresses Writer With Cultured Hospitality and Spirit of Enterprise

BY FRED HOGUE

VISALIA, July 8.—Listed by the value of its agricultural products, Tulare county, eighteen years ago, ranked nineteenth in the United States; eight years ago it was fifth. Enthusiasts here assert that in 1930 it will advance at least to third place. Such growth in agricultural production is without parallel, even in this State of marvels, California.

Tulare county is the land of the fruit and the vine. They tell me here that it produces more oranges annually than any other California county, and that it markets them earlier.

Tulare peaches took the gold medal in a Paris exposition, in competition with the most noted peach-growing districts of the world.

Tulare county grapes bring the highest prices in the eastern markets.

Tulare county cotton sells at a premium. In the next Federal census it will appear for the first time as a cotton-growing county.

On the eastern frontier of Tulare county is Mt. Whitney, the highest mountain in the United States.

In the Sequoia National Park, wholly within Tulare county, is the giant redwood—sequoia gigantea—Gen. Sherman, the largest tree in the world. It is but one of many.

In Tulare county is the King's River Canyon, said by John Muir to surpass in scenic beauty the Yosemite.

In Tulare county's wonderland are the Chagoopa Falls, 3000 feet high. This is but one of twenty noted waterfalls in the Tulare Sierras.

EVERYONE INDUSTRIOUS

In Tulare county nearly all the farms and orchards are owned by their occupants. The milkmaids are heiresses and the farm hands ride in nothing cheaper than Cadillacs. A one-car family is an object of commiseration.

In Tulare county everyone works; everyone plays, everyone is rich, or is on the highway to prosperity. I would rather live as proprietor in a producing orchard or vineyard here than in any ancestoral palace in Europe.

I have visited a dozen of its cities and villages; I have talked with scores of the farmers, orchardists and vineyardists, and I have not heard a single knock, a single word of complaint.

One who seeks to enjoy a life of comfort verging on opulence "far from the maddening crowd," to gather life's roses unscathed by the briers, will make no mistake if he locates in Tulare county.

I am writing under the shade of a date palm in a flowering Visalia garden. The sun hangs low, and is casting its horizontal rays across the San Joaquin Valley. Above the sky is light blue and the clouds are molten gold. A cool breeze from the mountains sets in incessant motion the leaves on the quaking aspen on the banks of an irrigation canal.

The streets are parked with evergreen trees and shrubs. The lily-white magnolias and blood-red oleanders are in full bloom.

From the dome of the Courthouse, just visible above a grove of evergreens, a beautiful silk flag is fluttering in the breeze. A flag has floated from that mast every day for seventy-five years; for Tulare county is patriotic. Visalia was founded by veterans of the Mexican War, and of the wars of Texas before it was a part of the Union.

AIR OF SECLUSION

The air is filled with the music of children's happy voices and redolent with perfume. A bluejay is hopping about on a swaying limb above me and scolding shrilly. I suspect a nest is near.

Visalia is beautiful, as only a California city nestling in the midst of fruit orchards and vineyards on the breast of a fertile, well-watered plain can be. Set back on a foothill boulevard, ten miles from the Golden State highway, it enjoys the seclusion of an English country estate.

There is no bustle, no excitement. The atmosphere is not that of an industrial community. It is an atmosphere of courtesy, of courtly grace, reminiscent of the old South. I feel as thought I were a guest at a country house. They welcome one without effusiveness. They make me feel I am worth while, but are not demonstrative. I have been here two days, and no one has tried to sell me anything.

Visalia is a city of beautiful homes, progressive, but not boisterously self-assertive. It has the culture of a country gentleman. In its library are more than 100,000 volumes for a community of 7000 inhabitants. Its schools rank with the best in California. Its hotel accommodations leave nothing to be desired.

Visalia is rich in history, rich in tradition, rich in Indian lore, rich in legends of the old frontier. Not far from Visalia is a charter oak, bearing a placard that was placed there when the Texas immigrants gathered under its spreading limbs in 1853 and organized a community.

ORIGIN OF NAME TOLD

I was intrigued to learn the origin of the name. I was referred to D. E. Perkins, attorney and pioneer, who has lived here for more than fifty years. He told me that the site of the city was taken up as a homestead by Nathan Vise, a German, who came here from Texas about 1851.

Nathan Vise, a German! How that name associates itself with Nathan der Wise—Nathan the Sage—a classic drama by Lessing, the first of the great German dramatists. The spelling "Vise" follows the German pronunciation of "Wise." I seem to find in this immigrant, who founded the city and disappeared, a kindred spirit. The narrative is like a lost page from the Iliad or the Odyssey. The records of Tulare county show that the Texans first named the capital Buena Vista, in memory of the battle in which they had taken part.

That was in 1852. But in the spring of 1853 they decided that it should be called Viseville, in recognition of the generous Vise who gave his homestead to the county for a county seat. When a committee called upon him, he declined the honor, but said it might be named for his wife, Salia, apparently a corruption of the name of one of the characters of Lessing's drama. They compromised by adjoining the two names and Visalia was the result.

EARLY FEUDS DYING

Visalia, in the frontier days, was the center of a sheep-raising territory. After that came the cattle ranges. It was a station on the stage route from St. Louis to San Francisco. With stage robbers and feuds of the cattlemen, life was wild and life was gay.

Then came the feud with the builders of the Southern Pacific Railroad, a feud that caused the main line to run through the valley, ten miles west of Visalia, to the founding of the town of Tulare, and a rivalry that still exists.

It was told at the Visalia Chamber of Commerce that Visalia is the gateway to the Sierras; from here leads the highway to the Sequoia National Park and the giant redwoods, only fifteen miles away.

When I replied I had just come from Tulare—the city on the Golden State Highway—and was told that city was the gateway to the Sierras, I was crushed by the condescending rejoinder:

"Yes, the gateway; but the back gate."

Visalia could get along without the Southern Pacific; but the Southern Pacific was forced to take cognizance of Visalia, as its branch line through that city indicates. The Santa Fe also runs through Visalia, as do stage lines running north and south.

While I was in Visalia there was a day of untoward excitement. They were voting on a bond issue for a municipal airport. Tulare already has one, and Visalia does not care to be outstripped by its bustling neighbor.

RIVALRY IS KEEN

These cities of the San Joaquin have their rivalries, but, since the advent of the automobile, so many families are intermarrying that the old bitterness has disappeared. Only the legends of the times when the night riders from one town went over and shot up the other remain.

Visalia still keeps a watchful eye, however, on Tulare. For forty years that town, now a city, has been seeking to capture the county seat.

"We are not greatly concerned," a member of the Visalia Chamber of Commerce said to me. "Most of the population of Tulare county is now in the orange belt, and Tulare is on the other side of the county."

The last rays of the sun have disappeared. The flag has been furled. A summer twilight, blue in the distance, rests like a gossamer veil over the city and the valley. The children's voices are silenced and the chorus of the frogs has begun. Visalia retires and rises with the sun.

Nathan der Wise! I sought to learn more about this German with his classic nom-de-plume, but, like another Ulysses, after founding the city, he disappeared, leaving no trace behind.

COUPLE WEDDED AT MOUNTAIN RESORT

HUNTINGTON PARK, July 8. "Big Strawberry," a well-known rock in the mountains near Lake Arrowhead, was the scene of a marriage on Thursday, last, when Ted Evans, evangelist of the Methodist Episcopal conference, who resides at Long Beach, and Miss Gladys Schaaf of this city were married by Rev. S. S. Sampson, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of this city, it was learned here today.

The ceremony was witnessed by Forest Ranger Bert Switzer and Mrs. Switzer. The marriage was expected to take place within the next few days, and when the announcement was made here, it came as a surprise. The bride has been a teacher in the schools in this city for several years. The young couple first met here when Evans was holding revival services at the local church. They will reside in Long Beach after returning from their honeymoon.

Ousting Hit by Petitions

REDONDO BEACH, July 8. Petitions bearing the names of 200 parents of the Beryl Heights School District, in which the discharge of Mrs. Anna Meehan, custodian of the schools of the district for thirteen years, was protested as unfair were presented to the School Board last night.

The protestants contend that the dismissal was without cause. The action by which Mrs. Meehan was relieved of her duties was taken by the Trustees at their June meeting with Trustees C. C. Cribbs and Walter Pollard voting for her dismissal and Mrs. George Anderson, president, opposing it.

BOWL WILL BE STARTED AT VENTURA

Attractive Amphitheater Expected to Be Ready for Use in Late Summer

VENTURA, July 8.—Work will start this week on the $15,000 amphitheater bowl to be built by the county at Foster Park, according to Roy Wilson, architect in charge of construction.

Johnson & Hansen of this city were awarded the contract for the first unit on their estimate of $7637. This will complete the excavation of the bowl and will build the concrete seats. It will also include a temporary wooden platform, which will be replaced later with a concrete stage and dressing-rooms, to cost $4837, making a total of about $15,000 for the initial work, which will make the amphitheater usable by late this summer.

The bowl, under these plans, will seat 1000 people. The platform will be fifty-two feet long and will be backed by an artistic sounding board, which will be built to simulate an old-fashioned garden wall overgrown with trailing vines and flowers. It is the plan of Wilson to make the bowl harmonize as far as possible with the picturesque setting, nestled in the hollow of the hill under the live oaks.

Boy Killed by Machine

LAGUNA BEACH, July 8.—Donald Smith Hewes, 4-year-old son of Hayden L. Hewes, Riverside attorney, was fatally injured here today, when run down by an automobile. His skull was fractured and he died in the hospital here.

The boy was said to have been walking across the Coast Boulevard with Miss Carol Brown, 16 years of age, when he broke away and ran in front of a machine driven by William A. Boegeman of Los Angeles.

An inquest will be held at 11 a.m. tomorrow at Dixon undertaking parlors at Huntington Beach.

SUGAR BEET SEASON TO START IN AUGUST

OXNARD, July 8.—According to an announcement by J. W. Rooney, manager, the 1928 grinding season of the American Beet Sugar Company's factory here will start some time between August 10 and 15. The seasonal activity at the factory is known as the "campaign" and each year large numbers of laborers invade this city with hopes of finding employment at the sugar factory.

Sugar-beet fields throughout the Southern section look good and a very fair campaign is anticipated. In preparation for the coming activity two more boilers are being connected, which means that twenty-four boilers will be used this year in the process of turning out beet sugar.

JAIL UTILIZED FOR COSMOPOLITAN HOTEL

HUNTINGTON PARK, July 8.—Just one less than 300 "boarders" were given lodging at the City Jail during the first six months of the present year, according to records at the police station, and, of this number, there were sixty-one who gave their birthplaces in foreign lands.

Among those registered at the local jail during the first half of the year were ten Canadians, seventeen Mexicans, one Russian, five born in Sweden, four in Armenia and other countries mentioned as birthplaces were China, France, Belgium, Japan, Ireland, Spain, Italy, Scotland, Jugo-Slavia, Africa and Switzerland.

POULTRYMEN PLAN CONFAB

All-Day Institute Will Be Held at Gaines Park Friday; Experts of State Will Speak

POMONA, July 8.—Poultry marketing problems of the Pacific Coast will be discussed at the third annual Southern California Poultry Institute to be held in Gaines Park on the 13th inst., it was announced by R. M. Hoover, president of the Pomona Poultry Association, who is in charge of local arrangements.

The program will include an inspection of the Southern California egg-laying contest project here in the morning, and the visitors, who will assemble from all parts of Southern California, will convene at 10 a.m. to listen to an address by Dr. J. R. Beach of the division of veterinary science, University of California, who will speak on the use of new chickenpox vaccine. Dr. H. W. Graybill, director of the poultry pathological laboratory, will speak on his work, while Burk C. Ritchfield, Federal State market director, will give an outline of the work of his office.

At the afternoon session, Howard Miller of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, and W. M. Cory, assistant farm adviser of Orange county, will discuss recent poultry surveys.

A. N. Swarthout of the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics, will give the main address on the poultry marketing situation on the Pacific Coast.

CHANNEL CITY WINS AGAIN

Santa Barbara Awarded Better-Homes Prize for Fourth Time; Check for $500 Won

SANTA BARBARA, July 8.—For the fourth successive year this city has taken first place in the national better-homes week awards. Miss Pearl Chase, chairman of the better-homes work in this county this year, has been advised by James Ford, executive director of the movement, that although Santa Barbara, after winning first place three years straight, had not entered this year in the community contest, a special division had been created for the purpose of awarding a prize for the work here this yar.

The new division is called the city-county division and a $500 check for first place will be sent to Santa Barbara, he informed her.

Santa Barbara tied with Atlanta, Ga., for first place in 1925, and took first place in 1926 and 1927. Mrs. J. O. Knighten was chairman in 1926, with Miss Chase as assistant chairman. Miss Chase has been chairman the other years. This year she decided not to enter the city in the competition, and so devoted her efforts to county-wide work, with the result that it made such an appeal to the judges and officials in Washington that the special division was created so that Santa Barbara might be rewarded again.

New Road to Airport Asked

INGLEWOOD, July 8.—Circulation of petitions for the improvement of Redondo Boulevard in this city, west of West Boulevard in Los Angeles, has begun by the Redondo Boulevard committee of the Chamber of Commerce, it is announced by Ernest W. Gould, chairman. This will make the shortest direct route to Mines field, site of the Aeronautical Exposition in September.

Under the plan, which engineers estimate will cost approximately $297,300, a seventy-six-foot roadway will be proposed with two traffic lanes, one on either side of the Los Angeles Railway Company tracks.

This improvement involves the moving of the tracks to the center of the boulevard. The company will exchange its fifty-foot right of way at one side of the thoroughfare for a thirty-two-foot strip between the two traffic lanes, it is said. With the sidewalks to be added this improvement will be in effect a 100-foot street, it is pointed out by Gould.

The project would be financed through an assessment district to include territory with assessment valuation estimated at $3,300,000. Funds to the amount of $67,000 are to be raised through the assessment district and $210,870 on a direct-frontage basis. The county will be asked to appropriate $34,800 toward the improvement, according to Gould.

SURVEY SHOWS 41,000 HOMES NOW IN VALLEY

VAN NUYS, July 8.—According to a survey just completed by members of the Greater San Fernnado Valley Corporation, there are now 41,000 homes in the valley, as against only 4000 residences ten years ago. Van Nuys in 1911 had a population of 105. According to the survey there are now 18,418 persons in what is known as the Van Nuys area, within and on the outside of the mile-square township.

Ten years ago the western edge of the valley was virtually without population. The survey shows that this part of the valley has grown about as fast as the areas nearest the Burbank and Glendale sections.

RANCHERS KICK ON INCREASED TAX RATE

CAHUENGA PARK, July 8.—Supported by the Ventura Boulevard Chamber of Commerce, a group of ranchers and acreage owners in the boulevard area will attend the meeting of the chamber on Monday and take part in the discussion of the increased tax rate that has been levied on ranch property in San Fernando Valley.

Ranch owners assert that the increased rate is prohibitive and will materially injure their properties for agricultural purposes. At the meeting Monday resolutions of protest against the increased tax rate will be drawn for presentation to the Los Angeles Board of Equalization now at work on county tax problems.

FONTANA CATHOLICS PLAN NEW CHURCH

FONTANA, July 8.—Approval of plans for an attractive church edifice of Spanish architecture to be used by the Catholic congregation here has been given, and work on the $12,000 structure is to be started immediately, according to announcement.

There was donated to the congregation one of the choicest sites in the heart of Fontana townsite. This one-acre tract is at the corner of Arrow highway and Mango street, opposite the new Junior High School building. Bordering the large lot on the north will be the packing-house of the Fontana Citrus Association, while the community recreation park will be at the west. The congregation will be in charge of Rev. F. Dunne and Rev. P. J. Ryan of San Bernardino.

MAN HELD TO FACE STATUTORY CHARGE

PASADENA, July 8.—Charged with a statutory offense against 4-year-old Marcheta Campos of 181 South Vernon avenue, Juan Torres, 50 years of age, a former roomer at the Campos home, was arrested last night by Detective Lieutenants Lee Culver and Harry Thomas.

Campos said that his daughter's face was badly cut and that her right eye had been swollen shut in the encounter. The house was watched by the police and Torres was arrested when he returned for his belongings.

BOYS CITED ON BRAVERY IN RESCUE

Mexican Youths Save Man and Woman From Drowning After Canoe Upsets

AVALON (Catalina Island) July 8.—Two Mexican lads were cited for bravery today and recommended for the Wrigley Medal by the Catalina Boosters' Committee of which Harry Diffin is chairman. The boys are Manuel Raugel and Lucas Cueva, 17 and 18 years of age, respectively.

Driving toward Pebbly Beach on the afternoon of the 3rd inst., the boys heard a woman scream for help. A canoe had tipped over and a youth and woman were caught in the tide and rapidly being carried out to sea. Manuel took time to take off only one shoe and dove in after the woman, bringing her safely to shore, while Lucas dove in fully clothed and caught the boy struggling in the water by the hair. Crazed with fear, the drowning youth started to fight his rescuer until both went under several times. Finally the dorwning boy lost consciousness and Lucas dragged him ashore and also fainted from exhaustion. It took the Avalon fire department one hour and forty minutes to resucitate the young man, whose name given at the Catalina Hospital was that of Wallace Wright of Los Angeles.

He was vacationing at Catalina with friends stopping at Island Villa. The name of the young woman who was rescued by young Manuel was not learned.

Valley District Becoming Area of Paved Roads

VAN NUYS, July 8.—That the people of San Fernando Valley have faith in the valley as a growing area that will double in population within a few years, is reflected in the last paving report for the fiscal year just ended. Within the year sixty-five miles of paved highways and roads were completed, with about seventeen miles of sewers, at a cost of $2,413,752 in contract awards, according to the statement of engineers.

John Harding, assistant district engineer here, further reports that an additional $4,000,000 in road improvements will be constructed in the valley within the next fiscal year. In the report now on file, there were sixty-one separate paving projects totaling 108 miles of improvements with about sixteen miles of sewers that passed the ordinance-of-intention stage under the 1911 bond acts. Harding estimates that this amount is twice the total of the year previous, indicating that with all the paved roads now in the valley the real work has practically just begun.

The outstanding projects completed during the year was the improvement of the south roadway of Sherman Way between Van Nuys and Owensmouth and the paving of San Fernando Road from Burbank to San Fernando city. Important roads in the central and western parts of the valley also were paved. Three or four years ago only a few paved roads existed in the large valley area.

DECREASE SHOWN IN LIQUOR ARRESTS

ALHAMBRA, July 8.—An increase in the number of felony and misdemeanor cases and a decrease in the number of liquor violations are shown in the report of the local police department for the last fiscal year.

There were seventy-one arrests on felony charges and 2272 on misdemeanors, while in the previous year there were fifty-three felony cases and 2146 misdemeanors. The arrests for drunkenness last year totaled 190, as compared with 277 during the previous period. Only thirty-five persons were charged with illegal possession last year, while fifty-four arrests on this charge were made the previous year.

ARSON AND BRIBERY TRIAL OPENS TODAY

REDLANDS, July 8.—Steve Goins, mechanic, arrested on a charge of attempted arson and trying to bribe a witness, will have a hearing before Judge Charles Allison in the Superior Court tomorrow.

Goins, according to Sheriff Walter Shay, has confessed to setting fire to the Rustic Inn, near Arrowhead, owned by his former wife, giving as his motive revenge because she would not return to him when he pleaded with her to do so.

Then later Goins was caught attempting to bribe his former wife by offering her $1500 not to press the charges.

POSTAL BUSINESS GAINS

FONTANA, July 8.—Increase of the business of the Fontana postoffice of some 20 per cent during the first six months of this year, as compared with the same period of 1927, was reported this week by Postmaster Ed Rees. Five employees are now working under Postmaster Rees.

CITY CENTER SEEKS FUNDS

Oxnard Organization Hopes to Obtain $6500

More Than Half of Amount is Already Pledged

Thousands Participate in Community Activities

OXNARD, July 8. — With $3300 assured through pledges, Oxnard community service directors anticipate one of the fastest financial campaigns in the history of the organization here this week. Plans have been completed for the raising of $6500, which figure was recently set as the budget for the coming fiscal year. Final announcements are to be made at a dinner-meeting at the community center Wednesday evening. Members of the finance committee are Charles Donlon, general chairman; Frank McGrath, H. A. Brody, Fred Stein, W. D. Bannister and Caryl Krouser.

According to F. J. Hokin, secretary, this organization has established a record of exceptional accomplishments among the smaller cities of the United States. The California eisteddfod, which was started through community service here, has brought this city into prominence. The Ventura county eisteddfod was the first held in California several years ago. Since that time the idea has spread to many parts of the State. Hokin is still one of the officers of the State Eisteddfod Association.

Boys' and girls' work, summer playground activities, boys' band, old-time dances, choral society, seventh-street playground, art society and public gymnasium are among the outstanding developments of community service here and all of these various branches of the organization are being conducted with notable success. Indoor baseball, played at night on a brilliantly illuminated field, is another outstanding attraction.

According to Secretary Hokin's report for the past year, a total of 100,000 persons attended various functions at the community center. During the month of June, the attendance was 14,000, showing how generally the city's public building is used. People come from all parts of the county to participate in the activities throughout the entire year. The organization has met with steady growth and greater success year by year until it is now outstanding in the State.

According to plans laid out by the executive committee, the program for the coming year includes many new activities which are expected to attract many more people to this city for recreational purposes.

Hard-of-Hearing Close Convention

OAK GLEN, July 8.—The lip-reading contest, which closed the second far-west conference for the hard-of-hearing was such a success that it could not be completed because of lack of time, several being left in the spelling contest when it was necessary to close the conference. It adjourned with a dinner held this afternoon and then the delegates left for their homes in various cities on the Coast.

Those who were responsible for the success of the conference this year are Miss Olive E. Harris of Redlands, general chairman; Miss Ruth Bartlett of Redlands, secretary; Miss Alice Emery of South Pasadena, in charge of the lip-reading tournament; Mrs. Theodore Poindexter of San Francisco, publicity director and demonstrator of sound movements; Miss Mary E. Rice of Los Angeles, chairman of the entertainment committee; Miss Lucy Ella Case of Pasadena, chairman of the lip-reading teachers, and Miss C. N. Kenfield of San Francisco, chairman of the program committee.

REDLANDS DOCTOR WILL DON UNIFORM

REDLANDS, July 8.—Dr. Wilbur E. Kellums, young physician of this city, has announced he will leave private practice here, having entered the Medical Corps of the United States Navy as a lieutenant, junior grade.

He will be stationed at the Bremerton navy yard on Puget Sound, where he will have an opportunity to do research work.

ALHAMBRA MAY ANNEX LARGE AREA

Civic Leaders of Wilmar Discuss Probable Extent of Section to Be Added

ALHAMBRA, July 8.—As the result of several meetings held at the City Hall, citizens of Wilmar, southeast of here, are considering a proposal to circulate petitions calling for an election to annex their territory to this city.

The Wilmar committee working on the plan is composed of W. C. Gorman of the Wilmar Chamber of Commerce; Glenn Kistler of the Garvey Civic Association and H. P. Durging of the Wilmar Welfare Association. This committee has met several times with the Alhambra city officials and representatives of the Chamber of Commerce here to discuss the situation, but no definite agreement has been reached. The matter has not yet come officially before the Alhambra city commission, which must give approval before petitions are circulated.

Boundaries of the Wilmar district, now in county territory, which would be included in an annexation project, are still to be determined. Differences of opinion as to the area have arisen in Wilmar, some of the sponsors of annexation favoring taking in all the territory south of San Gabriel and east of Monterey Park, while others favor a much smaller section.

The Pasadena sewer farm forms a barrier at present between Alhambra and Wilmar. The portion of this farm south of the Valley Boulevard would probably be included in the annexation district. The Wilmar district has a population of approximately 7000.

Ban Sought on Fourth Fiesta

SAN BERNARDINO, July 8.—The movement launched here to bar the sale or use of fireworks has begun to assume county-wide proportions. While directors of the San Bernardino Chamber of Commerce were lending their support to the proposed ban in this city, the Citrus Belt Firemen's Association announced it will request the Board of Supervisors to pass an ordinance prohibiting the use of pyrotechnics in any part of the county.

At the same time it became known that Colton's fire chief, Fred L. Lombra, becoming irritated at the too-enthusiastic celebration on the 4th inst., is circulating petitions requesting the Council of that city to enact a fireworks' ordinance similar to that sought here by Fire Chief Frank D. Seovel. Petitions asking the ordinance are in the hands of several San Bernardino men, including Seovel, and were reported to be meeting a general response from citizens who thought that the 4th inst. celebration in this city rather exceeded the bounds of patriotism and many cases approached those of pure mischief.

Directors of the chamber passed a resolution asking the City Council to estimate just how much the 4th inst. celebration cost the municipal government. This would include eighteen calls directly traceable to fireworks answered by the department and the damage to property and then to consider whether it would not be advisable to prohibit the sale and use of fireworks in the city.

"HENRY FORD" HUNTED AS CHECK COMES BACK

REDLANDS, July 8.—Judge C. G. Potter is going to be busy with check-writers this week. Two are under arrest on charges of giving worthless checks and the police are seeking three others who gave merchants checks that were not good. Maurice Yarnell was arrested in Pasadena on a charge of giving five worthless checks to local merchants and Abe Regeher, employed by a hardware firm here, will face the court Thursday on a charge of giving a $50 check for rent and a $25 one for groceries when he had no funds in the bank.

Elmer Hill is being sought also. R. B. Bedford of Fresno and a young man who signed his name "Henry Ford."

WHOOPING COUGH FATAL

REDLANDS, July 8. — Little John Gilbert Kennedy, 5-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Kennedy, died yesterday from a spasm of coughing. The baby had whooping cough for several days. It is the first death ever reported here from whooping cough.

DEER HELD FINE HOUSE PET

Pasadena Woman Asks President Coolidge for Change in Game Laws That Permit Slaughter of Animals But Make Domestication Difficult Problem

PASADENA, July 8. — Deer make better pets than dogs and cause less disturbance when domesticated than cats, according to Mrs. M. L. Tyler of 935 Boston Court, who revealed today that she has appealed to President Coolidge and Gov. Young in an attempt to revoke laws which allow hunters to slaughter the fleet animals, yet prohibit deer lovers from capturing them alive and giving them kindly care.

Mrs. Tyler's pet deer, Venado, was fatally injured in a fall recently, and since that time, his mistress has tried vainly to procure another pronged tenant for the little corral in her back yard. The present California game laws permit the keeping of pet deer, but make it very difficult to obtain them. Mrs. Tyler would have the laws changed so that every family desiring a pet deer may have one. Editors of sporting magazines have disagreed with her, she says. They declare that quick death from a hunter's bullet is preferable to long life in captivity.

The Pasadena woman believes that deer are "very healthy and happy in captivity."

"My Venado used to have free run of the house and would eat daintily at our own table. He was always sleek as I curried him three times a day. People who have owned deer don't give them away and they are not allowed to sell them. The wild deer belong to Uncle Sam and he protects them for several months of the year and then leaves them exposed to hunters' bullets for two months."

Mrs. Tyler treasures a gilded harness in which Venado drew a tiny cart about the neighborhood.

NEW TELEPHONE PLANT OPENED

Latest Type of Equipment Installed at Torrance

Attractive Building Has Improved Exchange

Pasadena Leads State in Increase in Lines

TORRANCE, July 8.—The opening of the new plant and exchange building of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company was held here last night, when nearly 100 officials of the company throughout the San Pedro and Los Angeles districts. The plant includes the first board of its kind on the western Coast in addition to other innovations in equipment including building, and the local office and outside office divisions, has been constructed to provide for the telephone needs of the city for several years.

According to Fred W. Sharp, district manager, the growth of the community has made the new plant necessary, as from sixteen telephones in 1914, the exchange now serves 725. Ten years ago there were only sixty-nine. The building, located on Sartori street, is of brick construction and follows the new Renaissance treatment of Spanish architecture.

The personnel of the company includes Miss Helma Grunlund, manager and chief operator; M. L. Tripp, wire chief, and Margaret Farris, William Ruby Geery, Marie Harrison Haun, Lavilla Hogan, Pearson, Georgiana Pearson, Florence Christopher, and Miss Hannah Rose, instructor in the San Pedro exchange, is in charge of that department here.

Heads of the departments attended the opening besides the district manager, Black of Los Angeles, district plant manager; R. M. Patchen, engineer of the Los Angeles district, and C. J. Clark, plant chief of the San Pedro district, and P. T. Sharp, division commercial supervisor. The plant will hold open house on the 18th inst.

PASADENA HIGHEST IN TELEPHONE PATRONS

PASADENA, July 8.—The percentage gain in telephone installations in this city during the two months of 1928 was 1.8 per cent, a much larger gain than recorded in any other California city, it was revealed today by Frank Norris, manager of the Pacific Telephone Company here. Glendale stood second with an increase of 1.67 per cent, San Diego was third with 1.75 per cent, Los Angeles fourth with 1.65 per cent and Sacramento fifth with 1.4 per cent.

Pasadena's total number of telephones is now 33,983, as compared with 11,875 in Glendale, 37,000 in Berkeley, 27,986 in Sacramento, 763 in Spokane, Wash., and 1,000 in Tacoma.

Estimates based on the increase in the number of light, water and telephone connections in Pasadena indicate that this city will have a population of more than 100,000 on January 1, 1930. The same estimates indicate that the present population is 92,000, which is less than the figure set by Dr. Charles R. Keyes of the University of California at Los Angeles, who recently estimated that 94,000 persons reside here.

San Bernardino Adopts Budget

SAN BERNARDINO, July 8.—The cost of operating San Bernardino's municipal government for the 1928-29 fiscal year will be $410,534.53, according to the budget adopted by the City Council. The estimates submitted by the various departments were slashed to fit the revenues estimated.

The budget includes an appropriation of $40000 to establish a City Planning Commission and an additional $4000 for the two-platoon fire department system which will be instituted by Chief Frank D. Stanton. The Council also created a new position fire traffic officer and appropriated into the budget $600 contingent. A total of $100,000 will be raised by direct tax levies to meet bonded indebtedness, interest payments and interest.

FARMER HELD ON CHARGE OF MURDER

SANTA BARBARA, July 8.—Frank Hampton, 35-year-old Orcutt farmer, was bound over to the superior Court for trial on a charge of slaying John Wesley Blake, an oil worker, in preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace Grundell in Orcutt. Blake died Monday morning in a Los Angeles hospital after a free-for-all fight in an Orcutt pool hall.

According to witnesses, Hampton struck Blake, knocking him to the sidewalk and fracturing his skull. Mrs. Blake, widow of the slain man and the mother of nine children, was in the courtroom, but did not raise her eyes once during the hearing. Representing the defendant was Attorney Fred Shaffer, while Dep. Dist. Atty. A. B. Bigler, also of Santa Maria, represented the State.

SUMMER CLASSES AT NEWPORT BEACH

NEWPORT BEACH, July 8.—For the first time in the history of the city summer classes are being held at the Newport Beach grammar school.

While most of the other members of the local school-teaching staff are away at summer schools in Los Angeles, San Diego and elsewhere, Miss Dorothy Crane, teacher of the eighth grade and also of the glee club, is holding classes here.
